'Dummy' President for Quebec?

By DAVE BAZAY

QUEBEC (CP) — An outspoken civil servant proposed Thursday that Quebec province keep its British parliamentary system but decorate it with a "dummy" president, "a wooden idol."

★ ★ ★

Jean-Charles Bonenfant, witty librarian of the national assembly, said a United States-style presidential system would paralyse Quebec if it were applied here.

Bonenfant, 57, trampled over several pet political ideas of the politicians in his appearance as an expert at a hearing of the assembly's constitutional committee.

At one point he read this opinion of a Japanese jurist to Rene Levesque, the leader of the separatist Party Quebecois which wants to boot out the British system:

★ ★ ★

"We should not abandon too quickly what the English have built during three centuries of difficult but primordial work."

At another point he said a referendum, a proposal backed by Premier Jean-Jacques Bertrand, would lead to "frightful disorder" in the absence of permanent electoral lists.

Bonenfant, a teacher of constitutional law and political science at Laval University, was invited by Bertrand, the committee chairman, to outline what is involved in the presidential system of government, a system favored by the premier.

The librarian-university professor, also a newspaper and television commentator, said outright that he is opposed to a presidential system of government.

He said the great disadvantage of the American presidential system is that the executive branch of government is often powerless before the legislative branch.

The expert warned against the French presidential system by saying its weakness arises from the duality of powers of the president and the premier.

He said the presidency of Gen. Charles de Gaulle and Georges Pompidou both illustrate that the French premier can be reduced to "a puppet" at critical times.

Bonenfant's views on the role of a president in a political system were expressed as follows:

★ ★ ★

"I think that perhaps later we will have a more functional view of the state, but for the moment people need to have a symbolic chief of state who has practically no powers, who opens exhibitions and gives advice to the scouts and holidays to the colleges and they also need a real chief, who is the prime minister."

Pros Bomb Uplands With Birdies

By GORDE HUNTER

Uplands golf course stacked its 6,215 yards against the cream of the Canadian pro golf crop Thursday and came away with a severe case of shell shock.

It wasn't really the serious shooting — that begins today — it was merely the warm-up, the pro-am. But the pros were serious enough about it as no less than 18 of them smashed par and two of them, Moe Norman from Gilford, Ont., and Toronto Mississagua assistant pro Brian Bond, went on birdie destruction the likes of which this layout had never experienced before. Their cards added up to 63 — seven full shots under par, to shave four from the previous competitive record for the present layout, held by Laurie Kerr.

OLD RECORD

The late Chuck Congdon of Tacoma and Fred Wood of Vancouver both carded 65s in the final round of the 1946 B.C. Open to share the old Uplands' layout record.

The pro-am competition became secondary as first one and then another pro reported in with sparkling under-par performances. The pro-am plum was picked off by the team headed by Vancouver pro Wayne Vollmer who had a 69. His amateur partners Ches Hays of Uplands and Ed Manning of Seattle, aided and abetted the par smashing by totalling 16 under par 54. And that was good only for a one-stroke margin over the team

Bus Crash Kills 16 In England

STANHOPE, England (UPI) — Police reported 16 persons killed and 27 injured Thursday when a bus with 43 aboard plunged over an embankment near this village in Northwest England.

The bus was carrying a team of bowlers to the Durham coast from a match in Blackhall.

The coach ran off the road, overturned and was wrecked against the side of a house, a police spokesman said. The side of the bus was ripped off and passengers were scattered on the ground.

"I was in the bar when I saw the coach go past. I heard a bang but I didn't dare go out. I was frightened of what I would see," said Mrs. Mary Blenkinsop, proprietor of the Campbell Arms Pub.

Lethal Gas Crosses U.S.

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Shipment of 22 railroad cars of lethal war gas to two separate locations within the United States from the Rocky Mountain Arsenal at Denver was disclosed Thursday. It touched off a new round of congressional criticism.

Rep. Richard McCarthy, D-N.Y., first disclosed the shipments and wrote a letter to President Nixon asking for him to investigate them.

McCarthy said the army was shipping the gas, but the Federal Railroad Administration, which licensed the shipments, said they were made by the Jones Chemical Co., of Caledonia, N.Y., and the Chemical Commodities Co., Olathe, Kans.

Fourteen cars loaded with phosgene gas were shipped to the Lockport, N.Y., plant of Jones Chemical and eight carloads went to Chemical Commodities facility at Geismar, La.

Phosgene gas is used commercially in the manufacture of plastics and its shipment is allowed under certain conditions. McCarthy said the gas is not as lethal as nerve gas, but was the cause of 80 per cent of the gas fatalities in the First World War and is "a deadly weapon."

The larger shipment to Lockport was routed through Chicago and Ed Edel, a spokesman for the railroad administration, said that train had been in Des Moines at noon Thursday.

"As the train moved through Des Moines, no guards were placed at railroad crossings, even those crossings that had no warning barriers," McCarthy said.

He said the shipment of the gas exposed such cities as Des Moines and St. Joseph, Mo., to the "danger of an accident."

Edel said that federal safety regulations for such shipments did not require guards at all crossings and noted that there were 225,000 of them in the nation.

A Boy's Life Is Full of Deep Valleys, High Peaks

A boy's life is full of deep valleys and high peaks, and Pierre Rochefort, 12, took full up-and-down ride this week during Little League Canadian championships here. (See full report, Page 15.) Tuesday, with Pierre pitching, Valleyfield, Que., lost to Edmonton Hardistry, 3-2, in a tough game, and Pierre, left, was inconsolable. Thursday, Pierre was on peak with second crack at the Prairie champs, right. This time he won, 3-2, striking out side in successive innings with bases loaded, and slamming ball to force error that brought in the winning run in extra innings. But Pierre and his mates now need two successive wins over Vancouver Collingwood for title. —(Jim Ryan)

Calm Short-Lived

Gunshots Kill Four In Ulster

LONDON (Reuters) — Britain announced today it will airlift 600 troops into Northern Ireland.

One of the dead was identified as John Gallagher, 29, a father of three who had emigrated to Canada and was back home on vacation.

A brief period of calm which followed the entry of British troops into riot-torn Londonderry—flashpoint of this week's Roman Catholic-Protestant feuding—was shattered by bursts of automatic weapons fire in the capital of Belfast.

Here and in Armagh, 36 miles to the south, four persons, including a child, were killed by bullets. Twenty-nine of the 105 reported injured early today in the capital suffered bullet wounds.

● Background to Ireland's strife. Page 3

Three of the deaths occurred in Belfast.

A large area of downtown Belfast was in flames as police in armored cars fought against barrages of gasoline bombs, rocks and volleys of bullets.

Police spokesmen said the outlawed Irish Republican Army was behind most of the shooting. Spokesmen said they had information more IRA contingents were heading for the capital.

Police said the snipers were using sophisticated weapons, including modern automatics.

NOT BY POLICE

Gallagher was slain in Armagh where, police headquarters said, police were not using their guns. Another man was shot in the leg there and a third was wounded in the thigh.

The second man to die was Herbert Roy, 26, of Belfast. He was hit in the chest by a blast from a shotgun.

A fourth body was found on the roof of a block of Belfast apartments. The child was named as Patrick Rooney, 9.

Police said the fatality list could be higher.

They were the first fatalities in the riots which have sent

Police Clear Seattle Area

'Labor Finding New Leaders'

HALIFAX (CP) — Public service unions will dominate the labor movement in the next generation, Canadian Labor Congress President Donald MacDonald said Thursday.

Speaking to the Halifax convention of the Union of National Defence Employees, MacDonald—a native of Halifax—said "a new breed of labor leader is emerging . . . the kind of people who lead your own component, and the alliance (Public Service Alliance of Canada) as a whole."

NEW FIELDS

Along with this trend, he said, the labor movement is entering hitherto unorganized fields of the labor force, which itself is being transformed.

"The emergence of government employees as trade unionists is being accompanied by a very considerable transformation of our labor force from one which was, up to recently, largely dominated by the manual worker into one which is becoming increasingly typical of the clerical, the technical and the professional worker.

"What is perhaps even more important is the fact that there is a growing realization by these growing categories of workers of the importance of developing effective instrumentalities for their economic well-being and the futility of reliance on employer paternalism."

ACT CRITICIZED

He said two barriers to effective union bargaining in the public service were the Public Service Staff Relations Act and government guidelines on wages.

He criticized sections of the act which restrict the areas which may come under collective bargaining.

Wage guidelines set by government, said MacDonald, "inhibit and frustrate collective bargaining processes and, in effect, subject you to a previously established government position even before collective bargaining begins."

ANDY CAPP

Fiery Girl MP Held from Attack

LONDONDERRY (Reuters) — Bernadette Devlin, 22-year-old Northern Ireland civil rights champion and the youngest member of the British House of Commons, was dissuaded at the last minute Thursday from leading a charge against a three-storey apartment block occupied by police in embattled Bogside.

Miss Devlin was told by other leaders of the rioting Roman Catholic population of the Bogside ghetto that there were old people in the building who refused to leave.

Catholics were hurling gasoline bombs on the roof of the building to dislodge the police who had captured the building after continuously firing tear-gas bombs at it.

Arriving at the barricades, Miss Devlin announced that tenants would be given 10 minutes and police five minutes to vacate the building.

After that, she said, two dozen men with bottles of gasoline would enter the building.

"We are going to burn these flats to the ground," the MP for Mid-Ulster announced to crowds at the barricades.

But several young men spoke up, telling her the apartments were occupied by old couples who had locked their doors and refused to budge.

Shots Kill Four in Ulster

Northern Ireland reeling for four days.

A total of 29 persons were reported shot, some seriously. The Belfast casualty toll for the night reached 105-89 civilians and 16 police.

HISTORY'S WORST

The worst violence in the history of Belfast broke out as special British armed forces had brought calm to the Londonderry slum area of Bogside, where 50 hours of violence had reduced the area to rubble. But the Belfast rioting seemed much more severe.

Two Belfast pubs, one in a Roman Catholic street and one in a Protestant street, were turned into bonfires in the Northern Ireland capital.

ARMORED CARS

Police with armored cars moved into the Roman Catholic Falls district. As they drove up there were four bursts of automatic fire. A senior police officer said he thought it came from a sub-machine-gun.

Eyewitnesses reported a dozen single shots that sent police scattering for cover. These were followed by a short burst, a longer one and finally two sustained bursts of fire.

SKY AGLOW

There are no British troops in the capital.

BOGSIDE SEALED

In Londonderry, steel-helmeted British troops carrying rifles and machine-guns sealed off the riot-torn Roman Catholic Bogside section.

ing that had raged out of con-

Their mission was to halt riot-trol for three days. They came at the call of the government in Belfast.

"Rocks we will take; but at the first petrol bomb, we fire," warned a sergeant, referring to the bottled gasoline bombs used by rioters.

The British forces took their posts only a few hours after 600 troops of the Republic of Ireland had moved up to the near-by border. The southern Irish, predominantly Catholic, announced their mission was to support and supply five field hospitals set up in County Donegal to treat any wounded who might flee the Northern Ireland trouble area.

SOME ARMED

Some of the Irish Republic troops carried weapons. They patrolled in Donegal, just a mile from Bogside where 4,000 Catholics made their stand in rioting which arose out their long-time complaints of discrimination in Northern Ireland.

LET IN FIRE TRUCK

Shortly after the Prince of Wales Regiment rolled up to Bogside, tempers cooled enough to let a fire truck go through the barricades to put out fires.

The British troops made no immediate effort to enter Bogside, where Catholics had held out against a Protestant-dominated Northern Irish police force since Tuesday.

COOLING AIM

A senior British officer said the aim of the troops was to lower the temperature.

About 300 British soldiers rode into Londonderry minutes after Home Affairs Minister Robert Porter told an emergency session of Parliament in Belfast that police were exhausted and could no longer control the rioting.

CROWDS CHEER

A cheer went up from the crowds in Londonderry's battered centre as the first soldiers arrived in an armored car. More followed in personnel carriers topped by steel grills to ward off rocks. Then two companies of the battalion and support troops arrived.

Their first task was to put barbed wire barricades across all roads leading into Bogside and seal off the area.

RAMPAGE

Many Catholics in the area had said they would welcome military intervention, charging that the mainly-Protestant police, once they break into the area, go on a rampage of destruction.

Even before the arrival of troops, a huge tower of black smoke welled up from William Street, where rioters had forced police back to within 100 yards of their own headquarters and set fire to a pile of tractor tires, making a smoke screen in the narrow street.

AREA LITTERED

The area was littered with the debris of two nights of fighting. To the smoke and the fumes of tear-gas grenades was added the dust of buildings that police ordered wrecked after the interiors had been burned out.

The immediate military strategy seemed to be to cordon the area and wait.

NEW FIRES

Once the smoke was dissipated, new fires started in buildings in William Street. Bogsiders marched toward the troops' barricades singing, We Shall Overcome.

Their stewards, men first appointed to control demonstrations when the Catholic civil rights campaign was confined to protest marches, shouted at younger, hotheaded elements to keep back.

NO ROCKS, BOMBS

Through the Bogside crowd came Eddie McAteer, veteran leader of the Nationalist opposition party who until the last election represented the Bogside area in the Northern Ireland Parliament.

SAFE CONDUCT

He talked with the major in charge of the troops and promised safe conduct for the fire engine in Bogside if the army would ask the police to withdraw from their positions behind the army's barriers.

The police, among them the tough all-Protestant B Specials whom the Catholics call gangsters, marched back to their barracks. The barbed wire was rolled back to let the fire truck through and McAteer and other leaders persuaded the Catholics to move out of sight of the troops.

ACROSS RIVER

The troops had been stationed for the last week at Sea Eagle, a Royal Navy base across the River Foyle from the main part of Londonderry.

Londonderry, unlike Belfast, has a Roman Catholic majority, most of whom want a united Ireland, divorced from the British crown.

PEACE-KEEPERS

The Irish Republic demanded Wednesday night that Britain ask for United Nations peace forces to intervene.

Britain's Prime Minister Wilson and Home Secretary James Callaghan broke off vacations and held an emergency meeting at an air base in southwest England. British sources in London said use of British troops was approved during the three-hour meeting.

INTERNAL AFFAIR

In London, the foreign office said there was no question of Britain asking for UN intervention. The British view was said to be that Northern Ireland is part of Britain and the rioting there an internal British affair.

A night of unremitting violence brought casualties in Londonderry close to 400, of whom 130 were policemen. Ten persons, three of them in Londonderry, had bullet or gunshot wounds.

In Londonderry, police fired a volley when a small detachment seemed in danger of being overrun by a crowd hurling gasoline bombs. Responsibility for the other shootings was not yet clear but it is known that the extremists—both Catholic and Protestants—have arms.

Throughout Thursday the Bogsiders stuck to their barricades, hurling rocks and gasoline bombs at police detachments. The police countered with their own volleys of rocks and fusillades of riot gas grenades.

FOLLOW UP

The move of Irish Republican troops toward the border was seen as a follow-up to Wednesday night's warning by Prime Minister Jack Lynch in Dublin that his government could no longer stand aside.

Lynch's government, by the constitution, claims to rule all Ireland. It does not recognize the partition effected by the 1920 treaty that left the six counties of Northern Ireland as part of Britain.

'NOT LEAVING'

Irish civil rights leader Bernadette Devlin, a 22-year-old member of the British Parliament, told the Bogsiders: "Just because the soldiers are here it does not mean we are abandoning the barricades."

Outside Londonderry, the rest of the country appeared quiet Thursday after rioting Wednesday night in Belfast, the border town of Newry, Dungiven, Dungannon, Lurgan, Iniskillen, Armagh and Coalisland.

Oak Bay Election Corner

Dr. G. Scott Wallace

Readers are taking a great interest in this daily column as shown by their response. Some personal comments would be timely. My election campaign is being financed solely by donations from friends and supporters. Such donations have been generous but it is only fair to say that advertising, even on a modest level, to a thrifty Scotsman, is costly and further donations would be welcome. Some readers have suggested that my proposals for hospitals imply criticism of the government, under whose banner I am seeking office. This is quite correct. I see no fault in criticizing a party in some particular aspect when I approve in general, of its basic policies and very considerable accomplishments. A party which cannot tolerate constructive self-criticism is incapable of progress and would not have my support. Readers should know that members of the Social Credit government, well aware of my outspoken disposition, on Oak Bay council and elsewhere, asked me to run for this office. I was raised on the motto, "Speak the truth and fear no man" and such is the policy I will follow if elected to the Legislature. One does not need to be rude however to be outspoken, and it is my pledge, both in this campaign and in the House if elected, never to resort to the name calling, rude noisy behaviour and outrageous immature antics, which, alas in the past have been exhibited equally by both sides of the House. Readers wishing to question me on these points can do so on CKDA tomorrow night at 8:00 p.m.

Sleeping Pill Use Requires Extra Caution

By G. T. THOSTESON, MD

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Please help me with insomnia. I am 47 and haven't been able to sleep well for six years. The doctor gave me some sleeping pills, but I'm afraid to take them because I heard people can get hooked on them forever. I only take them when I get very tired. — M.R.P.

There is a massive difference between gobbling pills, as some people do, seeking complete forgetfulness, or taking just enough to relax you and let you sleep. Your doctor knows a lot more about proper use of such pills than the "people" who feed you scare stories.

I suggest that you use the pills. Just stay within whatever limits your doctor specified, and you won't be "hooked". Your occasional use is wise.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: My husband went to a podiatrist to have a corn removed and was told he had bad circulation in his feet. Is this serious, and can it be corrected? — Miss P.J.

Faulty circulation can be serious, or it can be a nuisance, causing burning, cramping, coldness. If there is some partial blockage of circulation in a large artery, surgery is used in suitable cases.

The podiatrist was concerned because impaired circulation can retard healing. If the circulation is seriously faulty, severe trouble can come from a small injury, would, blister, or even hot application.

□

Dear Dr. Thosteson: If a person, aged 20, is told he is color blind, can anything be done to correct it? — T.A.

No. It is a hereditary characteristic and does not change.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I am 76 and for a number of years have taken bone meal, iron, yeast tablets and brewer's dried yeast. When I ask my doctor about taking these, he says, "Well, if they don't help you, they won't hurt you." However my daughter said I should stop the bone meal because one of the chemists where she works said something about calcium deposits. — Mrs. G.G.

All sorts of people take all sorts of things, and I'm not of a mind to prohibit anything unless I see some harm possible. In your case, I agree with your doctor thoroughly, and see no risk of "calcium deposits" from anything you are taking.

Smiles for British Troops

Ulster: Strife Background

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The Dispute: Roman Catholics, outnumbered 2 to 1 by Protestants in Northern Ireland, claim they are subject to discrimination in such matters as jobs, housing and voting.

The Causes: The trouble is rooted in the history of Ireland; first under British domination and then in an Ireland divided between the predominantly Catholic South and the mainly Protestant North.

The Background: After years of armed struggle, Southern Ireland signed a treaty with Britain in 1921 accepting dominion status, with the northerners opting out. This resulted in the division between the 26 counties of the South and the six counties of the North which stayed with Britain. Southern Ireland dropped out of the Commonwealth in 1949. The South has a population of 2,910,000; the North 1,502,000.

The Politics: The North is dominated by the Unionist party, which is protestant, related to the British Conservatives and devoted to Northern Ireland's ties to Britain. The Nationalists who are Catholic, spring from the anti-British rebels of a half-century ago. The top-heavy Protestant majority means that the Nationalists are outvoted on major issues. North Ireland's government, under new leadership, has moved to meet some of the Catholic complaints, but the pace has not satisfied many of them. The situation has been aggravated by extremists.

Invasion Anniversary Nerves

Prague Acts to Curb 'Chaos, Panic'

PRAGUE (UPI) — The government of Czechoslovakia, calling the political situation "grave," announced Thursday the army and peoples' militia will be on duty to quell any demonstrations noting the first anniversary of the Soviet invasion Aug. 20-21.

Radio Prague said that already four persons have been arrested in the village of Mokry Haj near Senica, in the Slovak region, for putting up posters that "insulted representatives of the communist party" and "threatened murder."

According to the news agency CTK, the federal and regional Czech and Slovak Governments met during the day to assess "the current internal political situation and considered it to be grave."

The ministry of interior has organized "emergency units and the necessary technical equipment" in Prague, Bratislava, Brno and other cities, the government announced.

Russian-Czech Clash Reported

SCHIRNDING, Germany (UPI) — West German border police said Thursday that travelers from Czechoslovakia have reported an armed clash between Soviet and Czechoslovak troops two weeks ago in which several soldiers were killed or injured on both sides.

A border police spokesman at this West German crossing point said the travelers told officials the clash occurred near the Czechoslovak city of Karlovy Vary when a Czechoslovak soldier refused to carry out an order from a drunken Soviet officer.

The Soviet officer than shot the Czechoslovak soldier. A Czech then shot the Soviet officer and sprayed bullets at other nearby Soviet military personnel, he said.

The Soviet military men fired back, the travelers told the border police, and there were dead and injured on both sides.

The spokesman said some of the travelers reporting the incident were Czechoslovak truck drivers and the others were West Germans.

A Radio Peking broadcast was reported to have said that 30 Soviets and six Czechoslovaks were killed, one of the Czechoslovaks an officer.

Congress Party Splintered

Mrs. Gandhi Leftist Bid Puts Career at Stake

Colonist-Los Angeles Times Service

In a letter to Congress Party president Siddavvanahalli Nijalingappa, Mrs. Gandhi virtually withdrew her backing of the party's candidate in Saturday's presidential election.

Her move seemed to have splintered beyond recovery the Congress Party, which has ruled India for all 22 years since independence from the British.

BOLD BID

If the daughter of the late Prime Minister Jawaharlal Nehru fails in her bold bid to carry the Congress Party to the left, there is little doubt that she has reached the end of the political trail as leader of the world's largest democracy.

But veteran political observers here give Mrs. Gandhi a good chance to win her fight against "the syndicate," a group of right-wing party elders who forced approval of speaker of the house Sanjiva Reddy as the party's presidential candidate against the prime minister's wishes.

With the presidential election only three days off, Mrs. Gandhi in her letter rejected a request that she call for a party whip to hold all Congress Party members in line for Saturday's election, in which members of the national and state legislatures form the electoral college.

NO ELECTION

There is no general election for the presidency.

Mrs. Gandhi did not explicitly come out in favor of a free vote in the election. But she wrote the Congress Party president that the whole basis on which she agreed to the candidacy of Reddy had disappeared. Such an action is unprecedented in Indian politics.

It was regarded as a direct challenge to the party elders and a virtual endorsement of V. V. Giri, the former vice-president who became acting president on the death of India's president, Dr. Zakir Hussain, in May. Giri resigned to run for the presidency as an independent.

Mrs. Gandhi based her rejection of Reddy on the fact that Congress President Nijalingappa has been holding negotiations with the right-wing Jan Sangh and Swatantra parties to support Reddy. She said those parties are ideologically opposed to the Congress Party. There is strong suspicion in Mrs. Gandhi's camp that the cost of support of the two Parties was an agreement to dump Mrs. Gandhi as prime minister after the election.

Sources cose to the right-wing leaders confirmed Wednesday that disciplinary action against the prime minister for failure to support the party candidate is planned after the election.

But Mrs. Gandhi, who has been cheered daily for a week by well organized rallies in front of her residence, has been carrying the fight to the people.

Tough, But Needed

PRIME MINISTER TRUDEAU'S declaration that his government will hold the line on expenditures is good news in that it is exactly what taxpayers have been imploring successive governments to do.

That the guidelines outlining his plans should have been given in a personalized address to the nation through the communications media rather than to Parliament is another matter, and could be decried as another slap to parliamentary prestige.

On the other hand the prime minister is now firmly on the record as saying that the expenditure freeze is on, and that, at least, is a step in the right direction.

Whether Mr. Trudeau will be more successful than his predecessors in making his guidelines stick remains to be seen.

Except for defence, he has been vague about how it is to be done. He says that nine major departments of government are to be on hold-the-line programs, and that announcements on these will be made separately.

Until then it will not be known which departments are to be left outside the program.

The future of family allowances and the welfare programs generally will be dealt with in a forthcoming White Paper after further study has been made.

The other hole which the prime minister is endeavoring to plug is participation in new federal-provincial cost-sharing schemes in which the costs are in the hands of the provinces.

He does not wish to become involved in any new schemes of this nature on an "open-end" basis. In other words he wants to know the end cost, or at least the amount the federal government will be required to pay over a period of five or more years.

This has not happened in the past, and the ever-growing costs of these programs over which the federal government has little or no control is a serious problem in national budgetary estimating.

The prime minister says it will be left to the departmental ministers to decide how they will hold the line on their budgets, and in this regard Opposition Leader Robert Stanfield has made a good point that it is also necessary to work out a system of federal spending priorities because without these and the co-operation of the provinces damage could be done to Canada's continued economic progress.

The main thing, however, is that a hold-the-line policy, if it works, will be of the utmost value to the country in the battle against the perils of a rampant inflation.

Crisis Confronted

AS THE VIOLENCE BORN of religious intolerance has spread like a prairie fire across Ulster, the Northern Ireland civil authority has at last admitted that the situation is out of its control and has requested military support. Troops have moved into Londonderry, scene of the most serious disorders.

The decision was taken reluctantly by Prime Minister James Chichester-Clark's government, but it was inevitable with the ominous developments of Wednesday, darkest day in the history of the six counties since the civil strife of the early 1920s.

The troubles of those times had the same root cause—religious intolerance and bigotry, made the more dangerous by the Irish temperament. They were a continuation of the civil war which caused the separation of the country in 1921 and were to cause the death of more than 350 persons and immense property losses before they were ended.

It is a repetition of that tragedy which authority now seeks to escape, and before the intervention of the military it seemed it was inevitable. It still may be.

Probably Major Chichester-Clark's call for the support of troops was hastened by Dublin's alarming decision to send the army to the frontier, within a rifle shot of the centre of the Londonderry fighting in the Roman Catholic enclave of Bogside. Ostensibly to protect five field hospitals set up by the Irish Republic's forces for the aid of refugees from Londonderry, the presence of the battle-equipped units might have encouraged the Roman Catholic elements in their resistance to peace efforts and inflamed the Protestants to further outrages. There have been reports that extremists in the North were urging upon Dublin the need for its armed intervention.

Prime Minister Jack Lynch had earlier called upon the British and the Belfast governments to request United Nations' assistance in quelling the disturbances. But this was refused and Mr. Lynch's action branded an intolerable intrusion by the Belfast government.

The republican government thereupon moved troops to the frontier and the response was the entry of British army units into Londonderry.

No doubt there will be critics of this crisis manoeuvre, but it is in no way an act of interference. Northern Ireland, while enjoying a certain autonomy, is nevertheless a part of the United Kingdom and has no military resources except those of the nation in which it participates.

It is significant that Roman Catholics applauded the appearance of the British soldiers as they drove by truck to their station at the Guildhall. They may not be welcomed by the extremists on either side but there is little doubt their cautious use, even their presence, will discourage the radicals.

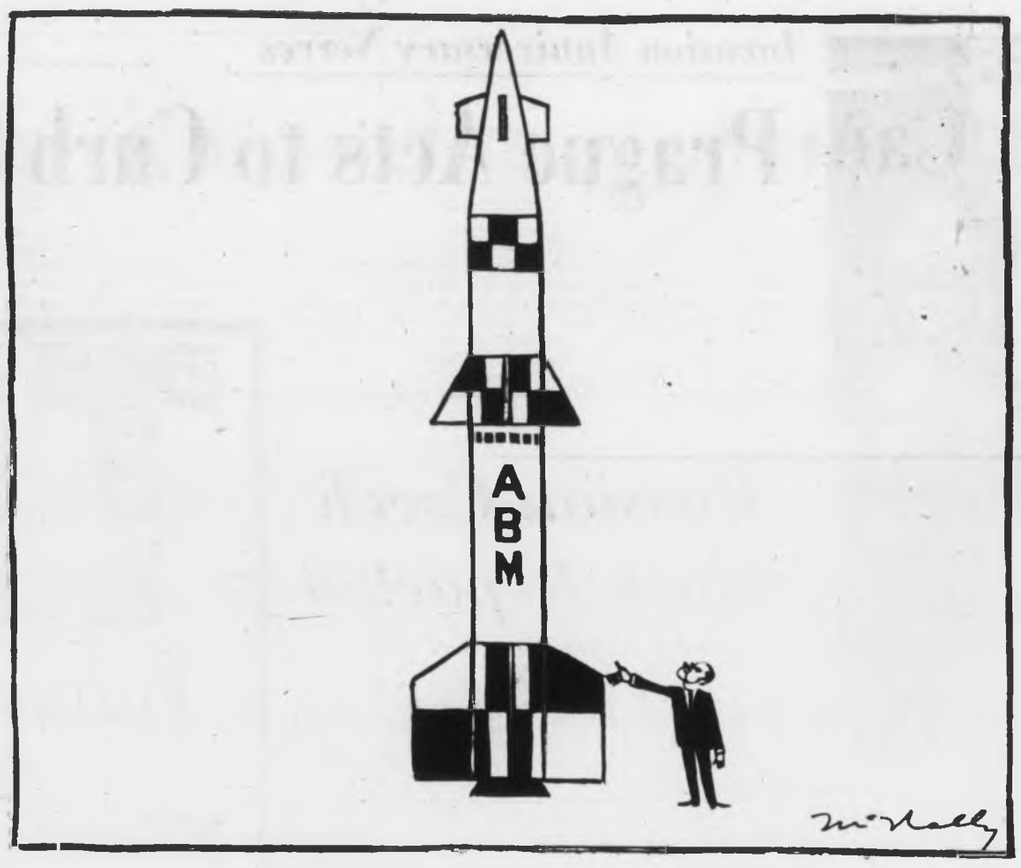

The Ulster ordeal is far from finished. But perhaps there is a change of mood, and men more reasonable in their point of view may soon prevail. They must to escape calamity.

Irresistible Lure of Detente — By LUBOR J. ZINK

Communists Exploit Co-Existence Stratagem With Ever-Credulous Western Democracies

IN THE five decades since the Bolsheviks seized power in Russia and declared an idealogical war to the death on the rest of the world there have been five "detente" (or "co-existence") periods.

Every one of them, starting with Lenin's NEP (New Economic Policy) in the early 1920s, was designed by the men in the Kremlin to enlist the help of the hated "capitalist" countries in consolidating the Soviet system and facilitating the subversive work of international communism.

Though invariably shocked by Moscow's exploitation of the coexistence strategems for preparation of new aggressive moves, the Western democracies have never failed to respond with childlike credulity to the "detente" lures.

The explanation of this apparently incurable gullibility lies in the fair-play makeup of the Western mind which fails to understand that for the Communist co-existence is not a goal but a political tool.

Discussing this basic conceptual difference, which accounts for the monumental confusion of the public mind in the democracies, Swiss political writer Georg Bruderer says in his contribution to the recently published symposium, The Soviet Threat to Europe (Foreign Affairs Publishing Co., London, 1969):

"The causes are to be found in our wishful thinking, in our anxiety to see a smooth and peaceful transformation of communism, in our being unable to imagine that there are in existence people whose social conduct is governed wholly by impulses received from a totalitarian political doctrine. . ."

Another cause, says Mr. Bruderer, "is a horrifying and dangerous lack of information on the teachings of Marxism-Leninism," for despite the great number of excellent publications on this subject, few people read serious studies on communism.

The information that reaches the general public is confined to occasional short newspaper articles — mostly superficial travel accounts — which must not reveal any personal conviction of the writer to be considered objective.

"Indifference," says Bruderer, "is too often mistaken for objectiveity, although you may validly study a phenomenon with all the objectivity in the world and, once arrived at the conclusion that it is to be rejected, express your rejection unequivocally and fervently."

The result of this strange shunning of true objectivity in everyay political journalism is that the general public in the democracies is blissfully unaware of the fact that "in the ideologico-psychological field we are at war with communism, which has declared war on us, whether we admit it or not."

Even professional politicians and diplomats, who should know better, cater to this make-belief by expressing the "popular" view that Soviet strategy and tactics have been freed of aggressive messianic ideology.

Yet, all serious students of the international scene know that, in Bruderer's words, "ideology (as understood by the Communists) is the main substance of the (East-West) conflict," even though "the views on Marxist principles held in various Communist-ruled countries are no longer identical."

This ferment within the once monolithic Communist bloc leads to the widely-held inference that "ideology has ceased to play a leading part in Soviet politics" and that the East-West conflict is now "based mainly on nationalist and imperialist trends."

Bruderer acknowledged the role played by nationalism in the conflict but rejects the tendency to overstress the historical factor of Russian imperialism as "an over-simplification and return to obsolete categories" which cannot explain, for example, why black Communists in Africa or white Communists in Western Europe and America are striving to undermine and destroy established governments. Few, if any, do so for the glory of Russia.

"Today," the Swiss writer says, "it is not a country's borders which separate men and make them enemies, but the (ideological) frontiers which cut right through countries and peoples and families."

In other words, the East-West conflict is a struggle between two irreconcilable philosophies of life; two hostile ideologies with claims to universality. The strength of the otherwise bankrupt Communists lies in their total organization for ideological battle — something which is foreign and incomprehensible to the pragmatic, muddle-through democrats.

To a true Communist ideology determines and explains every human activity. This accounts for the Communist interpretation of any political, economic, social and cultural phenomenon from an ideological point of view and for the untiring effort to influence other people ideologically.

Against this onslaught the Western mind has no effective defence because such subservience to ideology is beyond its grasp. Hence the confusion, the groping for reassuring rationalizations of the unfathomable and the gullibility whenever the Kremlin trots out the detente and co-existence strategems. It's happening all over again right now.

As East-West Talks Are Planned . . .

Skeptics Perceive No Thaw

By THOMAS NUZUM
from Brussels

WESTERN allies and the Communist bloc of nations are edging warily toward a European security conference to reduce East-West tension.

Some allied diplomats here in headquarters of the Atlantic alliance are hesitant about rushing into a friendly embrace with the Russian bear. Bear hugs can hurt.

Russia and its Central European satellites of the Warsaw Pact launched a charm offensive at their Bucharest conference when they invited the North Atlantic Treaty Organization (NATO) to join them in a conference to end East-West friction.

Moscow toned down its customary vituperation of West Germany. Premier Alexei Kosygin even conferred with the German ambassador to Moscow recently. It was the first time a Russian cabinet minister had deigned to speak with the German ambassador in three years.

Since the chief obstacle to an East-West conference is enmity between West Germany and Communist East Germany, Moscow has been pressing East Germany's hard-line boss Walter Ulbricht to step down or at least replace his anti-Western subordinates with friendlier officials.

Last April, foreign ministers of NATO's 15 governments approved the idea of conferring with Warsaw Pact leaders if it were certain that the two blocs would discuss specific subjects they could agree on, so that the meeting would not be a resounding failure.

For example, the two blocs could improve relations by agreeing to ease restrictions on travel of each other's citizens, arranging to link their electricity grids for smoother power output, etc.

Russia agreed to draw up an agenda of that sort, and will not insist that the agenda include the touchy question of recognizing the frontier between East and West Germany, reports Harmel, just back from Moscow where he sounded out the other side for NATO.

Recognizing the division of Germany is a taboo subject for Western governments, they hold that the future of East Germany should be determined by a free vote of its people rather than by a deal between other governments. Furthermore, recognition of existing frontiers could tend to consolidate the Iron Curtain, and discourage freedom-loving peoples behind it.

The Western European press hails Harmel's mission to Moscow as a turning point in East-West relations. Russia wants to assure good relations with Western neighbors in order to have a free hand in dealing with the menace of Red China, according to speculation.

But the cold war is not over yet. Western governments will not decide on the list of subjects they want to discuss with the Warsaw Pact until December. The two sides will not even be able to agree on the meeting's agenda, some diplomats at NATO headquarters are betting. They predict that Russia will try to use the meeting to perpetuate the division of Germany.

Aid to Tanzania

Time to Go Home

From the Edmonton Journal

This homely observation appears to set up a category for the tangled story of Canada's military aid to the new East African state of Tanzania.

Communist Chinese military advisers were already in Tanzania, then Tanganyika, when the Canadian government, after first refusing, finally agreed to President Julius Nyerere's request for help in training his troops.

In 1964, the Canadian government approved the spending of $15,000,000 on a five-year training program to help Tanzania. Three years later, Mr. Marcel Lambert and Mr. Douglas Harkness, former Conservative cabinet ministers, charged before the Commons external affairs committee that Canada was actually training Tanzanian guerrillas for raids into friendly states, such as Burundi, Kenya and Portugal's African colonies. But the committee defeated a motion calling for an end to Canada's military program in Tanzania.

Last year, President Nyerere visited Peking. Since then it has been reported there are more than 1,000 Chinese military and economic advisers in Tanzania to administer a $47,000,000 program of aid. China has also promised to build a railway across Tanzania and provide it with an air force of jets.

So it would appear that Canada's long-shot gamble of military aid to Tanzania has been lost. There are many areas of serious concern about the Trudeau government's de-emphasis on Canada's defence policy, but aid to Tanzania is hardly one of them. Canada can't compete with the Chinese giant in the military and economic aid department, and Peking itself is taking a gamble on thinking it can win Tanzania over to the Chinese version of communism. In any event, Canada has no choice. Mr. Neyerere has said, in effect, "Thanks for your help, fellows, but please go home now." Such are the perils of foreign aid.

Decision with Israel

Nasser Threatening War of Exhaustion

By T. A. MISHLAWI, from Beirut

DECISION on another all-out war in the Middle East appears to rest in the hands of Israel.

The decision may depend on the damage wrought by Egypt's declared intention to exhaust Israel with slashing commando attacks, air strikes and internal sabotage.

Egyptian President Gamel Abdul Nasser announced in a speech before the national congress of the Arab Socialist Union on July 24 that Egypt has embarked upon a war of attrition against Israel.

"We are now fighting a long battle. We are also ready for a long battle that aims at exhausting the enemy," Nasser said. "The policy of all Arab countries must be one of exhausting the enemy. The swift battle which took place on June 5 (1967) will never happen again."

Nasser's avowed strategy is the controlling factor in recently escalated fighting along the Suez Canal in which both sides have claimed victories.

The day Nasser spoke the Israeli and United Arab Republic air forces were more active than at any time since 1967. Israeli French-made Mirages and Egypt's Russian-built Sokhoy fighter-bombers and MiG 21s were busy all day strafing each other's positions on both sides of the canal.

At the end of the day, the Egyptians said that they lost only one Sokhoy and shot down seven Israeli Mirages. The Israelis called the Egyptian claim "a big lie" and claimed six MiGs destroyed.

The reasoning behind Nasser's strategy appears to be that by launching a war of attrition against Israel, it will be less likely that the big powers would interfere.

In case of a major and open armed conflict, such interference could not be ruled out. It is unlikely that Egypt will, at this stage, try to cross the Suez Canal to retake Sinai, although some Middle East observers do not reject the possibility.

At the present stage, one could say with a certain degree of certainty that an all-out war in the classical sense of the word would depend on Israel. While the Arabs cannot forecast Israel's plans and intentions, they consider a major strike by Israel in the near future a clear possibility.

In one of his weekly articles recently, Mohammed Hassanein Heikal, editor of Al Ahram and an intimate of Nasser, said he believed Israel was still considering "a crushing blow" against Egypt. Heikal and other Arab commentators have advised Arab states to be always in a state of maximum alert to repel an Israeli strike "that may come at any time."

The recent violent clashes across the Suez Canal appeared to indicate that if a major war is to break out again in the region, it will be one exclusively between Israel and Egypt. In fact, Israeli Defence Minister Moshe Dayan said this when he declared recently that "should another war break out it will be on the Suez front."

Nasser, in preparing for a long battle with Israel, sounded confident of the position of his country and armed forces. He did not, however, seem so sure of the other Arab fronts. Hence, his call for a new Arab Summit conference.

★ ★ ★

It would be extremely difficult for Egypt to take on Israel alone, if the other Arab fronts were not strong as well. It is in this light that Nasser's constant urging for the Arabs to mobilize and co-ordinate their efforts should be read.

In his speech in July, Nasser announced that a new effort would be exerted to strengthen the eastern front, that comprises Jordan, Iraq and Syria. This is one of the subjects that he might bring up at the proposed Arab summit.

The possibility of bringing about a peaceful settlement to the Middle East crisis now seems more remote than at any previous time. Arab morale has noticeably improved since the recent air and ground battles between Egypt and Israel.

The Arabs in general now want nothing short of complete victory. The feeling is that if Nasser's words about the growth of his armed forces' strength should be accepted, why then should the Arabs accept a political settlement which would take away part of their territory, and thus humiliate them?

In his plans for a war of attrition against Israel, Nasser seems to depend to a large extent on the Palestinian commando movement, which also has been escalating its operations inside Israel. In one week in July, there were three major explosions in Tel Aviv, Haifa and Hebron.

Nasser's proposal for commando presence in his proposed summit seems to indicate that he plans to give this movement greater strength in order to bolster its operations.

With the commandos operating from within Israel and the Israeli armed forces preoccupied with maintaining security of the country on the borders, Nasser hopes that his plan of a war of attrition and exhaustion against Israel will be a success.

I Beg to Differ . . . — By FRANK LOWE

Big Brother Rides Police Patrol Car

THE news item read:

"Police in Cleveland, O., have embarked on a campaign to stamp out sin in districts of the city where prostitution flourishes. They photograph the car of every driver who stops at the curb late at night to chat with a girl. In due course, they mail a message to the man's home. This states simply that this vehicle passed inspection at a particular hour and on a particular street."

Isn't that just jolly? Big Brother in a patrol car.

The police, you see, send this message to the man's home about his vehicle passing inspection at a certain time and place in the full knowledge that most wives get the morning mail first.

And most wives, even though they will deny this, open this morning mail pronto.

Can you imagine the scene when a husband returns in the evening to a wife who has just received, and read, such a billet doux from the fuzz?

There he is, home on time and ready for a quiet drink and the evening meal. He might even get a chance to read the newspaper if he is lucky.

"What were you doing at the corner of 5th and 21st streets at 11:30 p.m. last Thursday?"

There are a variety of answers he could make, I suppose.

He could say he was testing his night vision. He might try explaining that he was taking a public opinion poll. But somehow I have a hunch that such answers will do little to cool off the little woman.

Like every wife, she knows that a husband out on his own at 11:30 p.m. is up to no good.

I really do not know if this somewhat novel, and sneaky, approach will actualy cut down on prostitution in Cleveland. What really worries me is whether or not the police and wives will make use of this technique in other fields.

For instance, right now there is a spate of sexy movies playing in our fair land. A lot of red-blooded husbands have secretly nursed a desire to go and have a look at some of these offerings.

But what if the police began taking pictures of people going in? And mailing these pictures to the homes?

The mind boggles.

And what if a group of civic-minded ladies terrorized the police into believing it would be a great thing for virtue in general if several of the town's leading saloons were closed down?

The easiest way to close them down, naturally, would be to rob them of their customers. This could be done, the ladies would explain, by sending pictures of men frequenting these saloons — with the time and date the picture was taken printed on the photo — to their homes.

It could work, too.

Today, even the most terrorized husband can occasionally get a night out by claiming he has to work late.

If, when he returns to his nest, his breath smells something like a distillery in flames, he can always explain that his boss insisted he have a couple of drinks — "a thank you, for working late."

But this time-honored, and nearly infallible, excuse would not last too long with the new system. A few days after "working late" his wife would have a photo of her hubby, taken on that same night, showing him hanging on to the bar at the Hollow Leg Saloon, living it up by watching the late show on the bar's TV set.

I mean, how degraded can a husband become?

As you can see, while I am not in favor of prostitution in Cleveland, I am also not in favor of the means police have taken to combat it.

Japan Rearming Cautiously in Face of Pacifist Sentiment

By DON SHANNON, from Tokyo

Japan is slowly and cautiously rearming in response to economic and strategic pressures, despite a peace constitution and widespread pacifist sentiment.

Its meagre, defence forces still reflect the popular revulsion against war or anything reminiscent of the military adventures of the 1930s which led to crushing defeat by the United States and years of American occupation.

But there are signs of gradual change. With her booming economy and advanced technology, Japan could become a formidable military power, even a nuclear power, if the international situation produced the necessary political climate.

Public opinion continues to support the 1947 American-inspired constitution, which renounced war and pledged never to maintain military forces.

That ideal was compromised in 1950 when Japan formed a "police force" of 75,000 men during the Korean war. The force grew to 200,000, the forerunner of the present self-defence services.

Japan now has ground forces of 173,000 men, including a paratroop division and an armored division with 750 tanks; a navy of 36,000 men and 205 ships, including one missile-launching destroyer and nine submarines, and an air force of 40,700 men with 200 F-104J Starfighters, 300 F-86D Sabrejets and 500 trainers and support aircraft.

The military trend is slightly upward. Spending in the current five-year defence plan is set at an average of 1.3 billion dollars a year. Although this is the highest military spending since the Second World War it represents less than 1 per cent of Japan's gross national product — a small fraction of the proportion spent by other major powers. Japan's potentially hostile neighbors have greater strength.

Inhibited from rearming by her peace constitution, Japan's counter to the military power around her has been American strength, pledged to defend Japan under the U.S.-Japan security treaty.

Despite widespread, sometimes emotional opposition to an arms buildup, at least three factors are pushing Japan toward a more active military role:

● The impending return of Okinawa and the Ryukyu Islands will make it difficult for Japan to avoid involvement in regional defence. Ruled by the U.S. and used for American bases since the end of the Second World War, Okinawa is important to the defence of Japan, as well as South Korea and Taiwan.

● Growing Japanese trade and investment abroad inevitably will create pressures for protection of markets and shipping routes. The Japanese economy depends on the oil, iron ore and coking coal which moves in a steady stream through the sea lanes, particularly the straits of Malacca between Malaysia and Sumatra.

● Asian turbulence in the last few years has dimmed the hopes of all but the most idealistic that Japan can live in unarmed neutrality. Red China's militance and even her acquisition of nuclear power seem not to have disturbed Japanese as much as the recent Soviet-Chinese border conflict.

Stars of Seven Days Reunited To Try Building New 'Empire'

By CARL LAFONG, from Ottawa

In the spring of 1966, CBC president Alphonse Ouimet, a remote and ghostly figure to most of his employees, gave his personal attention to firing the co-hosts of the most successful public affairs show in Canadian broadcasting history.

Patrick Watson and Laurier LaPierre, who shared the hosting duties on This Hour Has Seven Days, Ouimet suggested, were neglecting the CBC's ideal of total objectivity in public affairs. (LaPierre had sinned by shedding a biased tear on camera after the showing of a moving interview.)

What was really behind the move was the fact that the 7 Days people had been building a little empire of their own which Ouimet felt was challenging and threatening the authority of CBC brass. Also under fire was executive producer Douglas Leiterman. The brass felt that while Watson and Leiterman were brilliant talents, they made a dangerous combination which had to be broken up.

Well, the CBC won out after a long and bitter hassle, but today Watson and LaPierre are together again and empire building again, and Leiterman is there too, although not in any official capacity.

But this time they're on the other side of the fence, and the empire-building is what they're being paid to do.

Since the debacle, Watson had been a sort of journeyman communicator — writing, teaching, broadcasting, producing, directing—all over the place, and LaPierre had gone back to his university post with occasional forays into broadcasting and politics.

Now Watson is vice-president in charge of programming of the Bushnell Television Co., and CJOH-TV, Ottawa. LaPierre is manager of program development.

There's just a touch of the chimerical about the whole operation, because it's all contingent on the approval of the Canadian Radio-Television Commission, which would require a major policy decision.

Ernie Bushnell, once number two man in the CBC, and Stuart Griffiths, also a former CBC executive, are chairman and president of Bushnell Television which operates CJOH.

They've made arrangements to buy various companies, including the Montreal CTV station, which would give rise to a new complex (to be called Bushnell Communications Ltd.) operating five TV stations and one satellite station, some dozen radio stations, a number of CATV systems, and a production house.

There's no assurance at all that the CRTC will let this come to pass, but the people involved have to assume that it will. "There's really no other posture you can take," says Watson, whose main concern at the moment is preparing the extensive submission the group will make to the commission this fall.

Although Watson has done some freelance work for private broadcasting, his main alliance was the CBC, and his taking a fulltime job with Bushnell represents a big step for him, and may signify important changing trends in the Canadian broadcasting scene.

★ ★ ★

"I've grown up in public broadcasting, and I believe in it," Watson says. He feels that the CBC was a pioneer instrument and that broadcasting couldn't have grown to its present status without it.

But it may no longer be leading the way it should, and "the opportunity to do the most exciting work may exist in private broadcasting.

"The private sector will now be helped to go good things by a brainy, dynamic regulatory body."

Watson and his associates are aiming at providing a new kind of community service, both regional and local, via radio and cable as well as by TV.

"We'll be able to raise the quality of programming by pooling our resources. And it's significant to note that the company started the people-pooling with program people, not money people."

★ ★ ★

The group is paying particular attention to the way cable is changing the whole concept of broadcasting, and looking forward to the not-so-distant time when Canada (which is even ahead of the United States in this area) will be laced together in a cable grid, providing viewers with the most programming possible and the maximum choice, most of it financed by subscription.

Counterpuncher

Trudeau People's Napoleon?

By DOUGLAS FISHER, from Ottawa

The fracas of Prime Minister Trudeau with dissidents in Vancouver has triggered again a discussion among those in or close to politics.

It is sad that it should be about whether such incidents help or hurt him politically, not about what these confrontations may represent in a changing political process nor what they reveal about our prime minister.

It is widely believed, not least by the prime minister's own staff, that every time he encounters trouble and reacts strongly to it, his stock goes up with most people.

Bottle Shower

In the election campaign with the placard-carriers and youthful shouters in Rouyn or under the bottle shower on St. Jean Baptiste Day; in London when he told a doubting student not to come home if he didn't know that the constitution gave housing to the provinces and when he lambasted the "crummy" press; in Saskatoon when he lectured impolite wheat farmers on what was permissible on placards; and now Vancouver where the threat he made to a kid in Saskatoon was carried out on a handier portion of another young person's anatomy.

On balance, most of us who follow political affairs closely agree, some regretfully, with this calculation.

I believe, as one of his journalistic admirers would put it, that Trudeau continues to strike a resonance with an enormous number of Canadians, especially those impatient with the politics and politicians and the Parliaments we've had.

Baffling Enigma

On the other hand, one cannot help but react strongly to those who proclaim Trudeau is an enigma. They stumble from paradox to paradox in his conduct and styles and conclude that he is such a baffling enigma that no one really understands him.

What paradoxes am I talking about?

First, there are the simple ones: The middle-aged man who zips it like a latter-day Errol Flynn or, better, a Dustin Hoffman; the man who insists on privacy and his right to be alone and yet mugs to the crowd in slapstick, playing dead or miming his feelings.

These are the paradoxes easy to see.

Cliches Hated

There are others; significant ones, I believe. For example, he is alleged to have said before he went to Vancouver: "There is the need to explain people to people and people to themselves, much more than has ever been done. I personally never realized the extent to which the different parts of our country didn't explain themselves to each other . . . for example, I was getting cliches from the Prairies before I went there from my own peope, from some of our members of Parliament . . ."

Thus, Trudeau accepts the task of confronting the farmers, telling them the truth.

". . . I hate like heck to see that there's nobody telling the truth to the people, instead of letting them pick up the cliches."

Think a bit about the gall showing in that argument. Pre-Trudeau, the politicians, Liberals and otherwise, have not been telling the people like it is. Even his own MPs can't tell it like it is. He must and will.

Poor Speeches

Another more obscure but significant Trudeau paradox was touched on in a question examined by Robert Fulford in the latest Saturday Night: "Who can be writing all those terrible speeches for the prime minister?"

After an exegesis of many Trudeau speeches Fulford concluded that: "The man himself in the prime minister's office is boring, narrow-minded, and platitudinous. He is old-fashioned, mechanical and academic in the worst sense."

This is sacrilege; therefore Fulford goes on: "Of course we know this isn't true; we know from his spontaneous comments and from his background, that the prime minister is a man of wit and erudition . . . etc." The fault, claims Fulford, is with his speech writer or speech writers.

Is it? I've read most of the speeches and pored over the transcripts of the press conferences, read the speeches in Hansard and have listened to quite a few. I differ from Mr. Fulford on the prime minister and his speeches, text or aural.

He cannot give a set speech effectively.

Instead he opts for the press conference and the confrontation, the student talk-in gambit.

Why? Because he's much better as a counter puncher. He can be provocative in spurts.

The essential Trudeau is surely the one who has erected the big structure of experts beneath him, who has instituted a profusion of task forces and reviews (when in doubt, name a task force), who insists on Cabinet secrecy, who cuts down the three-minute mavericks, who has comparatively more time for students in a suitably public place than for his backbenchers, who talks of democratic participation but de-emphasizes the elected House of Commons, who demands the the conduct of a gentleman but ridicules Real Caouette as a simpleton or the work of Bob Stanfield in Nova Scotia and T. C. Douglas in Saskatchewan without a tremor about his past history of dilletantism and disappearance.

Crude Signs

Here is a people's Napoleon who turns the crude signs and raucous rudeness of a minority into victories. R. B. Bennett had his jeers from the unemployed; Mackenzie King got boos from the soldiers; John Diefenbaker was jeered in Sudbury and Lester Pearson in Vancouver.

And it hurt them. But they reacted limply. This prime minister fights back and its his rivals who are hurt.

Resolution to UN Today

Israel on Carpet Over Raids

UNITED NATIONS (Reuters) — A resolution condemning Israel for attacking alleged guerrilla bases in Lebanon has been drafted by a group of Afro-Asian Security Council members, it was learned Thursday night.

★ ★ ★

Diplomatic sources said the resolution will be introduced today. They said it demands Israel carry out no more raids and warns that "further effective measures" will be taken if Israel does not comply.

The sources said the draft will be introduced by Zambia, Senegal and Pakistan.

Sources said it appears likely the council will adopt the resolution although the U.S. and Britain probably will abstain because the resolution makes no parallel condemnation of Arab terrorist raids against Israel.

Israel says its attacks on Lebanon Monday were in reprisal for guerrilla activity.

As the debate opened Thursday, the Soviet Union urged the Security Council to condemn the Jewish state for its attacks on Lebanon. Ambassador Alekxei V. Zakharov demanded "effective measures to curb the aggressor" and pledged Russian support for the measures.

Ambassador Claude Chayet of France deplored all acts of violence in the Middle East, regardless of their origin.

Algerian delegate Hadj Benabdelkader Azzout charged the Security Council with displaying "impotence" in its handling of the Middle East crisis.

Meanwhile, in Cairo an Egyptian military spokesman said Egyptian and Israeli gunners exchanged heavy artillery fire Thursday across the southern sector of the Suez canal.

★ ★ ★

In Tel Aviv, Israeli military sources said an Egyptian coastal battery was badly battered during an Israeli air strike Wednesday at Ras Adabiye on the Gulf of Suez.

Defection By Jet

UDINE, Italy (UPI) — A Hungarian air force major crash landed a Soviet-built MIG-19, jet fighter on a Second World War landing strip Thursday night and asked for asylum in Italy, authorities said.

Authorities identified the man as Maj. Josef Biro, about 40.

They said he told them he was chased by Hungarian jet planes until he crossed the border into Austria.

Red China Broadcasts Raise Spectre of War

HONG KONG (AP) — Communist China's provincial radios filled the air Thursday night with exhortations to "prepare for major war" and with denunciations of Russia for "daring to invade Chinese territory."

Typical of the broadcasts, over relatively low-power stations designed for local listening but monitored in Hong Kong, was Wuhan radio's demand that the people of central China's Hupeh province "realize and prepare for the enemy to launch a major war."

RUSSIAN ENEMIES

It held up the spectre of "nuclear war against China by the revisionist Russian enemies."

Changsha radio, voice of Communist party chairman Mao Tse-tung's home province of Hunan, demanded that its people and particularly its military "get rid of the false and deadly dangerous idea that fighting will occur only in border areas."

There have been clashes on the border between the Soviet Union and China's Sinkiang province.

NOTE REJECTED

In a dispatch from Peking Thursday, Agence France-Presse reported that the Soviet embassy had rejected a Chinese note blaming the Soviet Union for Wednesday's bloody clash on the Sinkiang frontiers.

Reuters news agency, in a Moscow dispatch, reported a large civil defence campaign is being mounted along the China border, but gave no further details of the Wednesday clash. Unofficial Soviet sources said about 30 Chinese were killed Wednesday and a similar number wounded. Soviet casualties were placed unofficially at two dead and seven wounded. The Kremlin did not confirm these figures.

U.S. Withdrawals Hinge on Attacks

From UPI

Increased enemy attacks in South Vietnam may affect President Nixon's plans for a troop withdrawal, and have already dimmed hopes for fruitful negotiations at the Paris peace talks.

From the western White House in San Clemente, Calif., came word that Nixon and the National Security Council, after a three-hour meeting, were watching Vietnam developments "very carefully."

A spokesman said increased enemy action "bears upon the president's thinking as he evaluates the situation in Vietnam on a day-to-day basis."

FIVE ATTACKS

Word from Saigon Thursday was that communist troops attacked four U.S. positions and ambushed an American convoy in Binh Long province but were repulsed with heavy losses.

U.S. casualties leaped from a two-year low for the week ending Aug. 9 of 96, to more than 200 the following week.

Commenting on the dimmed hopes in Paris Henry Cabot Lodge, chief U.S. negotiator, said the communists have "been preparing systematically for a new offensive" while the U.S. is withdrawing 25,000 troops and contemplating further withdrawals.

A spokesman said Lodge was returning to Washington today for about 10 days of consultations following Thursday's sessions.

Protests by Lodge and Pham Dang Lam, Saigon negotiator, over the new communist activity were ignored by delegates of Hanoi and the Viet Cong.

Legion Chief

Defence Cuts Decried

ESTEVAN, Sask. (CP)—Robert Kohaly of Estevan, Sask., president of the Dominion Command of the Royal Canadian Legion, said Thursday cuts in defence spending would leave the country unprepared to fulfil its role as a peace-keeping force in the world and cannot be considered as being in the interests of true economy.

Kohaly was commenting on the announcement of Defence Minister Leo Cadieux that operations of five military installations in Canada would either be ended or trimmed for an estimated saving of $19,000,000.

POSITION CLEAR

"Our position has been made clear many times, and that is that we are opposed to any cuts which would render Canada unable to carry out its traditional duties or which would not allow us to promote a reasonable state of preparedness," Kohaly said.

He said that Canada in the past had filled an honorable role in peacekeeping duties around the world and that its capability in this regard should not be allowed to lapse because of insufficient funds.

Further, Kohaly said, it was necessary to maintain a strong cadre of trained personnel with the necessary esprit de corps to step into the breach when an emergency arose.

'TOM-FOOLISHNESS'

"What the Legion see is the Canadian defence forces becoming an arm of the civil service," he said.

Drastic cutting of defence forces and of volunteer reserves was "tom-foolishness" in a country which had the only volunteer system left in the world, he said.

Thatcher Backs Trudeau

REGINA (CP) — Premier Thatcher of Saskatchewan, who said he is becoming "much more enthusiastic" about Prime Minister Trudeau, Thursday said he "heartily endorsed" a proposed tightening up in federal government spending.

"Federal taxes just can't go any higher," said the premier, who also expressed support for Trudeau's decision to keep away in future from open-ended federal-provincial programs and spending that cannot be controlled.

"It might hurt us in some ways, but I have to agree with the principle, since we are trying to do the same thing here," Thatcher said in an interview.

Striking Oil Workers

More Picket-Lifting Sought

VANCOUVER (CP) — The British Columbia Supreme Court heard more injunction applications Thursday after striking oil workers appeared at 10 Lower Mainland locations.

Canadian National Railways applied for an injunction to halt picketing at its Port Mann yard and downtown diesel centre, where work was virtually halted. One construction company was granted an injunction to ban picketing at sites downtown and at Simon Fraser University in suburban Burnaby.

The picketers, totalling about 120, also appeared at the Saskatchewan Wheat Pool in North Vancouver, the Roberts Bank deepsea port site 25 miles south of the city and a number of city construction sites and service stations.

THIRD DAY

It was the third day of increased activity for the 550-member local of the Oil, Chemical and Atomic Workers' Union, attempting to force some progress in their three-month strike against six refining and distributing companies.

Tuesday they began picketing locations they said were using oil products branded as "hot," disrupting bus service in Vancouver and Victoria, Canadian Pacific ferry service and a chemical plant and closing a lumber mill.

Injunctions Wednesday prevented further picketing at these locations.

R. T. (Buck) Philp, international representative of the OCAW, Wednesday said if nothing comes of the union's current actions, "We will operate a hit-and-run picketing campaign against certain large companies and various major petroleum users."

The union is on strike against Imperial, Gulf, Standard, Shell, Texaco and Home and seeks a pay raise of $1 hourly on rates ranging between $2.95 and $4.05.

Meanwhile, fresh meat was reported on sale in one downtown Safeway store Thursday while 800 meatcutters remained out on strike.

Company officials said only that there were some items of frozen meat on sale.

TWO OPEN

Two more Super-Valu stores opened in the city, operated with supervisory personnel and without meat.

The butchers were locked out May 24 after threatening to strike for a $1 hourly increase in one year and a four-day, 36-hour work week instead of five days and 40 hours.

Grocery clerks Wednesday crossed butchers' picket lines at five Lodrm stores while other trades refused to cross the lines.

Bridge Honor Urged

HALIFAX (CP) — A 20-foot totem pole sent here from British Columbia for the Canada Games should be mounted on the new harbor bridge leading to neighboring Dartmouth, Allen Stockall, vice-president of the Games, said Thursday.

Stockall, who is also a Dartmouth alderman, asked in a letter to Lee Burke, manager of the Halifax-Dartmouth Bridge Commission, that the totem pole be placed mid-way across the bridge, scheduled for completion later this year.

UNVEILED SATURDAY

The totem pole will be unveiled Saturday by Prime Minister Trudeau during the opening ceremonies for the Games.

"It would be most fitting if some permanent recognition could be arranged to commemorate" the first summer Games and the opening of the new bridge.

The new bridge, named the A. Murray MacKay bridge, will supplement the existing Angus L. Macdonald bridge.

Boy Scouts on Mountain

Two Killed by Lightning

CIMARRON, N.M. (UPI) — David Heely, 15, of Gobles, Mich., was peering through the rain, up the line of Boy Scouts hiking atop a 9,000-foot ridge, when the lightning struck, killing one Scout and their leader.

"I was the last boy in the line and all of a sudden you could feel the electricity going through you," Heely said Thursday, "I began falling slowly to the ground and noticed other boys also falling.

"Afterwards, there was a gunpowder-like smell in the air that seemed to last for a long time."

RUGGED RIDGE

Heely was among the 13 Scouts and two Scout leaders hiking the rugged "Tooth of Time ridge on the Philmont Scout ranch Wdnesday night. He said there were "a number of boys knocked down" by the bolt which he said sounded like "an explosion."

Scout leader Herbert Duthie, 52, and David Carlson, 15, both of Kalamazoo, Mich., were killed. Duthie's 15-year-old son, James, suffered a minor cut above one eye and was listed in good condition Thursday at the ranch hospital.

The Scouts were about 12 miles from the ranch's headquarters when the accident occurred. While several of the boys ran for help, others set up tent shelters and gave the victims first aid.

The second Scout leader, Guy R. Benson, also of Kalamazoo, said the Scouts attempted to give Duthie and Carlson artificial respiration and heart massages but, "after an hour or so, we realized it was of no value."

"These boys grew into young men very rapidly. They set up shelters in the area and lightning was still crackling all around," Benson said.

Ranch officials said it took nearly four hours to reach the Scouts' makeshift aid station and remove the victims' bodies.

Boat Tips, 150 Die

NEW DELHI (UPI) — One hundred and fifty persons drowned Thursday when a boat capsized in the Ganges River, the Press Trust of India reported. The report did not give details of the tragedy except that it happened near Monghyr City in Bihar state.

Californians Scare Birds Off Poisoned Lake Basin

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (UPI) — State and federal wildlife authorities took to air boats and an airplane Thursday to scare off some 100,000 migratory birds from landing on water tainted with a deadly poison.

Waterfowl botulism — a disease which affects waterfowl only — has killed almost 10,000 birds so far, with losses in the past two days alone more than 800 — mostly pintail ducks, according to the California department of fish and game.

The toxic water is located in the Tulare Lake basin. The botulism is caused by bacteria in the soil which grows swiftly in shallow flooded areas during warm termperatures.

To stop the birds from landing, state game officials along with the federal bureau of sports fisheries and wildlife harass the birds with the fast-moving air boats and low flying airplanes.

Officials have called for volunteers to aid them and are borrowing equipment from nearby states.

Bicentenary of Birth

Tourists Cram Corsica For Napoleon Celebration

AJACCIO, Corsica (UPI) — An estimated 100,000 tourists crammed into this island Thursday on the eve of ceremonies capping more than three months of celebrations marking the 200th anniversary of the birth of Napoleon Bonaparte.

President Georges Pompidou was to arrive here this morning from his vacation at Bormes les Mimosa to deliver a 30-minute eulogy and to attend a grand mass held in the open air.

ITALIAN ORIGIN

The celebrations of the birthday anniversary of the emperor began April 28 and have included at least four big exhibits dedicated to the life and times of the man who rules France for 10 years between 1804 and 1814.

The whole of Corsica has joined in the festival honoring their favorite son. Napoleon was born here of an Italian family a year after the island became part of France.

Napoleon himself paid little attention to his home after he achieved power. Now Corsicans are reaping the benefits with sales of Napoleonic souvenirs and a tourist influx.

Charles de Gaulle, who resigned as president of France April 28, had personally supervised the preparation and was to have delivered a major speech at the celebrations.

POMPIDOU SPEECH

Pompidou's speech is not expected to be of such major importance as de Gaulle's might have been, especially since the new president does not share his predecessor's admiration for Napoleon.

The rest of France also was joining in the celebrations, with ceremonies planned in numerous cities and towns on a holiday coinciding with Ascension day.

Red Spy Boat Kills Two

SEOUL (AP) — A North Korean spy boat attacked a South Korean fishing craft, killing two South Koreans and wounding three. South Korea's counter-espionage command said the spy vessel was disguised as a fishing boat.

Bonn Drops Bishop Probe

FRANKFURT (AP) — A West German prosecutor decided anew Thursday to drop the case against Most Rev. Matthias Defregger, Roman Catholic auxiliary bishop of Munich, who passed along an order for the 1944 reprisal shooting of 17 Italian villagers.

★ ★ ★

The decision by Frankfurt District Attorney Dietrich Rahn was greeted with "satisfaction" by the Vatican. A spokesman for the Munich archdiocese hailed it as meaning that the bishop is "fully rehabilitated."

But Italian police are reported continuing their investigation against Bishop Defregger, who was a Wehrmacht captain when he passed on the June 7, 1944, execution order at the Abruzzi village of Filetto de Camarda, east of Rome. The police investigation at L'Aquila, near Filetto, could lead to an extradition request by Italian authorities.

The Frankfurt district attorney confirmed Bishop Defregger's contention that he had protested repeatedly for humane reasons against the execution order of his division commander—although he considered the order "legally justified."

"When the protests proved futile and two officers of the division staff appeared to supervise the carrying out of the order, he delegated the execution to a lieutenant of his unit."

Schreyer Prepares Long List

Medical Care Cost to Drop

WINNIPEG (CP) — A throne speech crammed with proposed legislation Thursday dispelled forecasts by Premier Ed Schreyer that the summer session of the Manitoba legislature would be a housekeeping chore.

The speech, delivered by Lt.-Gov. Richard S. Bowles at the opening of the first session of New Democratic Party power in the province's history, forecast at least 20 pieces of legislation.

A promise by Mr. Schreyer in the June 25 election campaign to take immediate action to reduce medical care premiums was taken care of in the speech.

After the party's narrow victory in defeating the Conservative government of Walter Weir, Mr. Schreyer said the reduction would be a priority item in what he hoped would be a four-to-six-week summer session.

The speech forecast the government would move to "reduce substantially" the premiums, but did not spell out details on financing. The premiums now are $9.80 a month for families.

NEED MORE MONEY

"In order to provide funds from consolidated revenue for this purpose there will have to be increases in revenue estimates at the present session or for the next fiscal year," the speech said.

The government has been studying methods of shifting costs to another source but believes an immediate tax increase would not be necessary in view of increased revenues.

The speech said the program presented is only a "modest portion" of what the government plans during its tenure.

OMBUDSMAN OFFICE

Among other major legislation forecast is establishment of an ombudsman, lowering the voting age to 18 from 21, consumer protection measures, changes in agriculture marketing boards and changes in workmen's compensation benefits.

A large portion of the 1,600-word speech was taken up with plans to reform the legislative operation on the lines of recent changes made in the House of Commons.

Reorganization of government departments, initiated by the Weir administration, is to be held until the NDP has time to assess their operation. However, the speech indicated the government is studying setting up a department of urban affairs and that legislation could be introduced this session.

The speech said the reassessment of government structure is considered necessary as an essential prelude to plans they (the government) have for re-evaluating all programs of government."

The government plans an all-party committee to study parliamentary reform and "to propose measures to improve the efficiency of government, to strengthen the role of the legislature in regard to the executive arm of government, and to increase public involvement in the affairs of government."

"As part of this process," the speech said, "it is proposed to appoint two members of the legislative assembly to assist my ministers in their duties."

The speech offers increased grants to urban transit systems, now based on three per cent of gross revenue and expected to climb to five per cent. These grants involve systems in Winnipeg, Brandon and Flin Flon.

The municipalities are to get greater authority to spend money and create debts for projects they have chosen for the province's centennial in 1970.

British Scientist Finds Insulin Crystal Form

STONY BROOK, N.Y. (Reuters) — Dr. Dorothy Hodgkin, British Nobel Prize-winning scientist, announced Wednesday the discovery of the crystalline structure of insulin, the life-saving drug used by diabetics.

Dr. Hodgkin made her announcement at a news conference held on the first day of a 10-day meeting of the eighth international congress of crystallography at the State University of New York.

Scientists at the meeting believe the discovery could lead to an understanding and elimination of the side effects of insulin.

Speech Scares Weir

WINNIPEG (CP) — Opposition Leader Walter Weir said Thursday there is a "scary element" in the throne speech outlining the Manitoba New Democratic Party government programs.

Weir, whose Conservative government was defeated in the June 25 election by the NDP under Ed Schreyer, referred in an interview to Schreyer's plan to try on an experiemental basis without additional salary the appointment of two MLAs as cabinet assistants.

EFFECT QUESTIONED

In the same breath he questioned whether those two chosen would exercise any sway in the economic decisions of the executive.

"I don't know the purpose of these fellows," the former premier said.

"I hope that it is not any Marxist or Communist control of economic opinions that exists in the minds of some members of that (the NDP) caucus.

"Something we don't need in Manitoba is that type of control over our economic development."

Lornex Deal Near Climax

TORONTO (CP)—Rio Algom Mines Ltd. said Wednesday it is conducting final negotiations with a consortium of six Japanese copper smelters and three Japanese trading companies to sell them the entire output of the Lornex copper mine in British Columbia, when the mine goes into production in 1972.

Under the agreement, subject to Japanese government approval, the Japanese will buy 55,000 short tons of copper annually for 12 years. Based on present world copper prices the total contract would be worth about $500,000,000.

Rio Algom owns about 36 per cent of Lornex Mining Corp. Ltd., which owns the mining property, and has management control of the mine.

Railway Left In Midair

EDMONTON (CP) — Heavy rains last week resulted in $500,000 damage when a 4,000-foot section of the Alberta Resources Railway roadbed was washed out, railway officials said. A railway spokesman said tracks were left suspended up to 40 feet high in some places when cascading water undermined the roadbed.

Northwestern B.C. Yields New Oil Find

FINE HARVEST of wheat if frost holds off is prospect contemplated by Laurence Denis standing in father's wheatfield near Saskatoon—(CP).

Natural gas is reported to have been found in an area hitherto dominated by the mining industry.

The find, about which details are so far lacking, was made by Dome Petroleums, in partnership with Canadian Pacific Oil and Gas in the Bowser Lake area north of Stewart.

The well was drilled in the Bowser sedimentary basin and was scheduled to go to 10,000 feet.

SIGNIFICANT

It was the first well to be drilled in the area, although it has been known as a likely spot for some time.

Only 20 miles from tidewater, a major discovery of oil and gas in the area could be of great significance to the province.

Several other oil companies hold exploration permits in the area, including Silver Arrow Explorations Ltd., a Vancouver company which has just announced acquisition of exploration permits in the area over 319,581 acres.

The Stewart area has produced a number of successful mines in the past, and the Bowser basin is not far from the Leduc Glacier where Granduc is developing a massive copper mining operation.

GERMANS BOLSTER DOLLAR

A new twist to the current currency crisis came Thursday when the West German federal bank had to step in twice with bids to stop a slump in the price of the U.S. dollar.

The German bank bought U.S. dollars first at 3.9750 marks and later at 3.9740 in its effort to maintain the stability of the dollar.

Last week the dollar bought four marks.

With the pound also under pressure since last weekend's devaluation of the French franc, everything is conspiring to make it more difficult for the Germans to keep their strong mark from an upward evaluation.

WORLD'S STRONGEST

The large supply of U.S. "Eurodollars" held in Germany and other European countries make it important for the dollar value to be maintained.

The pound in London fell to $2.3813 in U.S. dollars, its lowest since November 1967, and the Bank of England was thought to have intervened to prevent its falling further.

At New York, the pound was down 5-16th cents and at Montreal it was down 7-16th cents.

CEMENT PLANT BUSY

A drop in first-half net profits of Ocean Cement and Supplies Ltd. is blamed on the cold weather in the early part of the year when for almost two months frost and snow brought construction work in the province nearly to a halt.

The net earnings of $926,000 (90 cents a share) compared with $1,025,000 (99 cents) in the first half of 1968.

Despite the bad start, business was brisk and by mid-year the gross revenue was higher than a year ago.

The cement plant at Bamberton is working at capacity and shipments on a long term export cement contract have commenced.

Barring difficulties in obtaining interim loans for builders, the company expects the second half to be a good one.

□

PRICE HIKE SOUGHT

Northern and Central Gas Corp. Ltd. says it intends to apply for a rate increase in its price of natural gas in order to offset increased interest rates and other costs.

In the first half of 1969 N and C had a net income of $9,045,000 (78 cents) down from $9,192,000 (80 cents) a year earlier.

EFFICIENCY ESSENTIAL

The only way in which Dominion Stores can meet the rising cost of doing business is improved efficiency at every step of the complex job of getting food from producer to consumer.

T. G. McCormack, president, in an interim report says that this is what Dominion is striving to do.

Despite this the net earnings for the first quarter ended June 20 were down to $2,438,311 (30 cents a share) from $2,777,011 (34 cents) in the corresponding quarter of 1968.

On the other hand sales were up 5 per cent at $155,695,308.

RECORD PROFIT

Record production figures in May and June together with improved prices for copper enabled New Imperial Mines Ltd. to increase its first half profits by nearly five times those of a year earlier.

Net income of $2,194,426 (34.3 cents a share) compared with $440,400 (7.2 cents) a year ago.

WILL HELP ELK FALLS

Crown Zellerbach International Inc. announces a plant expansion for its Dutch affiliate, Crown-Van Gelder, that will increase the kraft pulp export market for the Elk Falls mill at Campbell River.

A $20,000,000 machine to handle specialty kraft papers in the Dutch mill will be installed for startup in late 1971.

Crown Zellerbach Canada is the Dutch plant which now the prime supplier through Elk operates with a single paper-Falls for the kraft pulp used at making machine.

Grain Fight Suggested

SASKATOON (CP) — Roy Atkinson, president of the National Farmers Union, said Thursday Canada should fight other wheat exporting countries for world markets.

"The federal government should serve notice to the other countries that if they are going to engage in (a price) war, Canada has $500,000,000 to be used to support the price of wheat in export."

Atkinson said Canada should admit "that we're in a full-fledged price war," and could throw some coarse grains into world markets, affecting corn and sorghum trading.

Ottawa eventually would have to support wheat exports, but the move likely would not come until many western farmers and businessmen had suffered.

Alberta Looks To Japan

EDMONTON (CP) — An Alberta government spokesman said Thursday the cabinet is studying an Alberta trade promotion office in Tokyo, expected to cost at least $100,000 a year to maintain.

An industry department spokesman said Ray Ratzlaff, industry and tourism minister, is considering the office for next year's budget.

J. L. Peterson, trade department executive assistant, said deputy minister Richard Martland and an Alberta information bureau official studies the suggestion after a Tokyo visit this summer, but said the cost was not justified.

Patterson said the office would be particularly useful for current raw material agreements and new trade Alberta hopes to establish with Japan if it was more economical.

Pros Bomb Uplands

headed by diminutive Manitoba pro Wilf Homeniuk, who had a personal 65. Vollmer picked up $100 for his part in the win. Homeniuk got $75. Norman and Bond got $170 a piece for their low pro scores.

STILL MISSING

Top local shooter was Bill Wakeham, whose 66 gave an indication his mini-slump could be a thing of the past. Wakeham said he was pleased with his game but that he was still missing too many six-footers. Glen Meadows pro Dick Silverberg was a sharp 67, but one of the pre-tourney favorites, Vaughan Trapp of Oak Bay, had a very so-so 76.

Edmonton's Finn Sorenson was 65. CPGA champ Bobby Cox gave warning he could be ready to grab his fourth straight tournament victory by bagging 66, same as Gord Fairbairn of Pitt Meadows. The 67 shooters were Bill Wright of Edmonton, Bob Whisman, Everett, Wash., Dick Munn of Vancouver, Bob Breen of Toronto and Oregon's big Bob Boldt. At 68, Bob Kidd of Penticton and Norm Doyle of Montreal. At 69, Bob Panasiuk and Frank Whibley of Ontario, John Sirman of Fresno and Vancouver's Al Kennedy.

NO BOGEYS

Bond, a short, stocky young man from Toronto, got his record-breaking 63 in the morning round. He went out in 33, two under, and roared back in five under 30. He didn't have a bogey on his card.

Norman started like a house afire, knocking off five birdies in his first six holes. He completed the back nine in a six under 29 with a three-footer at 18.

His only real trouble came on the first when he hooked his drive into the trees, hit a weak second that left him in the rough and then fell short with his third. He pitched close enough for his bogey. He birdied seven and had a chance to make it eight under after a fine drive on the par four eighth. He was 35 feet long with his wedge, however, and left the birdie putt short and to the right.

'JUST WALK AROUND'

"I don't want to go in there and talk to them," Norman said later in the locker room when asked to meet reporters in the press lounge.

"I just want to walk around," said Norman, who on the first tee turned to a big gallery following his threesome and said:

"Why don't you all go home? You're bothering my playing partners."

HEADS SHAKEN

The birdie barrage left Uplands members shaking their heads, but some still kept the faith. Pro Johnny Wren stuck by his earlier prediction that the winning B.C. Open score would be no better than nine under for the 54 holes. Tournament committee member Bob Bell points to eight under and gave his reasons:

"Remember, we'll be able to find a few tougher pin placements than were out there today and they'll be playing off the back tees."

There is a strong suspicion they were both attempting to build up their courage. With good weather, the carnage should continue.

ALEC MERRIMAN

Tyee time is here, and while none of the favorite spots are rated hit, some tyee are being taken at the established places . . . Campbell River, Muchalat Inlet, and Franklin River in Alberni Inlet. Campbell River might be the best choice at the moment because the build-up is earlier there.

This weekend could see the peak of the tyee run entering Campbell River's tyee pool and the adjacent Frenchman Pool — just in time for the Sixth Annual Free Salmon Derby, sponsored by the Campbell River Courier.

There are a few coho being taken around Campbell River, but nothing too exciting.

It is much the same wherever you go on the Island now. There are salmon to be taken, but nowhere has it been hot.

For those with bigger boats, Savary Island waters have been providing fair coho fishing. From Bates Beach to King Coho, off Little River, has been fair for coho and chinooks at times.

Yellow Rock, off Chrome Island at Deep Bay, came on again fairly well for coho this week and the odd big chinook is being taken between Deep Bay and Denman Island on live herring.

Tom Macks and gold and orange Flashtails have been getting good numbers of coho at Qualicum. Strip casters and Buzz Bombs have also been getting some.

Grey Rocks off Nanoose has been giving up coho limits. Nanaimo waters have been fair for coho and the big chinooks are appearing, up to the 42-pounder landed by George Henderson off Gallows Point Monday.

Active Pass has been an on-again-off-again proposition, but Tumbo Island-East Point waters have had some good days for coho.

Cowichan Bay fishing started to pick up a bit on Wednesday, but it had been pretty slow, with just the occasional big chinook being taken. Antoine Bay was the best spot Wednesday and Thursday with Bob Bell taking 34:1 and 24:2-pounders, Brooke Tomlin a 21:6-pounder and Danny Taylor a 16:4-pounder.

Cowichan Canadian Legion will hold a derby in Cowichan Bay Saturday and Sunday with prizes for biggest spring, biggest coho and biggest dogfish.

It appears most of the big chinooks are in Sansum Narrows and very deep, but they should soon move into the shallower waters of Cowichan Bay and Saanich Inlet, where sports fishermen will get a crack at them.

Saanich Inlet has been giving up small chinooks at almost all the favorite spots from Deep Cove to Goldstream. Jim Gilbert has found them a little heavier — six to eight pounds — in Patricia Bay waters, and a little lighter — around five pounds — in Bamberton to Mill Bay log booms area. Off the Mill Bay marker they have been taking both deep and shallow lines, the latter needing eight to 12 ounces and nylon line.

Fishing pattern is changing back to that of eight or 10 which is starting to build up again. Bait is gathering around the years ago, when there was an abundance of small bait like that reefs and anglers are finding the old dodger and minnow combination is again working best.

There is a preponderance of undersized grilse in the Inlet and gear must be checked every 10 minutes or so to make sure you are not dragging a grilse which isn't big enough to make any show on the rod. Bigger lures, like Tomick plugs are a good way to avoid most of the small fish. No fall coho have showed in the Inlet yet.

Strip Teasers are taking some big chinooks off Trial Island and The Gap. Pedder Bay is rated fair for chinooks and cohos up to 10 pounds, and Rob Waters' 49.8-pounder Tuesday evening in Bentinck Island passage was the big excitement this week. Becher Bay has been fairly good for big chinooks and Otter Point has also been fairly good for chinooks up to 30 pounds, a few coho and a few pinks.

The pinks have to show in fair numbers in Sooke waters this weekend, or at least within the week, or it appears this year will be almost a write-off as far as the pink run is concerned.

Coho fishing has been quite good in Bamfield waters, off Village Island and Swell Rock. The Bamfield-Nitinat Road will be open this weekend from 2 a.m. Saturday until 6 a.m. Monday. Logging trucks will be on the road until 1:30 a.m. Saturday. The big chinooks are now being taken at the Nitinat Bar.

Fisheries guardian Stan Ratcliffe has found two boats drifting in Saanich Inlet . . . one a 16-foot plank batten-seam cabin boat with blue hull and white cabin, rigged for outboard, and the other a 12-foot clinker, white hull, brown trim and transom.

Homenuik Leads Tour Point Race

Only 32.3 points separate Wilf Homenuik of Winnipeg and Phil Giroux of Montreal in the race for 12 qualifying positions in the Canadian Professional Golfers' Association tour championship at Boischatel, Que., Sept. 11-13.

Homenuik, who finished in a three-way tie for second-place in the Alberta Open has 52.3 points going into the British Columbia Open which starts here today.

And Giroux, with 20.8 points, will have to improve his 14th place standing in the B.C. and Atlantic Opens if he wants to join the selected few for the $15,000 championship at the Royal Quebec Golf club.

COX IS IN

Bob Cox, of Richmond, newly-crowned CPGA champion, is the only automatic qualifier following successive victories in the Saskatchewan and Alberta Opens.

Wayne Vollmer of Vancouver, who blew a five-stroke lead in the final round of the Alberta tournament and finished four shots behind Cox, trails Homenuik by .50 points at 51.8 and Moe Norman has an even 50.

NEW WESTMINSTER — New Westminster Salmonbellies prevented Coquitlam Adanacs from setting a record for consecutive victories in the western senior lacrosse league Thursday, downing the visitors, 13-8.

Adanacs, who have already clinched the Western Lacrosse Association league title, tied the string of 16 straight wins first established by Nanaimo Timbermen in 1955 on Saturday when they rallied to edge New Westminster, 7-6.

SAME SPOILERS

It was only the second loss in 24 games for the Adanacs, and both have been to Salmonbellies.

New Westminster downed Adanacs, 12-7, on June 12.

The game was personal revenge for goalkeeper Joe Comeau, who was Coquitlam's second-string goalkeeper last season after winning all-star honors the previous season.

Comeau, who joined Salmonbellies a few games back, blocked 34 shots against his former teammates, 26 in the last two periods when the hosts outscored Adanacs, 9-4.

PACES WINNERS

Dick Crompton, with two goals, Kevin Parson, Mike Gates, Alec Carey, Paul Scriver, Jack Barclay and Bill Bradley replied for Adanacs.

TORONTO (CP) — Tom Wilkinson and Wally Gabler, battling for Toronto's No. 1 quarterback position, directed the Argonauts to a 29-3 victory over Winnipeg Blue Bombers in Canadian Football League action Thursday night.

Wilkinson, who has directed the Argos in their last two games, gave Toronto a 22-3 half-time lead. Gabler, last season's No. 1 quarterback, took over at the start of the fourth quarter and increased the lead by another touchdown before the 32,021 fans.

Wilkinson had been unable to get the club into scoring position through the third quarter.

IN SECOND PLACE

The victory gave Toronto sole possession of second place in the Eastern Football Conference with four points, two behind Ottawa Rough Riders and one ahead of Hamilton Tiger-Cats.

ARGO SCORERS

Wilkinson completed nine of 18 pass attempts for 180 yards during the first three quarters, and Gabler completed four of seven attempts for 94 yards.

ACTS AS QUARTERBACK

Winnipeg rookie quarterback Don Weiss gained 131 yards on 10 completions of 18 attempts. Rick Cassatta took over as Bombers' quarterback late in the game and his one pass attempt was incomplete.

Both clubs gained 145 yards along the ground, but Toronto had 19 first downs compared to Winnipeg's 14.

Weiss was the biggest ground-gainer for the Bombers with 42 yards on four carries, while Bill Symons of Toronto gained 58 yards on 15 carries.

Four Swim Marks Fall

MONTREAL—Four Canadian native swim records were established Thursday in the national championships at Pointe Claire, two by the brother and sister team of George and Susan Smith of Edmonton.

George, 19, won the men's 200-metre individual medley in 2:13.4 minutes while Susan, 16, took the same women's event with a time of 2:31.7.

Bob Kasting of Lethbridge set a native record of 54.4 seconds for the 100-metre freestyle in the heats and later won the event in 55.0.

Former Champs In Seniors Final

It will be an all-Washington State final in the 47th annual Seniors North West Golf Association tournament at Victoria Golf Club this morning starting at 9:30 a.m.

Defending-champion Harry Givan of Seattle beat Victoria's George Bigelow, who won it three years ago, 4 and 3 in one semi-final Thursday.

Givan's opponent will be Dr. Melvin Aspray of Spokane, a two-time winner of the seniors' title. Dr. Aspray won his semi-final match over Robert Palmer of Seattle, 3-and-2.

The five-day competition, which attracted 186 entries, finishes today with finals in all age-groups and flights.

Phils, Expos Flex Muscles

Philadelphia Phillies and Montreal Expos, lagging also-rans both, Thursday took a hand in major-league baseball's best championship race.

With nothing to hope for except finishing ahead of the last-place Expos in the National League East, the Phillies scored their second straight shutout over Atlanta Braves, 6-0.

SURPRISE REDS

And the Expos, trying desperately to avoid finishing the season as major baseball's losingest club, bowled over Cincinnati Reds, 6-3, to leave only three games separating the first five clubs in the National League West.

Results left Houston Astros, two percentage points ahead, and the Braves two and a half games behind the Reds and a half game in front of Los Angeles Dodgers and San Francisco Giants.

HIS FIRST HOMER

Woody Fryman stopped the Braves with five hits and connected for his first major-league home run as well as a single.

The Braves, who didn't get a runner as far as third base, gave the Phillies a lot of help. Ace Phil Niekro couldn't control his knuckleball, made four wild pitches and a throwing error and catcher Bob Didier was charged with two passed balls.

Reds, who had the help of three errors in scoring their runs, blew a 3-1 lead in the sixth inning, Expos scoring three times when Ron Brand hit a two-run double and pinch-hitter Ty Cline contributed a run-scoring single.

In Thursday's only other game, New York Yankees resumed their pursuit of third place in the American League East by squeezing past Chicago White Sox, 3-2.

Horace Clarke broke it up in the ninth inning, hitting a two-out triple and scoring on a passed ball. Jake Gibbs batted in the other New York runs with a sacrifice fly and a single.

Hockey Canada Retains McLeod

WINNIPEG (CP) — Jackie McLeod has been retained as coach of Canada's national hockey team for another year, Hockey Canada announced Thursday.

Appointment of "the only man I know who is qualified for the job" was announced at a news conference by Buck Houle, managing director of the corporation which operates the team.

Houle also announced Montreal Canadiens and Toronto Maple Leafs of the National League have contributed eight players for the national team's European tour next month and there is a possibility of getting others.

They will be arriving shortly for the training camp which opened here Thursday.

Houle, describing McLeod's job as one "nobody else in Canada would take for the last four years," said Hockey Canada would try to ease his burden by recruiting better players and was looking to maximum co-operation from the NHL.

The Leafs contributed Jim McKenny, Wayne Carlton, Danny Johnson, Gary Marsh and Andre Hinse for the European tour. Montreal came through with Al McNeil, Jean Gauthier and Phil Roberto and Houle planned further talks with General Manager Sam Pollock about other assistance.

Houle said the eight are committed only for next month's European tour which includes five games in the Soviet Union, two in Finland and two in Switzerland.

Little Leaguers in Extra-Inning Thriller

* * *

By JIM TANG

Don't try and tell it to any of the 1600 or so fans who were at Hampton Park Thursday night to watch the fifth game of the Canadian Little League championship.

It was won, 3-2, by Valleyfield, moving the Quebec-Maritimes champions into a showdown with unbeaten Vancouver Collingwood for the right to go to the world series and eliminating Edmonton Hardisty.

SUSPENSE MOUNTED

There was a general feeling when it started that it would be a tense affair, and it built up steadily in suspense until its seventh-inning climax. That it was decided on a two-out, bases-loaded error was disappointing but what happened earlier will be remembered longer.

Facing each other for the second time in the tournament were right-handers Tom Betts, tall and husky, and Pierre Rochefort, tall and slender — and the 3-2 loser Tuesday afternoon.

REALLY GOT EXCITING

Betts allowed only two hits, no earned runs, and struck out 15, but Rochefort made him a loser with clutch pitching not likely to be matched at Little League level for some time.

Both clubs scored twice in the third inning, Edmonton on two bases on balls, an error and a rousing double by Betts and Valleyfield on three bases on balls and a two-out grounder which escaped into the outfield. Then it really got exciting.

Edmonton loaded the bases with no one out in the fourth inning on a base on balls and two errors. But Rochefort, who made the first error, just reared back and struck out the next three batters, the last one on three successive called strikes.

REPEATS FEAT

The buzzing in the stands had hardly subsided when a double by Duncan Knoll, a base on balls and a throw to the wrong base on the following bunt put the first three Edmonton batters on base in the fifth inning.

Rochefort, who had ended the third-inning rally with his second strikeout, did it again, getting his sixth, seventh and eighth strikeouts.

He struck out the first batter in the sixth inning to account for eight outs in a row, ended the inning with his 10th strikeout and then let his teammates get the last three outs after walking the first batter in the extra inning.

Betts, meanwhile, was turning in a matching performance after his third-inning streak of wildness.

He got out of that jam with a strikeout, struck out two in the fourth inning and the side in both the fifth and sixth innings. There was every indication that the clubs would have to resume the game this morning when Betts again got into control trouble in the seventh inning.

SENSATIONAL THROW

He started the inning by walking Daniel Beland. Then Daniel LaMadeleine sliced a hard hit to left-fielder which rolled to the fence. But a sensational throw...all the way on the fly and right on the plate, cut down Beland trying to score.

LaMadeleine went to third base on the play. Betts walked Robert Gauthier but struck out the next hitter. With clean-up hitter Rochefort following, Betts worked carefully on Daniel Santerre but gave up his eighth walk to load the bases.

Rochefort hit a fly ball to centre-field but Jeff Milne didn't appear to realize that two were out, seemed to take his eye off the ball and let it trickle off his glove to the ground.

It left him the saddest youngster in Victoria, but he can remember it was his two-run single which beat Valleyfield in the first game, and he was the outfielder who prolonged the game a few minutes earlier with that amazing throw which cut down Beland.

Valleyfield and unbeaten Vancouver Collingwood play tonight at 6 and it's all over if the B.C. champions win. If they don't, the game to decide which team leaves for Williamsport and the world series on Sunday will be played Saturday morning at 9.

Defending open and close Canadian champion, Marlene Stewart Streit of Fonthill, Ont., defeated an unsteady Marilyn Karch of Calgary, 5 and 4, while Gail Harvey Moore of Vancouver overcame determined play by Liz Daniel of Oak Ridges, Ont., to win, 3 and 1.

All the winners Thursday except Mrs. Turnbull have won major open or close women's championships in Canada at least once.

Cowan Paces Ontario to Record Win

KITCHENER, Ont. (CP) — The Ontario team Thursday won the interprovincial team championship for the Willingdon Cup by 21 shots, the largest margin of victory since 1928 and the first time a team has finished under par.

Their nearest rival was British Columbia.

Ontario had a 575 total for the 36 holes, played concurrently with the Canadian amateur golf championship.

"I guess we just clicked as a team," said Jim Neale, 37, of Burlington, who had a 70 Thursday to match Gary Cowan, 40, of Kitchener.

Nick Weslock, 51, started with a disastrous 43 on the first nine Wednesday, but rallied on the back nine for a 34. He had 37-35—72 Thursday.

Ken Trowbridge, 21, of Bolton, followed a first-round 70 with a 74. He was out in a three-over-par 39, but came in with 35 for a 74.

B.C. TEAM SLUMPS

The B.C. team, all from Vancouver, slumped Thursday on the tight Westmount Golf and Country Club course, after being just six shots off the pace Wednesday.

John Russell had a 71, their best score, but Harry White had 76 and Mike Buckley and Doug Roxburgh both took 77.

B.C. had a 20-over-par total of 596, eight shots ahead of Alberta.

Cowan and two Americans, Leonard Thompson, 22, of Laurenburg, N.C., and Dick Siderowf, 32, of Westport, Conn., shared the lead in the Canadian Amateur championship with two-round totals of 140.

Thompson, the first round leader, slipped to 74 on Thursday while Siderowf followed his first-round 68 with an even-par 72.

One stroke behind the leaders is Wayne McDonald of Hornby, Ont., who carded a 70 Thursday after an opening 71.

Defending champion Jim Doyle of Winnipeg slumped to 80 and a 153 total to slip inside the 155 cut-off of the low 60 and ties for the final 36 holes today and Saturday.

GOVERNMENT OF BRITISH COLUMBIA
BRITISH COLUMBIA HEALTH BRANCH WATER QUALITY STANDARDS

To provide water of the best possible purity consistent with the protection of public health in the province, the British Columbia Health Branch has issued Water Quality Standards. These Water Quality Standards will be used as a basis for all decisions pertinent to public health respecting water uses and waste water treatment in British Columbia.

The Health Branch Water Quality Standards will protect public health by preventing the contamination of surface, ground and salt waters in British Columbia, and will:

1. Conserve in their best condition consistent with the requirements for the protection of public health all waters that have not yet been adversely affected; and
2. Restore to a condition which is necessary for the protection of public health any waters which are presently below the desired level of purity.

Water Quality Standards will be enforced by the Water Resources Service and the Department of Health and other interested agencies so that all regulating agencies are co-ordinated in a single joint effort to protect public health and prevent water contamination.

The quality standards of receiving waters, as established by the Health Branch to protect public health, are used as qualifying standards by the Pollution Control Board in the issuance of permits for all types of effluent discharge into any body of water in or bordering British Columbia.

Nine Fire 69s to Share First-Day PGA Lead

DAYTON, Ohio (AP) — Tom Weiskopf, leading the field going into the last two holes, collapsed Thursday and left the first round lead in the Professional Golfers Association national championship in a nine-way tie, the biggest log-jam of the season.

The number of leaders was larger than the number of demonstrators who showed up in an announced plan by a civil rights group to disrupt this 51st national championship, one of the world's four major tests of golfing greatness.

Tied at 69, two under par, were Larry Mowry, Bunky Henry, Charles Coody, Bob Lunn, Johnny Pott, Tom Shaw, Larry Ziegler, former title-holder Al Geiberger and Ray Floyd.

The mild demonstration, by a group demanding that some 3,000 free tickets be given to the poor, was peaceful and orderly. There were no untoward incidents.

The biggest problems were reserved for the demanding 6910-yard NCR Country Club course, a tricky terror that Weiskopf appeared to have mastered before it snapped back.

Tom was four-under-par at the turn, birdied the 10th and seemed to be on his way. But he went over par on the 11th and 13th to drop back to three under par, one better than the nine in the clubhouse.

He missed a five-foot birdie putt on the 17th, then ran into disaster on the 18th. He put his second in a trap, failed to get out, came out 15 feet away and two-putted for a two-over-par six that dropped him back to 70.

Others in a large group at that figure included Jack Nicklaus, U.S. Open title-holder Orville Moody, Canadian Open champion Tommy Aaron and leading money-winner Frank Beard.

Some of the top names of the game had their difficulties with the hilly, sun-baked course, however. Lee Trevino had a 73. Three-time winner Dave Hill had a 74. Masters Champ George Archer was at 75. British Open title-holder Tony Jacklin had a 73.

"If I don't feel better Friday, I won't play," the game's all-time money champion said after walking off the course. "I won't play again until I can whip this thing."

"I don't want to say anything I'd regret," he said, "I'm just going to put my shoes on and get out of here. I'll be back tomorrow."

Of the leaders, the 215-pound Lunn had the most consistent round.

Ed cation is missing something

Education isn't just the three R's . . . it's the development of a child to his or her full potential. For this to happen the mind must be challenged, expanded, exercised . . . and the body encouraged to grow healthily, to acquire the recreational skills needed for a lifetime of leisure. Does your school have a gymnasium? playing field? music and art facilities? Is it a model for the good life? The present Finance Formula makes it impossible for every School Board to provide these facilities — it must be changed. Education's fourth 'R' is missing . . . in the election support the candidate who supports Better Education in B.C.

B.C. TEACHERS' FEDERATION "We are concerned"

is overcrowded Children need to be treated as individuals in a learning experience that grows more complex, more communicated, every day. How large are the classes in your schools? Experts say that in the important elementary years particularly, the pupil/teacher ratio must not exceed 25:1. Does your area measure up to this? Or is your child being short changed like thousands of others in B.C. In the election . . . support the candidate who supports Better Education in B.C.

B.C. TEACHERS' FEDERATION "We are concerned"

Education is taking off

but not in British Columbia Our children are grounded by a short sighted education policy that inhibits the use of new methods, new equipment, new approaches to the learning process . . . while society as a whole is experiencing sweeping changes, our teachers and pupils are tied to the old ways by a Finance Formula that provides very little for research and experimentation. Do the schools in your area have ample materials? Teacher Aides? Computer . . . and administration? Closed circuit television? Is your tax dollar being invested productively? Support the candidate who supports Better Education in B.C. in the election.

Federal Backing Uncertain

Waterfront Plan Menaced?

New government restrictions on ruban renewal aid appear to have cast a menacing shadow over Victoria's proposed $30,000,000 waterfront development.

Mayor Hugh Stephen said Thursday he could only hope the Wharf Street plan would proceed. But he could give no definite assurance to a worried Ald. Robert Baird, who raised the question.

The first warning came earlier from Robert Andras, minister in charge of housing. He said municipalities should suspend urban renewal schemes, or continue without assurance of federal help until Ottawa has worked out a long-term policy.

Ald. Baird said at Thursday's council meeting he thought the city had spent $20,000 to $30,000 in connection with plans for the project and he wondered if it might now be in jeopardy.

"I can only hope we can continue that scheme," Mayor Stephen said.

Saying it was vital to the future of the city, he added: "But as to whether it is in jeopardy or not, I cannot say."

The mayor said he had made a number of attempts through Victoria MP David Groos to have Mr. Andras come to Victoria in connection with the project.

"But certainly," he said, "if he doesn't come here, I'll go there."

There was some belief expressed Thursday that the plan would survive because it is the type Ottawa wants.

Municipal Affairs Minister Dan Campbell said at Campbell River he had reason to believe Mr. Andras approves such a development.

He said he spoke to him in Vancouver about it and that Mr. Andras appeared to agree with him.

Weekend Rains Lash Japan

TOKYO (UPI) — Torrential weekend rains in northern Japan caused six deaths and washed away 32 homes, police said. Three other persons are missing in the flood waters which damaged 1,590 acres of rice paddies, washed away roads and bridges and covered rail lines with debris.

Bus Walkout Scheduled

EDMONTON (CP) — A strike of 625 bus drivers and bus-maintenance workers was scheduled to begin this morning.

The city has offered a 19.68-per-cent wage increase over 28 months. The union is willing to accept the offer but on a 24-month basis.

In for Updating

Here from east coast to undergo a $3,300,000 conversion, HMCS Gatineau put into HMC Dockyard Thursday afternoon where refit job will be handled. Conversion, involving from 300 to 400 tradesmen, will include variable depth sonar, a rocket-assisted homing torpedo system, improved radar and electronic warfare system. Job is expected to take about 15 months. — (Kinsman)

Caddie 'Slavery'

Uplands Scorns Labor Charge

The Victoria Labor Council accusation that the Uplands golf club was guilty of "slave trading" through its method of hiring caddies for the BC Open golf tournament, was given short shrift by both Uplands executive members and the playing pros themselves Thursday.

Labor council secretary Larry Ryan said Wednesday the advertising promised jobs, but that when the boys began showing up, there just wasn't enough work for all of them. He hinted it might be wise for caddies to "organize" in the future to combat these tactics.

Club member and caddy master George Lindsay branded this ridiculous. "We made no promises of employment. We had to make sure we had enough boys to cover the number of possible jobs. I wonder why he (Ryan) didn't mention anything about the 150 boys who have been given work so far."

One touring pro said the same method is used at golf clubs throughout Canada and the United States and that in actuality, very few of them could be classed as caddies. "Let's say most of them are bag carriers and as such are quite well paid."

The minimum wage set for caddies isc $5 a round, but some players pay more, especially if they end up in the money."

Moose Jaw Fears Blast

MOOSE JAW (CP)—About a dozen families were evacuated from their homes early today as a "safety precaution" against possible explosion from a leaking storage tank at Gulf Oil Ltd. refinery.

Shortly after midnight an employee spotted a leak about halfway up in a 350,000-gallon tank. Gulf employees today were attempting to patch the leak and decrease the possibility of explosion.

End of Strike

SEPT-ILES, Que. (CP) — Operations resumed Monday at the Quebec North Shore and Labrador Railway and the Iron Ore Co. of Canada as 1,400 workers filtered back to their jobs following a three-month strike that tied up about 65 per cent of

Crash Death Inquest On Monday

A coroner's inquest has been called for 7:30 p.m. Monday into the traffic death of Ernest Brian Modeste, 19, of 1077 Modeste Road.

Mr. Modeste was a passenger in a car involved in a collision in 1000 block Esquimalt Road at 1:14 a.m. Wednesday. He died in hospital four hours later.

Coroner Edmond Jorre de St. Jorre said the inquest would be at Sands Mortuary but added that a directive from the attorney-general's department could quash the inquest.

Esquimalt police are investigating the cause of the collision.

Mr. Modeste's death was the ninth traffic fatality in the Greater Victoria area this year.

Kennedy Criticism Made by John D; Nixon Praised

OTTAWA (CP) — In an informal review of Canadian-American relations, John Diefenbaker, former Canadian prime minister, had praise for Presidents Nixon and Eisenhower and sympathy for former president Johnson, but criticism of John Kennedy.

Diefenbaker, now Conservative MP for the northern Saskatchewan constituency of Prince Albert, said President Nixon "has acted internationally in a way that gives new hope for mankind."

★ ★ ★

The former prime minister said he had many years previously held the view that Nixon would make a great president.

Diefenbaker, speaking to a reporter Thursday, summarized his informal remarks Wednesday to a group of 100 social studies teachers on a visit from New York.

He said the U.S. administration under Dwight Eisenhower "at all times during my period as prime minister did everything it could to remove causes of difference of viewpoint or actions on the part of the United States that might be detrimental to Canada."

Discussions with President Eisenhower prevented possible American actions that would have hurt Canadian wheat exports.

But President Kennedy "did not seem to have a realization that Canada was an independent nation." Diefenbaker said the late president "took the strongest possible objection" to Canadian wheat sales to Communist China.

He said he had no dealings with President Johnson, who was "the unfortunate inheritor of a policy in Vietnam from which there could be no withdrawal."

★ ★ ★

President Kennedy should not have committed troops to Vietnam, Diefenbaker said, but once involved the troops could not have been withdrawn without undermining the "spirit to resist" of peoples in southeast Asia.

Storm Aimed At Cuba Prison Isle

MIAMI (UPI)—Tropical storm Camille was born suddenly in the Caribbean 460 miles from Miami Thursday and aimed its building winds at the Isle of Pines and the rich tobacco fields of western Cuba.

Camille, third tropical storm of the season, carried 60 mile-an-hour winds in its infancy and was aimed on a northwestward course toward the Gulf of Mexico. Forecasters said conditions favored its intensification into a full hurricane.

The national hurricane centre said the Isle of Pines, where Fidel Castro has his political prison, and western Cuba were "definitely threatened" by the storm.

Victorians Welcome Visiting Cruise Ship

Rockland Debate Emotional

Home for Elderly Bid Delayed by Tie Vote

By DON COLLINS

An attempt to establish a home for the aged and disabled in the exclusive Rockland Avenue area produced an emotional battle at Thursday's meeting of Victoria city council.

And the usually quiet Ald. Lily Wilson, shaken by council's refusal to sanction the operation of such a home without further study, said:

ARBITRATION BOARD

"If this is not passed today it will go to arbitration. I have made inquiries and am confident it would be approved by the arbitration board."

She said she didn't think city council should put itself in a position where its land use would have to be governed by another body.

Said Mayor Stephen: "I don't think any council is going to be governed by duress of this kind."

COMMITTEE DISAGREES

The home in question is at 914 St. Charles. The Victoria Advisory Planning Commission recommended earlier that council reject its use as a home for the aged. A council committee disagreed last week.

The area concerned is zoned in such a way that a community care facility can only be established with the approval of council.

Aldermen Percy Frampton and Ian Stewart said they were sympathetic to Ald. Wilson's description of the urgent need, but said the entire Rockland situation should be studied first.

REVIEW PASSED

The move to establish the home was defeated because of a tie vote. Passed right afterward was a motion that an immediate review be made of all the regulations applying to Rockland building and land use.

It carried the stipulation that the study be completed as soon as possible.

Ald. Wilson had sought to have a time limit put on such a study and was upset.

"For the last four years I have been trying to get something like this through council," she said. "I'm tired of waiting. I don't think I can wait any longer."

Earlier, she told the meeting there was an urgent need for such a home in the area.

She described it as a beautiful old home with special gardens, a pool, teahouse and other features which wouldn't be changed. It is tended by a gardener.

APPROVAL GIVEN

About 60 per cent of the people in the immediate neighborhood had already voiced approval of such a change and 55 people wanted their names on a waiting list.

Rest homes have been unable to meet 20 to 30 requests per day for boarding accommodation, she said.

According to the alderman, some persons had already been knocking on the door of the would-be home for the aged to make inquiries.

OTHER HOMES

She pointed out also that zoning had permitted conversion of other homes in the area for apartment use. Despite the exclusive appearance of the neighborhood concerned, only 21 of the 63 homes hadn't been altered by apartments.

Gerald Dewhurst, who wants to operate the home, was at the council meeting but wasn't able to make his views known.

After the meeting he explained the block concerned already contained three rest homes.

Council approved Ald. Ian Stewart's motion that a committee be struck to study community care needs throughout the city.

Telegraph Cut Protest Urged by City

Victoria city council made it clear Thursday it isn't satisfied the city is getting the telegraph service it merits.

Mayor Hugh Stephen won agreement to his suggestion that a protest be voiced at September's conference of the Union of British Columbia Municipalities. The complaint would come from the Vancouver Island municipalities as a group, and not just Victoria.

The city complained earlier about reduction in the hours of operation at the Victoria office of Canadian Pacific-Canadian National Telecommunications.

* * *

Company and government officials gave assurance service would remain as good as usual through use of direct telephone to the Vancouver office.

"But there was one point overlooked by all concerned," city manager Dennis Young told council. "In not all instances is the telegraph service open to all recipients—not all of them possess phones."

* * *

He added: "A telegram of some urgency sent from Winnipeg on a Friday night would not reach these people until Monday morning.

Ald. Robert Baird felt Victoria had been slighted.

"Vancouver receives direct service, whereas we in Victoria have to be satisfied with second rate service," he said.

Personality Slips By

Amidst a flurry of promises from candidates that they will not attack personalities, but wage a clean election campaign, strictly on the issues, there is at least one ardent recalcitrant.

Lighthouse philosopher Bill Scott made it a "personal issue" Thursday that cabinet minister Waldo Skillings is a "Social Credit fraud — one of the worst." His running mate William Chant, however, is a "genuine disciple and student" of Socred economic theory, said Mr. Scott, himself a former Social Crediter.

Teamster Move Ignored

Teamsters Union officials are seeking a shutdown of all industrial operations in the province, which would give Premier Bennett the election issue he is seeking, according to B.C. Federation of Labor officials.

In a statement from Vancouver late Thursday, Ray Haynes, secretary-treasurer of the B.C. Federation of Labor said officers have decided not to attend a meeting with officials of the Teamsters Joint Council to discuss the 13-week-old oil workers strike.

The meeting is scheduled to start at 10:30 a.m. today.

GENERAL STRIKE

"The Federation is persuaded that the Teamsters leadership, under the guise of assisting the oil workers and their flying squad of pickets, are preparing to bring about a situation which would gradually shut down industrial operations in the province and create a condition similar in effect to a general strike," said Mr. Haynes.

"Such a move is obviously to give Mr. Bennett an excuse to use the compulsory section of Bill 33 and gain for himself the election issue he has been so desperately seeking.

"The B.C. Federation of Labor has already requested the appointment of a mediation officer to help resolve the dispute, but the federation request has been refused by Labor Minister Peterson," he said.

MEDIATOR

"Officers have now urged the oil workers union to request the government to appoint a mediator to bring about a settlement of the 13-week dispute.

"We would be hopeful that in the interests of the workers, the premier and the labor minister would be more sympathetic to this request coming from the oil workers union," concluded Mr. Haynes.

Only One China—Consul — Formosa Still Friendly

'Chinese-Canadians Backing Chiang'

By BILL STAVDAL

China said in Victoria Thurs- will continue to support Chiang Kai-shek's government in Formosa even if the Canadian government recognizes Red China, a senior official of Nationalist Most Chinese-Canadians day.

Kao Hsin, chairman of the Overseas Chinese Affairs Commission of the Republic of China, made the prediction during "a courtesy call" on Victoria's Chinese community.

* * *

Speaking through interpreter Yi-Fei Wang, Chinese consul in Vancouver, Mr. Kao also said that Formosa would not move first to break relations with Canada if Canada recognized Red China.

He spoke in an interview at the Chinese Consolidated Benevolent Association hall on Fisgard Street.

Approximately 4,000 Chinese-Canadians live in Victoria, out of B.C.'s 20,000. Altogether in Canada there are about 70,000 Canadians of Chinese descent, said the consul.

* * *

The question of diplomatic recognition among the three governments of Canada, mainland China and Formosa (Taiwan) arose this year when negotiations began between Canada and the Communist Chinese.

Mr. Kao maintained Thursday that Chiang Kai-shek's government remains the legitimate one and that "a rebellious group" is in control of the mainland for the time being.

* * *

"Sooner or later the government of the Republic of China under Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek will go back to the mainland," said Mr. Kao through his interpreter.

The Communist government "could collapse at any time," he asserted. "It's so unstable and the people are very unhappy."

Mr. Kao said that Chinese in Britain, Holland and France retained personal loyalty to the Formosa government after their countries recognized Red China. So would Chinese-Canadians, he forecast.

Victoria's Chinese community is generally anti-Communist.

* * *

Mr. Kao said:

Asked if this represented an alteration of the Nationalist Chinese position that there is only one Chinese government — as opposed to the "two Chinas" concept — Mr. Kao amended:

* * *

External Affairs Minister Sharp announced last January that Canada would approach Communist China on the question of establishing diplomatic relations.

In an interview he conceded that such a move could mean a break with Nationalist China "because the government of Formosa today pretends to be the government of mainland China . . ."

Talks later began in Stockholm.

On Jan. 24, Prime Minister Trudeau told the House of Commons:

"There is no question of sacrificing the people of Formosa. The position of the government is that the fate of the people of Formosa should be determined by those people themselves."

'Province Should Get Bridge Complaints'

Because Phil Gaglardi is no longer highways minister, new petitions should be sent in to the provincial government if his promises are to be fulfilled, Social Credit MLA Herbert Bruch told about 70 people Tuesday at an all-candidates election meeting in Port Renfrew.

He was answering complaints that the Harris Cove bridge which spans the San Juan River at Port Renfrew has not been replaced despite Mr. Gaglardi's promises, made in Mr. Bruch's presence.

The bridge, which has long been a bone of contention between Port Renfrew residents and the provincial government, is a 1,200-foot one-lane wooden structure.

It is crossed twice daily by children in the school bus, as well as by men on their way to work.

In the rainy weather the school bus stops at the bridge and lets the children walk across the structure. It then follows slowly and picks them up on the other side.

There have been various complaints and petitions, particularly from mothers who have said they feared for their children's safety on the bridge.

The bridge, built in 1930 at a cost of $25,000, has cost more than $3,000 in repairs since that time.

Esquimalt NDP candidate Jim Gorst, attending the meeting on his birthday, spent the day in Port Renfrew and inspected the bridge. He said it should be condemned.

Mr. Gorst said that with a few notable exceptions, Esquimalt riding has been ignored in the provincial highway building program.

He cited the lack of good bridges on the Sooke Road, and the state of the gravel road from Jordan River to Port Renfrew as examples of neglect.

Liberal candidate Fred Phillips was unable to attend the meeting.

Band at PNE

The Naden Band of CFB Esquimalt will lead the PNE parade Saturday in Vancouver and then will play for the exhibition opening ceremonies. The band is directed by Capt. Leonard Camplin.

Irish Tour Proves Unique

Singing Along in a Killarney Cart

DOROTHY WROTNOWSKI

The first of our four days in Killarney we were let loose on our own — to sightsee, shop or what have you.

The shops were fascinating — all those lovely wool tweeds in such gorgeous shades, the Irish knit sweaters that simply everyone, tall, short fat or thin, buys.

Our money is so good over there that things seem inexpensive. So much so that you have to keep reminding yourself that you can't bring more than $100 of loot back to Canada.

Of course, you can and do buy gifts not exceeding $10 to send back to your friends.

Besides all the lovely woollen things there are the celebrated laces and crystal and Connemara marble jewelry, to mention just a few.

In Killarney had my first visit to a singing Irish pub and it was such fun it took me all evening to drink one glass of Guinness.

Joyful Place

It is hard to describe an atmosphere of a place but I can say that Killarney pub was certainly a joyful place. There was singing all evening — such soft, lovely voices. And everyone joins in, but the evening I was there only men came up before the mike.

I have a tape recording of the evening and funnily enough my favorite is Someone to Love from Dr. Zivago, hardly an Irish tune. The only hitch in my recording is that we had to be up front to get the sound and the only table up there was beside the men's washroom. That banging door has to be explained.

Funny how one does things while travelling that they wouldn't dream of doing at home. Like going for a ride in a jaunting cart. Touristy, but wouldn't have missed it for anything.

These little carts have two seats back-to-back facing sideways and driver's seat up front in the centre. We went along the shores of the lower Killarney Lake out to Muckross Castle at such a peaceful, leisurely pace that you could see everything there was to see.

Our driver was a sad looking man with sleek, stove polish black hair. If you don't know how to manipulate getting up into one of these carts you can be quite awkward. None of we four did know. So the driver, not saying a word, heaved us up one by one. After our first stop I spied the pedal more or less concealed by the seat so found it easy to hop up and down.

Blue Ribbon

"You catch on fast" the driver said in a sombre voice and I felt as if he's pinned a blue ribbon over my ear. I think that was the only comment he volunteered throughout the beautiful drive.

We walked around the beautiful gardens of Muchross estate and admired the beautiful old rhododendrons, some at least 30 feet high and mammoth in girth.

Knowing that muck means pig in Gaelic I asked Michael if there was a pig connected with the history of the place. He told me that ross means crossing so that it must have been a pig's crossing at one time. Simple as that but hard to visualize.

On the Sunday morning, Marjorie Coppard, an English gal, and executive with a big English merchandising chain, and I decided to forego church and take a walk out to Ross Castle on the shores of the lake.

It was only about two miles from the Great Southern Inn (new motel) where we were staying. Along the way noticed a great patch of the most delicate looking white flowers with the most pungent smell. Wild garlic.

There was one of those fresh Irish breezes blowing off the lake so Marjorie and I headed for the lee side to just sit for awhile.

Keeper of Castle

Along came the keeper of the castle, a tall man who looked a bit like Abe Lincoln without a beard, and after failing to interest us in a tour of the ruins, sold us tickets on a sweep to benefit the church Boy Scouts. We bought, and he solemnly "hoped we would both win."

I already had my first legal Irish Sweep ticket in my pocket.

One day we took the Ring of Kerry tour out of Killarney and passed through the town of Killgorlin, famous for its Puck Fair, and lunched at The Hotel at Glenbeigh, a charming place.

I also remember looking down on Dingle Bay and wondered how it possibly could appear so vividly blue mixed with turquoise and washed with a pale mauve at the same time.

Fairy Ring

Somewhere along this tour high above the sea Michael pointed out a fairy ring in fields down below.

"Do you people really believe in fairy rings" someone asked. "I don't know whether we really believe in them or not, he replied, all I know is that not one man among us would even touch it much less disturb or break it any way."

Nearing the end of the tour but I can't remember whether it happened before or after we had stopped at Ladies View. That particular spot was renamed after Queen Victoria and her entourage stopped to admire the view of the lakes.

But anyway it was somewhere along toward the end of the tour when Michael said "we are now going to start a few miles of winding road nothing much interesting to see — so let's sing. Actually he was both right and wrong. It was a winding road but there was much to see. As a first-time visitor to the land I was amazed that all along that winding road we were in the midst of a grove — or almost a forest of rhodedendrons — massive great trees.

However, as I had already learned singing is a part of life to the Irish it goes without saying we sang.

Dear Henry

Then for a change of pace Michael asked if anyone knew Dear Henry. Marjorie did so they proceeded to sing-song the silly thing.

Most people know Dear Henry but I didn't, so for the benefit of those that don't, here it is:

There's a hole in my bucket, dear Liza, dear Liza, there's a hole in my bucket, dear Liza, a hole.

Then mend it, dear Henry, dear Henry, dear Henry, then mend it, dear Henry, dear Henry.

With what shall I mend it, dear Liza, dear Liza, with what shall I mend it, dear Liza, with what.

With straw, dear Henry, dear Henry, dear Henry, with straw, dear Henry, dear Henry, with straw.

The straw is too long, dear Liza, dear Liza, the straw is too long, dear Liza, too long.

Then cut it, dear Henry, dear Henry, dear Henry, then cut it dear Henry, cut it.

With what shall I cut it, dear Liza, dear Liza, with what shall I cut it, dear Liza, with what.

With a knife, dear Henry, dear Henry, dear Henry, with a knife, dear Henry, dear Henry, a knife.

The knife is too blunt, dear Liza, dear Liza, the knife is too blunt, dear Liza, too blunt.

Then hone it, dear Henry, dear Henry, dear Henry, then hone it, dear Henry, hone it.

With what shall I hone it, dear Liza, dear Liza, with what shall I hone it, dear Liza, with what.

With a stone, dear Henry, dear Henry, dear Henry, with a stone, dear Henry, dear Henry, a stone.

The stone is too dry, dear Liza, dear Liza, dear Liza, the stone is too dry, dear Liza, too dry.

Then wet it, dear Henry, dear Henry, dear Henry, then wet it dear Henry, dear Henry, wet it.

With what shall I wet it, dear Liza, dear Liza, dear Liza, with what shall I wet it, dear Liza, with what.

With water, dear Henry, dear Henry, dear Henry, with water, dear Henry, dear Henry, with water.

In what will I fetch it, dear Liza, dear Liza, in what shall I fetch it dear Liza, in what.

In a bucket, dear Henry, dear Henry, dear Henry, in a bucket, dear Henry, dear Henry, in a bucket.

But what made this rendition so funny was when they had finished, a rather flat voice said "Why didn't they use a soldering iron in the first place." The voice belonged to Ethel O'Neill of Berkeley, Calif., and she sure got a loud response.

★ ★ ★

Before we leave Killarney I must tell you about a droll sight I witnessed one day.

As I passed a church I noticed a goat with a long beard — made him look like a patriarch — mincing his way up the church walk, up the steps and right into the church.

I was curious but didn't like to ask if the old goat was a regular.

A Lovelier You

Happy Hunters Offered Coats of Many Hues

By MARY SUE MILLER

Now coming into your favorite stores, new fur coats are packed with fashion and fun. The fashion-y aspect stems primarily from a variety of shapes and lengths: Soft spare coats and jackets, very fluid and easy to wear . . . wrapped coats with the cling of supple fabric . . . coats that nip in at the waist and swing out to flare at the finish line.

Day and evening, lengths drop to the ankles or floor. But the newiest length is three inches below the knee. Of course the majority vote still goes to the hemlines that bare the knee.

★ ★ ★

The fun is found in nonesuch fur and nonesuch colors. Skins are being dyed in rainbow hues, even mink. And often they are cut to form geometric and patchwork patterns. Joseph's coat!

For instance, one designer shows mink patterned in purple, green, yellow and black geometrics. Another offers pale beige calf with a shaggy yak collar. "Conversation" furs — wolf, curly lamb, badger, fur seal, cheetah, rabbit — appear especially contemporary.

However, precious pelts are still a girl's most precious dream. From Kojah, the high-furred mink that doubles for sable, through fisher, leopard, Russian broadtail, to Persian lamb, fine furs are as much prized now as ever. And you just know it.

If you're on the lucky list for a winter pelt, August is the time to get the pick of what is new. Happy hunting!

Jackie Pregnant?

Checkup, Fainting Denied

ATHENS (UPI)—A leading Greek gynecologist denied today he had examined Mrs. Aristotle Onassis.

"The reports . . . are completely without foundation," said Dr. Thomas Doxiadis in a letter to the newspaper Estia. "I do not even have the honor of knowing Mrs. Onassis."

A French weekly newspaper which claimed earlier this week that Jacqueline was pregnant, said Doxiadis examined the former U.S. first lady.

The newspaper also claimed Mrs. Onassis, who married the Greek shipping magnate last October, fainted while shopping for antiques at a shop owned by Costas Haritakis.

Haritakis denied the report Wednesday, saying, "I know her very well and you can quote my denial."

A close friend of Onassis, Haritakis said he believed the couple did not plan to have any children.

Mrs. Onassis has not commented. She is still vacationing on the Onassis-owned island of Skorpios with her children.

. . . But Nancy Is

TORONTO (CP)—Retired skiier Nancy Greene Raine, gold medalist for Canada in the 1968 Winter Olympics, said Thursday that she expects her first child next January. Mrs. Raine, a native of Rossland was married to Canadian national ski coach Al Raine of Burnaby last April.

ANN LANDERS

Dear Ann: I just read the letter from Hirsute Hilda, the secretary who had to shave every day. It makes me sick that life is so unfair.

I am a 23-year-old boy and I have lots of hair on my chest and arms and legs, but my face is as smooth as a baby's backside. I shave twice a week, even though I don't need to. The doctor says there is nothing wrong with me — that these things happen now and then, and nothing can be done about it.

When I go to a movie for adults only, I carry my I.D. card. I also wear a sport shirt and leave the collar open so the cashier can see the hair on my chest.

Is there anything I can do to get the hair on my face to grow? Thanks. — Harry (Another embarrassment. This is my real name.)

Dear Harry: The doctor gave you the straight goods. Accept it. If it's any comfort to you, please know that millions of men consider shaving a nuisance and would like to trade your problem for theirs.

Marriage Lousy

Dear Ann: I'm 17, married 15 months and have a baby. My husband is 19. Bill has changed into a different person this past year. I can't believe it.

He is so jealous I feel like I'm in jail. If someone calls on the phone and it's a wrong number he says it was another guy. Last night he spent an hour looking for tire marks in the driveway. He worked late and was sure someone was here.

Tonight he went through my album and tore up all the pictures of my high school friends. I phoned Dad and asked him to come and get me and the baby. This marriage is lousy and I see no hope for the future. Please tell me where I can get a free lawyer. I want a divorce so I can start over. — Messed Up Girl.

Dear Girl: Start what over? Another mess? Here you are, 17 years of age, and already looking for a divorce. It won't solve your problem, Toots. It will only free you to make another lousy marriage.

Time to Grow Up

You need time to grow up and so does that active volcano who calls himself a husband. Stay apart a few weeks and then get some counseling.

□

Dear Ann: Several of us girls gave a lovely engagement shower for a co-worker. Ramona told us that her fiance's wife had agreed to a nice quiet divorce and the wedding could come off in the fall. The shower was held at my home and the gifts were beautiful.

Last week Ramona announced, with a good deal of embarrassment, that the man's wife has a heart condition and he cannot leave her. The wedding is off. She didn't say one word about returning the gifts. Later I asked her what she intended to do with all those lovely presents. She replied, "I'll keep them. They will come in handy when I meet someone wonderful."

Is this fair? We are — Burning on Michigan Avenue.

Dear Mich: Beat out the flames and forget it. You dummies gave a shower for a girl and a married man.

Price of Beef Holding Firm

OTTAWA (CP) — There is no relief in sight from the present high price of beef, the agriculture department reported Thursday in its monthly food outlook for September.

Pork supplies are increasing and some price reductions may be coming from that quarter. Egg prices, however, are expected to rise.

Pork: Supplies are up and prices may weaken.

Beef: Supplies are lower and the demand stronger. Prices are expected to remain firm.

Eggs: Prices for Grade A large are expected to rise. Smalls and mediums will be in plentiful supply.

Poultry meat: Chickens will be in adequate supply at steady prices. Heavy roasters may be higher. Turkey prices will be steady.

Peaches: Ontario crop and prices will be about the same as last year. In British Columbia prices will be higher as no commercial crop was harvested.

Grapes: A large Ontario crop with declining prices. British Columbia had a small crop and prices will remain strong.

Tomatoes: Good supplies at moderate prices.

Dry onions: Supplies will be lower than last year and prices will increase slightly.

Ottawa Tightens Spending Clamps

Urban Renewal Added to Squeeze

OTTAWA (CP) — The federal government's spending squeeze, aimed at a stand-pat budget next year, was further tightened Thursday as the clamps came down on federal aid to urban redevelopment projects.

Apart from a dozen or so projects now under consideration, the clamps will effectively suspend federal spending on the projects until they are subjected to a new long-term policy study. It could take up to a year, said Robert Andras, minister without portfolio who is in charge of the federal government's housing policy.

NATIONAL AUDIENCE

The announcement Thursday came just 10 hours after Prime Minister Trudeau told a national radio and television audience about his government's new economic policies that are designed to keep 1970-71 spending at this year's level. This will result in the elimination of 25,000 public service jobs — the majority of which will be achieved through attrition, although some layoffs might occur.

And just a few hours prior to Trudeau's announcement, Defence Minister Leo Cadieux gave details of how his department plans to hold the line on expenditures over the next three years by closing or trimming operations at five military bases.

OTHER DEPARTMENTS

Other departments are expected to announce details of their cost-cutting programs in the next few weeks.

As Andras moved into the savings spotlight on the heels of the prime minister's announcement, he said there are many reasons why the whole question of urban renewal should be subjected to a thorough study, not the least of which are the rigid financial constraints at present imposed upon the federal treasury.

In the meantime, the government was proceeding with 12 applications for federal assistance that had been received "before we sent out any signal to the contrary."

FOUR APPROVED

Among four of the projects approved is a six-acre development in Ladner, B.C., with a $145,200 federal contribution.

Eight other applications are in various stages of review, said the minister. Some involve proposed redevelopments in Vancouver and the British Columbia centres of New Westminster, Port Coquitlam and Cloverdale.

Conservative Leader Robert Stanfield said Andras' announcement is bound to discourage, and perhaps kill, local planning all across Canada.

Berger Hits 'Vendetta'

VANCOUVER (CP) — Opposition Leader Tom Berger said Thursday he had nothing to do with a demonstration Friday night at the Seaforth Armory here in which Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau was jostled and sworn at.

Premier Bennett Wednesday night accused Mr. Berger and his New Democratic Party of being behind the demonstration, outside a Liberal party fund-raising dinner.

'LOST COOL'

"The charges are false and the premier knows it ''' he seems to have lost a large part of his cool," Mr. Berger said.

He also told a news conference that Mr. Bennett may be "pursuing a vendetta to the grave" in his decision to tax the P. A. Woodward Foundation.

Mr. Berger said the late Mr. Woodward had "run afoul" of the premier by criticizing a government decision to claim sales tax on hospital equipment.

'GRAVE VENDETTA'

"Some people are concerned that Bennett is now pursuing his vendetta with Woodward to the grave," he said.

Mr. Berger said there may be good reasons or bad reasons for the decision but whatever they were the public should be told.

An official of the P.A. Woodward Foundation said Tuesday the government has disclosed its intention to tax the estate of the late department store owner before any of his money is turned over to the foundation.

The foundation official said the tax will be 40 per cent on a large portion of the $4,500,000 estate.

Colorful Delight

Love of Life So Evident In Ballet from Banff

By JOAN MASON-HURLEY

An evening of spontaneous gaiety, in which vitality, enthusiasm and love of life communicated itself to the enraptured audience was the essence of the Banff Festival Ballet at the McPherson Thursday evening.

The dancing was superb, the costumes colorfully and artistically conceived, the music played by a professional orchestra, and the radiant smiles of the youthful, dedicated company bespoke a joyous enthusiasm that was entirely infectious.

LONG WAY

Truly Canadian ballet has come a long way in the last few years, and the Banff School of Fine Arts under the aegis of the University of Calgary is a credit to our country.

Yet given that all the above is valid, the most memorable dance of the evening was performed in pants and running shoes to taped electronic music. Is this a symbol of our times? The "ballet" called Here and Now was choreographed by Eva Von Gencsy, who also performed the lead role with her partner Michel Boudot.

PINK, PURPLE

In pink and purple pants the dancers could only be described as magnificent young animals as they rocked to the wild percussive music.

I am sure there was not a person in the audience who did not long to be up there beating it out with them. It was a breathtaking experience, or rather vicarious participation.

Sur la Plage, a delightful ballet set on a beach in the 1920s, and choreographed by Gwynne Ashton, was another tremendous hit with the audience.

The costumes of the flappers, the bathing beauties and the granite-faced lifeguards were delightful. The dancing and acting enchantingly exuberant.

Special guest artists were Linda di Bona and Bill Martin-Viscount from New York. They performed two magnificent pas de deux. Both were produced for Mr. Martin-Viscount in Moscow when he was with the Bolshoi Ballet. Both were technically virtuoso pieces.

SPRING WATERS

Especially moving, passionate and beautiful was Spring Waters to music of Rachmaninoff, in which their sheer technical expertise was splendid to watch.

The evening closed with a Spanish ballet, Rondalla, in which all the excitement of whirling skirts and clicking castanets enthralled the audience.

March Money Sought

VANCOUVER (CP) — Canadians should consider domestic needs before sending funds to needy people in other countries, spokesmen for British Columbia Indian organizations said Wednesday.

They were commenting on an explanation offered Monday by Dr. John Conway, an official of the Miles for Millions walk here, for excluding the resources for Native Progress Association from proceeds raised by this year's walk.

Dr. Conway said the RNPA was excluded because the needs of people outside Canada are greater than those of B.C. Indians. The RNPA is asking for a share of funds from the 1970 walk.

SHOCKED, AMAZED

Mrs. Benjamin Paul, director of the B.C. Indian Homemakers' Association, said she is "shocked and amazed" at Dr. Conway's attitude.

"He should take a look at his own doorstep if he doesn't realize the conditions some B.C. Indians are living in," she said.

Gertrude Guerin of the Indian Friendship Centre said living conditions for many B.C. Indians — especially those in isolated northern reserves — are "deplorable."

HOME FIRST

"I'm all for sharing with people in other countries but let's clean up our own backyards first," she said.

Benjamin Paul, president of the Confederation of Indians of B.C., agreed.

"We must realize that the average annual income of Indian people across Canada is only $1,300 to $1,500," he said.

Moonmen 'Weak-Kneed' After Tour

SPACE CENTRE, Houston (UPI) — The Apollo 11 heroes flew home Thursday from tickertape and toasts in America's three largest cities, weary but happy to "touch America" and tell its people "through you we touched the moon."

Neil Armstrong, Michael Collins and Edward Aldrin faced a parade and reception Saturday from the people of their own home city, Houston. But for the time being, all they wanted to do was rest and reflect on the tremendous welcome they received Wednesday.

"We're a little weak in the knees," said Armstrong, the first man to set foot on the moon, as he stepped off President Nixon's jetliner at Ellington air force base near the space centre.

HECTIC TOUR

"But it was great, and we're happy," he said. His wife, Janet, said the hectic, cross country tour, two parades and a steak dinner were "magnificent" but she said she was glad to be home.

Wednesday the men who landed on the moon last month took New York, Chicago and Los Angeles by storm. Millions gathered to pay them the traditional welcome.

At every stop on their tour, made with their wives and children aboard the presidential jet, the astronauts told the U.S. that their historic moon landing July 20 was a national accomplishment.

MOON FOOTPRINTS

"There are footprints on the moon," said Aldrin. "These footprints belong to each and every one of you here, to all Americans, and all mankind."

"Through you we touched the moon," Armstrong said. "It was our privilege today to cross the country to touch America."

The astronauts spent the night in Los Angeles and flew back to Houston aboard the presidential jet.

Armstrong, Collins and all three wives, headed straight for space agency limousines to take them home.

AMERICAN FLAGS

But Aldrin plunged into the crowd of about 100 men and children who waited in the afternoon sun to welcome the crew home. Many of those in the crowd clutched American flags.

Aldrin stretched out both hands to shake the many hands reaching out to him, moving slowly through the crowd, until an air force policemen tapped him on the shoulder and pointed toward the waiting limousines.

"Well, I've got to go now," Aldrin said. "But thank you for coming out."

Houston will hold a tickertape parade Saturday honoring the astronauts and all members of the Apollo team. It will be followed by a variety show in the Houston Astrodome with an all-star cast led by Frank Sinatra.

Zond VII Back From Moon Trip

MOSCOW (AP) — The unmanned Soviet spaceship Zond VII returned from a trip around the moon Thursday and made a soft landing in Kazakustan, Soviet central Asia, Tass said.

The official Soviet news agency said the spacecraft successfully completed a new space experiment which included photographing the earth and moon. It went around the moon last Monday.

The Soviet Union has said its Zond series is testing equipment and methods for a manned moon shot. It was possible Zond VII's photographs of the moon were part of Soviet efforts to pick a manned landing site.

The new Soviet spaceship was launched Aug. 8, less than a month after the United States achieved history's first manned lunar landing.

Indian Hall of Fame Not Reaching Natives

TORONTO (CP) — The Indian Hall of Fame at the Canadian National Exhibition is an exciting venture, but it is not reaching the right people—the Indians, says the secretary of the Indian-Eskimo studies program at Trent University in Peterborough.

The Hall of Fame opened Thursday for its fifth year at the CNE. Harvey McCue, a Georgian Island Ojibway from Lake Simcoe, told an opening luncheon of Indian representatives and government officials at the CNE that the majority of visitors at the Hall of Fame are not Indian.

INFORMATION A MUST

It is imperative, he said, that Indians be made aware of what is being done to correct false ideas about their history.

He suggested that organizers consider an Indian cultural festival that would include the Hall of Fame and also embrace cultural, architecture and political life.

SMOKE PIPE

For the opening, Howard Skye of the Six Nations Reserve near Brantford, lit a pipe that was smoked by John Yaremko, minister of family and social services; Wilber Campbell of the North American Brotherhood of British Columbia; Burton Jacobs, chief of Walpole Island in southwestern Ontario; Walter Currie, an Ojibway director of the Union of Ontario Indians.

A portrait of Ethel Brant Monture, the great-great granddaughter of Mohawk chief Joseph Brant, was added to the Hall of Fame.

Also added to the Hall of Fame were:

● Chief Pequis of the Saulteaux Band in Manitoba, who helped the Red River settlement when it was threatened by fighting between the Hudson Bay Co. and the Northwest Fur Trading Co. in the last century.

● Joe Keeper of the Manitoba Metis Federation, who held the world's 10-mile running championship at the turn of the century and competed in the 1912 Stockholm Olympics.

Huge Guard Ready For Trudeau

TORONTO (UPI)—Police here Thursday staged a full dress rehearsal of the measures they will take this afternoon to protect Prime Minister Trudeau when he officially opens the Canadian National Exhibition.

There were reports that as many as 60 Royal Canadian Mounted Police were called in Thursday to beef up a combined RCMP, city and provincial police force which is said to number 300.

* * *

The extra precautions — described as the most elaborate for a dignitary seen in years—are being taken to avoid a repitition of the angry confrontation that developed between the prime minister and demonstrators last weekend in Vancouver.

Versatile Mint

In one corner of our garden we have a small bed planted up with a few of the more common herbs, and of these, I think the one that gets the biggest play is the mint.

Hardly a week goes by but what we find another culinary use for this versatile herb, and in addition to mint sauce and mint jelly for the roast lamb, we always drop a sprig of mint in the pot with our green peas, our baby limas, and even with a boiling of new potatoes. Incidentally, if you want to impress that casual guest, make him bury his nose in a freshly-picked sprig of mint when he sips from that tall, cool drink you hand him!

Mint mustn't be allowed to waste its energies in producing flowers and seeds, so just before the plants are ready to bloom, it is a good idea to give the whole mint patch a crew cut with the garden shears, cutting all topgrowth down to within an inch of the ground. This will stimulate the production of fresh young secondary shoots which are so much more pleasant to use than those old, weatherbeaten stems.

After the haircut, go over the mint bed pulling out all the weeds — in our garden, thistles seem to have a natural affinity for mint — then stir the surface of the soil with a handfork, breaking up any crust. Follow this up with a good feed of soluble fertilizer in water; ammonium sulphate is good for promoting leafy growth, two tablespoonfuls per gallon of water, applied with a watering can.

If you wish, the old tops which were cut down could be bundled up and hung upside down in a corner of the kitchen to dry out for winter use. Personally, though, I wouldn't give a plugged pfennig for mint sauce made from dried mint. In our family we prefer to make it up into a mint concentrate which has all the flavor and aroma of fresh mint.

We gather a big bunch of fresh young stalks, swish them around in a bucket of water to get rid of dust and dirt, then pick off the leaves, discarding the stalks. These leaves are chopped by putting them through the meat grinder, using the disc with the smallest holes.

Next, dissolve one pound of sugar in one quart of vinegar, bring to a boil and boil for ten minutes. At this point start adding the chopped mint leaves, dumping them in gradually until the mixture reaches the consistency of jam, then bottle in sterile jars and store for winter use.

To make your mint sauce, put a few spoonfuls of the concentrate in a dish and add a little hot water — that's all.

One common problem in the growing of mint is how to keep the stuff from spreading all over the garden. The creeping underground stolons are as invasive as couch grass, and given half a chance, it will even make its way into the lawn. One way of making it stay put is to knock the bottom out of an old bucket, sink it up to its rim in the ground, and grow your mint in it, in solitary confinement.

Mint rust, a disfiguring disease, is fairly common hereabouts, and chemical treatment for this fungus infection isn't too effective. I think a better way is a burn over the mint patch every fall with a quick flash fire of excelsior, wood shavings or dry straw.

Perils of Expertise

The real danger in becoming an "expert" lies in becoming so immersed in your subject that you fail to see how it relates to other subjects, and adopting a scale of values that gives your own field a priority even when it should be subordinate to other values.

★ ★ ★

All people making introductions between two strangers should repeat each name twice, loudly and distinctly, for the benefit of all the dunderheads like me who go blank whenever they are introduced to a new face.

The most disappointing book I've read all summer is Missouri Bittersweet by MacKinlay Kantor, which is far more bitter than sweet, and bitter about the wrong things; with age, he has grown not wiser but just more Kantortankerous.

Most of us are bad at deception for the shrewd reason given by G. C. Lichtenberg nearly two centuries ago: "It is usually easier to hide something than to hide the fact that you are hiding something."

No appendage on the modern motor car is more needless (as well as more vexing) than the electrically-operated windows, which always perversely pick inclement weather to stay jammed in the half-open position.

★ ★ ★

"Conscience" is a much abused word in our society, for we commonly use it to worry over personal trifles instead of training it to be troubled about big things; and this dissipates our moral energy and permits us at the sametime to develop an insensitiveness to the monstrous inequities of our time.

★ ★ ★

The acrimonious level of most political discussions sadly illustrates the maxim of William Penn, who said: "Truth often suffers more from the heat of its defenders than from the arguments of its opposers."

Those fatuous library boards and citizens' committees which are so fond of banning books for alleged indecency need to be reminded regularly that when Mark Twain's Huckleberry Finn was published, the Committee of the Public Library of Concord, Mass., banned it as "trash and suitable only for the slums."

★ ★ ★

One of the real difficulties in our democracy is that the people who are concerned about civil rights are cavalier in their attitude toward property rights, while the people who scream loudest about property rights are indifferent to violations of civil rights—yet each must sustain the other if a just balance is to be achieved.

Burt's on Top

LONDON (NANA) — Angie Dickinson and husband Burt Bacharach will be in London next month for the West End opening of Burt's musical, Promises, Promises. Bacharach is very popular in England, for his own music and for his arrangements for Marlene Dietrich's one-woman shows. His rating is almost on the same level as the Beatles. After the Broadway hit, Burt had his pick of many films, but he chose Paul Newman's Butch Cassidy and the Sundance Kid for 20th Century-Fox.

★ ★ ★

Recently, he was at the Bistro in Beverly Hills with Angie, and looked up and saw Dick Zanuck being seated at a nearby table. They said hello, but the young 20th-Fox top executive said nothing about Burt's music. The composer wondered why not, until Zanuck sent a message by the waiter saying he had only heard the music two hours previously, and "it is absolutely terrific." Music in films is very important. It can make a medicore movie seem better—and when you get a top seller for the title, you are halfway home.

The late Sharon Tate was very popular here, where she and her husband, Roman Polanski, owned a home. I had talked with Sharon just before she left London for their Beverly Hills home, to await the birth of their baby in September. It was a very happy marriage, and it seemed like the only thing Sharon and Roman wanted to talk about was the baby.

The horrible murders show once again that when vollence happens in Hollywood it's not always on screen. Too often the real-life horrors outdo the script-writers. There was poor Karen Kupelnet, daughter of the Chicago television journalist. They have never found her murderer. And just recently there, old-time star Ramon Navaro was tortured to death.

Richard Harris is reading Popski's Private Army again. I have read the new script and it is a hundred times better than the one he orignally read. The MGM boys in New York are wild about it and hope to film the George Brown-David Pelham production next Jaunary in Persia (in line with the Shah's hopes of more film-making in his country as a means of luring the tourists).

★ ★ ★

Director-actor-producer Jonathan Miller, with a King Lear in Nottingham and a Twelfth Night in Oxford and Cambridge, has been offered a fellowship at Cambridge. According to Oliver Reed, Jonathan "is th only intellectual I've ever met who is not an intellectual cash-boy." That means putting artistic and intellectual integrity before money.

Bomb Hints Bomb

We were going through a stack of old phonograph records the other day, weeding out those no longer in favor. Some were strangers. We seem to be running a record exchange.

Something cherished, like a Mozart horn concerto, will disappear; and something like "In-a-Gadda-da-Vida," by a group called The Iron Butterfly, will pop up, its origin a mystery.

★ ★ ★

"In-a-Gadda-da-Vida," I am informed by a member of the pop generation, really means "In the Garden of Eden."

I tossed "In-a-Gadda-da-Vida" on the discard pile and made an anguished decision to keep Nelson Eddy and Jeannette MacDonald one more winter.

"What's this one?" my wife asked. "If the Bomb Falls."

"Never head of it," I said. "Some rock group, I guess."

She tossed it over. The cover was worn and faded. The title was spelled out in big red letters, like a war headline:

If the Bomb Falls: A Recorded Guide to Survival.

There was a photo of a nuclear mushroom, and a montage of scary headlines from the cold war era.

"It must be a satire," I said. "Let's play it."

I put If the Bomb Falls on the phonograph. It was indeed a morbid satire; but it wasn't meant to be. It was dead serious; a record made in 1961, I would guess, "as a public service," urging America to dig family bomb shelters for survival.

★ ★ ★

It began with a siren sound.

"The threat of nuclear warfare," the narrator began, in the tone of a TV mouth germ commercial, "is a threat to us all!

"How can we live with this threat? Our best life insurance can be summed up in four words. Be alert. Stay alert."

He told about blast and fallout, the one bringing "instant death," the other "a slow, lingering death, but equally as final.

"We can always hope that man will never use such a weapon," the voice went on, "but we should also adopt the Boy Scout slogan — Be Prepared!"

He told us how to build a family shelter, for only $200 to $1,500, and how to stock it for a two-week hole-up, when it may be safe to come out.

He gave us some don't forgets: don't forget bottle and can openers. Don't forget a calendar, a clock. Safety pins.

"You'll need recreational and spiritual supplies, too. A Bible, books, cards or games. . .

"By all means provide some tranquilizers to ease the strain and monotony of life in your shelter. A box of 100 should be adequate for a family of four."

Yes, the voice said, it would be crowded and tense and uncomfortable, with no sanitary facilities, no lights, no phone — "just terror."

"But you will be alive to enjoy these small problems. Many thousands may be dead and wounded . . ."

It seemed so far away, that naive time when we believed we could survive the holocaust with a Boy Scout slogan, a hole in the ground, a Bible, a monopoly set and a bottle of tranquilizers.

I threw If the Bomb Falls in the discards and played The Iron Butterfly. If the bomb falls, that's where it will all begin again, I suppose. In a Gadda da Vida.

Courtroom Parade

Former Prison Steward Admits Shoplifting Guilt

A former steward at Kingston penitentiary pleaded guilty Thursday in Provincial Court to shoplifting two raincoats from a downtown department store.

John Macko, who gave his address as Rideau Street, Kingston, told court that he was ashamed of himself.

"Of course you're ashamed of yourself — now," said Provincial Judge William Ostler.

HUMILIATION

"When you face the humiliation of appearing in court it's easy to be ashamed of yourself. But if you hadn't been caught, you would have been two raincoats better off and you wouldn't have been ashamed at all," he said.

Because of his position in the federal penitentiary service, Macko was given a stiff tongue-lashing by Judge Ostler before sentence was passed.

"In most cases of petty theft, at least it can be said of the people who come before me that they are hard up. Often they have had reverses in life and they are facing difficult circumstances.

'NOT TRUE OF YOU'

"That is not at all true of you. You have a responsible position in society, and you of all people should know the consequences of crime.

"It is utterly disgraceful that a man like you should have behaved in this way."

Judge Ostler fined Macko $250 with one month's imprisonment in default, and he said: "The fine is to be paid forthwith."

'FORTHWITH'

The uniformed policeman in court murmured to the man in the dock, "Have you got the money now?"

Overhearing, Judge Ostler said sharply, "I don't care if he hasn't got it. It is payable forthwith."

Macko was led from the courtroom. Later it was learned that he had been able to pay the fine, as the judge said, forthwith.

Robert Ash 1126 Finlayson had a perfectly convincing explanation for the theft of a truck belonging to the Ideal Fuel Co. It was convincing, Judge Ostler said, "because it is so perfectly stupid."

Ash admitted driving the truck away and keeping it for about two hours. While he was returning it, at 5:40 a.m. Thursday, two employees of the company caught him and held him while they waited for police.

"I wanted to get a job with Ideal Fuel," Ash said. "But I didn't have any experience driving that kind of truck, and I thought if I just drove it around for a while and got used to driving it, I'd be prepared if they wanted to test me on it when I went there for a job."

"You realize what your chances of getting a job there are now, don't you?" asked Judge Ostler.

"Yes, sir, I guess they're just about nil," Ash replied.

The prosecutor said that he was satisfied the defendant "was activated more by stupidity than by malice," and said he had considered bringing a lesser charge of taking the truck without the owner's consent.

PRIOR RECORD

The more serious charge of stealing the truck was brought when it was learned Ash had two previous convictions for car theft in 1961 and 1964, he said.

Ash said he was married and was working full time, but he had hoped to get a second job driving a truck so that he could buy a house.

Judge Ostler said he agreed with the prosecutor that there was no real malice in the case.

'PERFECTLY STUPID'

"What curious mental processes you have!" he said. "You stole a truck from these people in order to qualify yourself for a job with them! That is so perfectly stupid I am quiet convinced it is true."

He fined Ash $350, payable at $50 a month, and sentenced him to one day in jail.

A 17-year-old boy staged a "panty raid" Wednesday night on a backyard clothesline on Shelbourne Street — but he gave better than he got.

He took away a pair of women's panties and a slip, and put them on underneath his own clothes. But he left behind on the clothesline three other pairs of panties he had taken from another clothesline a week earlier.

"This lad is obviously maladjusted," said Judge Ostler. "There will have to be some kind of professional help if he is ever going to have any hope of a normal life."

He remanded the case for a week and ordered a pre-sentence report.

Narcotics Roundup Renewed

VANCOUVER (CP) — Police began another roundup of suspected drug traffickers Wednesday and 12 persons had been charged by noon Thursday.

The 12 — nine adults and three juveniles — were arrested in connection with alleged sales to undercover RCMP operatives.

Police declined to release details of the roundup, the sixth in British Columbia in the last 18 months, because investigation was continuing.

In the last major crackdown that began June 12, warrants were issued for 84 persons charged with a total of 96 trafficking offences. To date, 69 have been arrested.

Calling Cards Part of Loot

King Fisherman

Angler Lands Contender on Rocks

Otter Point waters at Sooke are producing some pretty big spring (chinook) salmon and one of the best catches of the week was a 30.4-pounder taken by Ray Shambrook while spin-casting with a Deadly Dick off the rocks at Gordon Beach.

It gave him a terrific battle as he played it from his confined spot on the shore and it will be a contender for the Fish of the Year Award for the quality catch landed by a King Fisherman angler.

Federal fisheries has announced some rivermouth closures as salmon head into the rivers for their fall spawning runs.

Nimpkish River has been closed from Flagstaff Island to the highway bridge, until further notice.

Koksilah River has been closed from the CNR dock to Clem Clem bridge until further notice.

Rescuers Recover Boaters

WASAGAMING, Man. (CP) — Three youths were rescued from Clear Lake at this western Manitoba resort community Wednesday night after their boat capsized.

Barry Sloan, 17, of Simcoe, Ont., Jim Brown, 16, of Brandon and Jan Halverson, 16, of Winnipeg spent more than an hour in the water before they were observed clinging to their boat some 500 yards from shore.

Two lifeguards from the Clear Lake campgrounds battled five-foot waves to rescue the trio from the water. The lifeguards, Wayne Purdy and Mike Stinchcombe, were commended for their action by P. A. Lange, Riding Mountain National Park superintendent.

Barge Oil Seepage Continues

SEATTLE (AP) — Although oil continues to seep from a sunken barge west of Whidbey Island, the State Pollution Control Commission says there is no major threat of pollution.

The 213-foot barge carrying 14,000 barrels of diesel oil sank July 20 while being towed from Anacortes to Seattle. It was located in 220 feet of water west of Partridge Point.

Foss Launch and Tug Co., owner of the barge, says it is consulting with the pollution control commission on ways to raise the barge without causing more pollution.

Tacoma Smelter Fined

SEATTLE (AP) — The Puget Sound Air Pollution Control Commission fined a Tacoma smelter and laid plans to take legal action against a Weyerhaeuser Co.-owned wood burning facility in Everett.

A fine of $1,000 was levied against American Smelting and Refining Co. for four days of excessive air pollution last month.

Arthur Dammkoehler, chief control officer of the commission, said the Weyerhaeuser Co. in Everett is cited weekly for air pollution violations by fuel boilers at its wood products and sulphite mills. He said the company has not made a definite commitment to eliminate the pollution.

The commission set plans for a public hearing in Everett in September to consider the matter.

BRUCE LOWTHER
AbouTV

For years, people have wondered when television would run out of old movies. It hasn't exactly happened here, but nevertheless, today and Monday mark a bit of a milestone for viewing in this area.

Tonight is the last week night that Channels 7 and 12 will be showing old movies that start in the hour after 11 p.m. As of Monday, they join CBS for the new Merv Griffin talk show, which also marks a first — the first time all three U.S. networks have had competing 11:30 p.m. talk series.

Starting next week, only Channel 2 will have a late movie every night starting in the hour after 11. And one other movie is being dropped, as Channel 5 will go without any late Sunday film. Otherwise, there's no change, but it's still a little sad for movie nuts like me.

BUREAU OF USELESS INFORMATION: Thursday's threadbare answer — The first woman cabinet minister was Ellen Fairclough, the first Negro-Canadian MP Lincoln Alexander of Hamilton and the first Chinese-Canadian MP Douglas Jung of Vancouver. Vancouver Island's four MPs are David Groos, David Anderson, T. C. Douglas and Tom Barnett.

Today's question is a toughie. Who were the external affairs ministers for John Diefenbaker and Lester Pearson most of the time? Who was the last external affairs minister for Lester Pearson? among finance ministers, name Pearson's first and the wartime one. Answers Saturday.

"No, he didn't run into a door. You deliberately slammed it on him."

Friday Highlights

C-8:00 p.m.—Of the three U.S. networks, ABC is far ahead in significant programming this summer. The Summer Focus series is talky, but at least it's there. This one is about U.S. violence—4.

'I Never Wrote Letter to McDiarmid'

Indian Chief Denies Letter

PORT ALBERNI — The chief of the Opitsaht Reserve, near Tofino, has condemned Social Credit candidate Dr. Howard McDiarmid for using the chief's name in his election campaign.

Chief Ernest David phoned the Alberni Valley Times from Tofino to say he had heard a letter over his name read on the radio as an endorsement of the Tofino physician in the Aug. 27 election.

"I never wrote a letter to Dr. McDiarmid and I don't remember signing one," said Chief David.

"I won't support him. I don't think he's done anything yet."

The letter signed with the chief's name, dated Aug. 17, 1966, was printed in the Alberni Valley Times with two others submitted by the Social Credit candidate last week.

Dr. McDiarmid told the Colonist this week that such a letter existed. He said it was one of three — one written by Chief David, one written by another chief and a third written by a priest from the district.

Dr. McDiarmid said they were written after he had helped the Indians from the reserve with a problem during 1966 to 1967. He said he had asked these concerned to give him letters of support and they had agreed to do it.

Chief David was told that the letter submitted by Dr. McDiarmid to the Alberni Valley Times with two others submitted by the Social Credit candidate last week.

Dr. McDiarmid told the Colonist this week that such a letter existed. He said it was one of three — one written by Chief David, one written by another chief and a third written by a priest from the district.

We never would say we had any discrimination. I would say in the last 10 years, Dr. McDiarmid, or more than ten years, we have had very good medical care and has saved quite a few people. We would like to have him for our doctor always. (Signed) Chief Ernest David, Opitsaht Reserve."

Earlier Dr. McDiarmid said the letters served to answer charges made recently by Chief Earl Tatoosh of the Opitchesaht Band on the Somass River.

He said that several years ago the doctor had refused to treat Indians and that "He wanted money on the table before he would look at anyone."

At the time, Dr. McDiarmid said his stand was not directed at the Indian population but at the federal government which was paying too little for medical services to reserve Indians.

'LONG TIME'

Chief David said he had been asking other band counsellors but they say they know nothing about the letter.

"I don't like my name being used . . . has he the right to do that?" the chief asked.

The chief was asked whether he could have signed a letter commending the physician's abilities as a doctor and then had forgotten.

He said he was certain he had not, but he added, "three years ago is a long time ago."

Marathon Interested In Parkade Scheme

DUNCAN — Marathon Realty has shown interest in the possibility of developing a multi-storey parkade with shopping facilities, Mayor Jim Quaife said this week.

He said he, Ald. Jim Saunders and city clerk Gordon Berry recently visited D. P. Shepard, land planning supervisor in Vancouver for the CPR subsidiary.

Mayor Quaife said, "Mr. Shepard showed great interest in our proposal and assured us planners from Marathon would come to Duncan to survey the area involved."

Tentative plans call for a large multi-storey parking area between Duncan Street and Canada Avenue with approaches from Brae Road and street connections with Duncan Street and Canada Avenue.

Mayor Quaife said, "We reiterated our desire to get on with the urban renewal scheme and asked Mr. Morris to expedite our program."

The scheme would involve a total expenditure of $1,000,000 of which 50 per cent would be borne by the federal government and the rest would be shared between the city and the provincial government.

The mayor said "we were told two or three cost estimates are yet to be provided for the project. We also were advised the report would be printed as quickly as possible and then it will be up to the two senior government to implement the scheme. Now we are optimistic that the urban renewal scheme can be realized in the very near future."

Young Salmon Launched In Experiment

COURTENAY — The Tsolum River, a tributary of the Puntledge near Courtenay, had some visitors recently — more than 100,000 chinook salmon fingerlings.

The transplant forms an experiment to find out whether self-sustaining chinook populations can be established in rivers such as the Tsolum and Capilano which do not support that species at present.

The fingerlings, three-inches long and about four months old, were reared at the fisheries department's Big Qualicum River development project. They will be carefully watched by skin divers for the next two weeks.

Each has been marked distinctly by fin clippings so that adults returning in two or three years' time can be positively identified when they are captured by sports or commercial fishermen.

Local fisheries officials say the success of the experiment will be indicated in the fall of 1970 when the first fish return from the sea.

'No Political Link' To Office Damage

NANAIMO — Thieves smashed windows to enter five cars near Esplanade, Nanaimo Wednesday and then waited in bushes until police finished investigating before breaking into a group of offices a few hundred feet away.

That was one theory which followed a series of incidents. Rear doors' handles were smashed, offices were damaged and petty cash stolen at Church, Pickard, Lane, and Newman, chartered accountants, Harris' barber shop, Budget Rent A Car and Dominion Lite.

Among the worst hit were the accountants' offices. Dave Stupich, NDP candidate for Nanaimo, a partner in the firm had his office badly damaged.

W. R. Lane discounted any possibility of any connection between the thefts and Mr. Stupich's political work.

"The other offices were hit too," he said.

There was less than $50 taken from the office. The other businesses lost petty cash — mostly cash.

Farmer Dies

DUNCAN—Seed farmer Ralph Woodhead Crosland, 91, died at the Cowichan District Hospital.

Born at Lancashire, England, Mr. Crosland came to Duncan at the turn of the century. With his brother, Sam, who died in 1945, he established a seed farm which became known as Crosland Bros. Seed Farm, north of Duncan.

He was noted for his production of sweet pea seed. He was also a keen cricketer. In his youth he played cricket for Yorkshire and he was one of the first members of Cowichan Cricket Club.

Funeral services will be held at Hirst Funeral Chapel, Duncan, 11 a.m. today, followed by burial at St. Mary's Anglican Church cemetery.

Grounding Best Way Out

Los Angeles Mass Murder

Drugs, Gambling Probed

LOS ANGELES — Federal officials verified Thursday that they had been investigating two aspects of the murder of Sharon Tate and four companions: Drugs and gambling debts.

Among reports federal agents were checking were those that:

● One of those slain was deeply in debt, possibly to gamblers.

Investigators said, however, that the gambling aspects were being checked in a routine matter and that the reports of "commercial quantities" of narcotics being found at the home had proved untrue.

★ ★ ★

But city and federal authorities are known to be following every possible clue in an attempt to unravel the mystery of the multiple murders.

It was learned that narcotics were found at the home — in the car of hair stylist Jay Sebring — as police began their investigation of the crime.

Federal narcotics officers made inquiries of state and city officials to determine if narcotics in sufficient quantity to be of commercial value had been involved.

★ ★ ★

Because of the complexity of the case and the apparent lack of motive, law officers were following rumors as closely as Hollywood colony writers for European scandal magazines.

One story checked by narcotics agents was that a trunk full of hashish was found at the house.

Hashish is refined Marijuana, a powder usually imported from the Middle East and widely sold on the international drug market. Federal agents said the trunk-of-hashish story turned out to be unfounded. They wouldn't elaborate on reports of other drugs having been found at the estate.

The Internal Revenue Service said routine inquiries were being made into possible gambling aspects of the victims of the murder.

Slain with the actress and Sebring were Voityck Frokowsky, 37, Abigail Folger, 26, and Steven Parent, 18.

Frokowsky and Miss Folger were among friends of Miss Tate and her husband, director Roman Polanski, and young Parent was a friend who had visited the caretaker of the estate and was apparently slain as he was trying to leave.

Although authorities refuted rumors that the victims had been mutilated, the estate was nonetheless the scene of ghastly carnage.

Sebring and Frokowsky were both stabbed and shot; Miss Folger and Miss Tate died under a rain of knife blows, and Parent was shot several times.

"This crime was so weird and bizarre," said Los Angeles coroner Thomas Noguchi, "that we are showing photos of the bodies to a psychologist and a psychiatrist who are consultants to our staff in an effort to determine from them behavior evaluation of the killer.

Requiem Stopped

Bystanders Stand By For Murder

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (AP) — More than a dozen persons watched and did nothing Wednesday as a 19-year-old girl fought to save her purse from being stolen then was knifed to death in front of a restaurant, police said.

Detective James Cavoti said an investigation showed there were up to 15 persons outside a restaurant when Sherry Rowling was stabbed in the heart and fell to the sidewalk.

"They did nothing."

Cavoti said the witnesses to the murder were adults. He said they also made no attempt to stop the killer.

Less than an hour after the stabbing, Mary Alice Collins, 20, of Rochester was arrested and charged with murder.

Hijacking

Mother Goal

MIAMI (UPI) — Two nervous Cubans — one of them eager to see his mother — hijacked a Northeast Airlines jet with 52 persons aboard Thursday and forced it to take them to Havana.

The hijacking, 24th of the year, took place aboard Boston-to-Miami flight 43, which returned safely to Miami shortly before 7 p.m. after leaving the two men in Havana.

The hijackers, one with a gun and the other with a knife, forced stewardesses Barbara Donelly and Roberta Alpert to let them into the cabin.

"Two men rushed into the cabin shouting 'Cuba! Cuba!'" said Capt. Grey Newman. "My first reaction was to reassure them as much as I could."

Stewardess Karen Acuff said the pistol-carrying hijacker, who was red-eyed and appeared to have been drinking, told her he was "very happy because he was going home to see his mother.

"He said he had been in the United States for six years."

Seattle Fracas 'Planned'

SEATTLE (AP) — Police Chief Frank Ramon has labelled Wednesday night's disturbance in Seattle's university district a "planned attack on police" and "violence for the sake of violence."

In a statement Thursday, Ramon said there were no genuine issues behind the four-hour confrontation between rock- and bottle-throwing youths and police with tear gas. Twenty-one persons were arrested and three policemen were injured during the outburst.

It was the third clash between police and youths in Seattle in four days. Monday.

Quebec Crime

Jurisdiction Clash 'Multiplying' Bankruptcy Frauds

QUEBEC (CP)—The government Wednesday received a 980-page report suggesting ways to rid the province of crime.

The report, with 66 recommendations, is the work of a royal commission on the administration of justice.

The three-man commission, headed by Judge Yves Prevost of the Quebec Welfare Court, maintains that "the conflict of (federal-provincial) jurisdiction multiplies the occasion for fraud and enables cheaters to remain unpunished."

NINE PROPOSALS

Its nine proposals to combat armed robberies includes a suggestion that police helicopters be used in Montreal and a call for co-ordination among police forces.

Other recommendations urge the government to require scrap and car-part dealers to report to the provincial transport department on every vehicle demolished or dismantled.

The commission, set up in 1967, says Quebec leads all provinces in the number of bankruptcies, armed robberies and car thefts.

TWO LEVELS

The report blames the high crime rate in the bankruptcy sector on "local talent" rather than international organizations.

Quebec had 1,065 bankruptcies involving a loss of $110,000,000 in 1967 compared with 667 failures involving a loss of $73,000,000 in Ontario.

The report also states that in a typical year one out of every five banks in Montreal is held up and that the province has 65-per-cent of Canada's bank robberies.

It suggests that two police helicopters patrol Montreal during banking hours.

The commission says that in 1966 Quebec led all provinces with 805 cars stolen out of every 100,000 cars licensed. Ontario's rate was 529 thefts for every 100,000 licensed cars.

The commission urges the government to put pressure on auto-makers to stress production of theft-proof cars.

The commission also notes that bankruptcy legislation is a federal responsibility, but since provinces administer the Criminal Code, bankruptcy comes under the provincial jurisdiction when there is fraud involved.

HIGH CRIME RATE

The report says failure of the two levels of government to co-ordinate their efforts has resulted in unchecked fraudulent activities.

The commission says control should go to the provinces. However, the commission adds that the federal government should have legislation covering bankruptcies involving property in more than one province.

The report says public trustees should be able to seize property on an interim basis to prevent heavy purchasing and rapid liquidation of goods, the way fraudulent bankruptcy most commonly operates.

Kopechene Exhuming Try in Court Today

NEW BEDFORD, Mass. (AP) — District Attorney Edmund Dinis said Thursday he would appear Friday in Wilkes-Barre, Pa., and ask for a court to order exhumation and an autopsy of the body of Mary Jo Kopechne, who died in Senator Edward M. Kennedy's car accident.

Dinis said he wants the autopsy so that the report of a complete examination of the body can be made part of the record into the inquest he has ordered into the accident. He said he would present his petition and arrange a date for a formal hearing.

Miss Kopechne's mother said the girl's parents were seeking a Pennsylvania lawyer to block exhumation of her daughter's body.

Miss Kopechne, 28, died July 18 or 19 after a car driven by Kennedy overturned in a tidal pond at Chappaquiddick Island, Mass. She is buried at Plymouth, Pa., near Wilkes-Barre.

In Pennsylvania, President Judge Bernard C. Brominski of Luzerne County Court of Common Pleas said Dinis or a deputy must file a petition for an autopsy and a hearing on the petition could be held in about 10 days.

THREE PROBERS

Dinis said three state police detectives are doing investigative work on Martha's Vineyard for the inquest. It opens Sept. 3 at Edgartown, on the island off Cape Cod.

In another development, the Manchester, N.H., Union Leader reported that 17 telephone calls were charged to Kennedy's credit card in the hours immediately following the accident, when Kennedy has said he was in shock.

To Every Man and Woman Losing Hair

If you are troubled by THINNING HAIR, DANDRUFF, ITCHY SCALP, FEAR APPROACHING BALDNESS, read the rest of this announcement carefully.

Baldness is simply a matter of subtraction. When the number of new hairs fails to equal the number of falling hairs you end up minus your head of hair. (Bald). Why not avoid baldness by preventing unnecessary loss of hair. This new concept is the perfect answer to men and women who refuse to needlessly become bald. So, if you are beginning to notice that your forehead is getting higher, that there is too much hair on your comb, beginning to worry about the dryness of your hair, the itchiness of your scalp, the ugly dandruff —these are Nature's ways of warning of impending baldness. Even if you have been losing your hair for some time don't let seborrhea rob you of the rest of your hair.

SCALP SPECIALIST HERE TO DEMONSTRATE NEW HOME TREATMENT

New Home Treatment methods for preventing baldness and for growing stronger, thicker, and healthier hair will be demonstrated to Victoria Friday and Saturday, August 15 and 16.

This news was released today by PARK LANE HAIR AND SCALP SPECIALISTS. In their announcement they have selected nationally known staff Trichologist Robert McIver to conduct the demonstration.

Robert McIver will be personally examining hair-worried men and women at the Sussex Hotel from 1 p.m. until 8 p.m. PARK LANE would like to assure you that you incur no obligation in seeing Mr. McIvor. The only obligation you have is to yourself, to free your mind of worries of hair loss, dandruff, oily scalp, dry scalp, itching or any of the many other disorders, by learning the proper care of the hair and scalp . . . if your examination and test disclose that your condition is untreatable we will frankly tell you so. However, as our specialists observe, no one should take it upon himself to decide whether his condition is treatable or not. That is why we always make a personal examination so that we can advise you accurately as to the condition of your hair and scalp.

CAN ALL BE HELPED?

No. Nothing will grow hair on a slick bald head after many years of gradual hair loss. But where your scalp still grows hair we can save and improve what you have. Usually we can grow more hair even where you now have only baby hair or fuzz. The important thing is DO NOT WAIT UNTIL IT IS TOO LATE. Even tomorrow your hair will not be in as good condition as it is today. This is why we suggest that you see the PARK LANE Trichologist before further damage is done. Let him explain the new improved method of home treatments which offer a better chance of success than was ever before possible in correcting the local causes of thinning hair and scalp disorders.

Our biggest problem is in overcoming the average person's initial skepticism. He or she is usually quite desperate and baldish by the time he nerves himself to see a PARK LANE Trichologist. He's "tried everything" so he starts consoling himself with one of the old superstitions about hair: that baldness is hereditary, that men naturally lose hair as they get along in years, that nothing can be done to stop hair loss, and a lot of other notions that we know today are not true.

SCALP EXAMINATION

See Mr. McIver in person. Learn how baldness can be corrected and new hair grown with the proved PARK LANE HOME TREATMENT METHOD. It doesn't make sense for a man or woman to let himself go bald certainly not without seeing whether or not PARK LANE'S TREATMENT will stop hair loss and grow thicker hair. These TREATMENTS are designed so that they can be applied easily and effectively in the privacy of your own home. For an examination and discussion of your hair and scalp problems ask the desk clerk at the Sussex Hotel, Friday or Saturday between 1 p.m. and 8 p.m. for Mr. McIvor's suite number. An appointment is not necessary. All examinations are given in private, all reports are strictly confidential.

2 DAYS ONLY: SCALP SPECIALIST HERE TO DEMONSTRATE NEW HOME TREATMENT FRIDAY AND SATURDAY, AUGUST 15 AND 16 AT SUSSEX HOTEL BETWEEN 1 AND 8 P.M.

Engineering 'Wrong' In Sewage

By NANCY BROWN

Engineers are the wrong people to consult to clear up a sewage problem—they should be directed instead, microbiologist Dr. Sidney Webb of the University of Saskatchewan said Thursday.

"An engineer doesn't know how to cope with sewage," he said.

"If you give him a free hand and say you want him to get rid of sewage he will dream up fantastic ideas, but they will be thoroughly impractical."

REPRESENTATIVES

Municipal representatives from Victoria, Saanich, Central Saanich, North Saanich and Sidney attended a special meeting on pollution at the University of Victoria. Esquimalt and Oak Bay were not represented.

Dr. Webb said an engineer knows how to build a bridge or a pipeline or how to send something out into the water.

"He understands stresses and strains. He knows how to build a pipeline, but he has no idea what organisms are coming through it, or how long they will live, and he has no idea about what happens to the material he sends down the pipe," said Dr. Webb.

WARNING ISSUES

He warned against self-styled experts in the pollution or sewage disposal field.

"There is no such person," he said.

He advised his audience to look to professional people, such as environmental biologists to say what is needed, and to direct the engineers to build the correct plant.

ENGINEERS ASKED

"What is happening in Victoria right now is that the engineers are being asked what is needed.

"The engineer is being given a job for which he hasn't been trained. The engineer is the person you need to build pipes and plants, otherwise he will just give you devices to transport problems from one area to another — sometimes when he is done transporting he creates an even worse problem than he started out with."

Dr. Webb said the new South Saskatchewan dam, built to control flooding in Saskatoon was an instance of engineers making greater problems.

LAKE CREATED

The dam had created a lake in which nothing could live because of seepage from chemicals in the dam structure.

It had also lowered the Saskatchewan River in Saskatoon by six feet, so that sewage outfalls cascaded down the banks into the trickling river. The situation apparently was irreversible because the dam had been designed to allow the river to rise only a foot even in the worst rain.

Dr. Webb forcast an influenza outbreak, similar to that of 1919 would start in about 10 years, and said the influenza-causing bacteria could spread through the air from Victoria's sewage outfalls.

He said such bacteria as those causing Asian flu, sore throats, and intestinal upsets were passed from humans through fecal matter, and released into the air again where they could live for surprising periods of time.

Nutrients in sea water, he said, helped the viruses survive for longer periods.

He said he had talked to local doctors who had confirmed his findings of various virus diseases from airborne viruses which could attack through the respiratory or digestive system.

LUNG CANCER

He said the adenoidal virus which is spread from sewage has also been found to cause lung cancer.

"We know the dangers of cigarette smoking," he said. "We don't yet know the dangers of inhaling the air from a sewage outlet or plant."

He said the old prediction of humans drowning in a sea of their own fecal matter was rapidly coming true.

"I am not trying to be sensational about this," he said.

WATER DECREASING

"The population is increasing and the water needed to disseminate the feces is decreasing.

"If we don't fear for our own survival we must consider this.

"Will our children or grandchildren drown in the muck we are leaving behind?" he asked.

Asked by Saanich Ald. Leslie Passmore about the cost of the enclosed treatment plant he advocates, Dr. Webb said a plant in Saskatoon for a population of 200,000 is costing $8,500,000.

HOSPITAL COSTS

Ald. Passmore said he was afraid the cost would run into many millions to be added to the approved $9,000,000 expenditure for extended care hospitals, and proposed $30,000,000 for acute care hospitals.

"I would be suspicious of all these millions of dollars your sewer system is going to cost," replied Dr. Webb.

"You should first of all look into whether the prices you have been quoted are reasonable."

SEWAGE OUTFALL

He suggested that before outfalls such as that proposed for Macaulay Point are built, it should first be ascertained that those who want to build them understand the viruses and bacteria which would be transmitted through the pipes.

They should also be questioned about their knowledge of currents, water temperature and tides.

'Dummy' President for Quebec?

By DAVE BAZAY

QUEBEC (CP) — An outspoken civil servant proposed Thursday that Quebec province keep its British parliamentary system but decorate it with a "dummy" president, "a wooden idol."

* * *

Jean-Charles Bonenfant, witty librarian of the national assembly, said a United States-style presidential system would paralyse Quebec if it were applied here.

Bonenfant, 57, trampled over several pet political ideas of the politicians in his appearance as an expert at a hearing of the assembly's constitutional committee.

At one point he read this opinion of a Japanese jurist to Rene Levesque, the leader of the separatist Party Quebecois which wants to boot out the British system:

* * *

"We should not abandon too quickly what the English have built during three centuries of difficult but primordial work."

At another point he said a referendum, a proposal backed by Premier Jean-Jacques Bertrand, would lead to "frightful disorder" in the absence of permanent electoral lists.

* * *

Bonenfant, a teacher of constitutional law and political science at Laval University, was invited by Bertrand, the committee chairman, to outline what is involved in the presidential system of government, a system favored by the premier.

The librarian-university professor, also a newspaper and television commentator, said outright that he is opposed to a presidential system of government.

He said the great disadvantage of the American presidential system is that the executive branch of government is often powerless before the legislative branch.

The expert warned against the French presidential system by saying its weakness arises from the duality of powers of the president and the premier.

* * *

He said the presidency of Gen. Charles de Gaulle and Georges Pompidou both illustrate that the French premier can be reduced to "a puppet" at critical times.

Bonenfant's views on the role of a president in a political system were expressed as follows:

* * *

"I think that perhaps later we will have a more functional view of the state, but for the moment people need to have a symbolic chief of state who has practically no powers, who opens exhibitions and gives advice to the scouts and holidays to the colleges and they also need a real chief, who is the prime minister."

Pros Bomb Uplands With Birdies

By GORDE HUNTER

Uplands golf course stacked its 6,215 yards against the cream of the Canadian pro golf crop Thursday and came away with a severe case of shell shock.

It wasn't really the serious shooting — that begins today — it was merely the warm-up, the pro-am. But the pros were serious enough about it as no less than 18 of them smashed par and two of them, Moe Norman from Gilford, Ont., and Toronto Mississagua assistant pro Brian Bond, went on birdie destruction the likes of which this layout had never experienced before. Their cards added up to 63 — seven full shots under par, to shave four from the previous competitive record for the present layout, held by Laurie Kerr.

OLD RECORD

The late Chuck Congdon of Tacoma and Fred Wood of Vancouver both carded 65s in the final round of the 1946 B.C. Open to share the old Uplands' layout record.

The pro-am competition became secondary as first one and then another pro reported in with sparkling under-par performances. The pro-am plum was picked off by the team headed by Vancouver pro Wayne Vollmer who had a 69. His amateur partners Ches Hays of Uplands and Ed Manning of Seattle, aided and abetted the par smashing by totalling 16 under par 54. And that was good only for a one-stroke margin over the team

Bus Crash Kills 16 In England

STANHOPE, England (UPI) — Police reported 16 persons killed and 27 injured Thursday when a bus with 43 aboard plunged over an embankment near this village in Northwest England.

The coach ran off the road, overturned and was wrecked against the side of a house, a police spokesman said. The side of the bus was ripped off and passengers were scattered on the ground.

"I was in the bar when I saw the coach go past. I heard a bang but I didn't dare go out. I was frightened of what I would see," said Mrs. Mary Blenkinsop, proprietor of the Campbell Arms Pub.

Lethal Gas Crosses U.S.

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Shipment of 22 railroad cars of lethal war gas to two separate locations within the United States from the Rocky Mountain Arsenal at Denver was disclosed Thursday. It touched off a new round of congressional criticism.

Rep. Richard McCarthy, D-N.Y., first disclosed the shipments and wrote a letter to President Nixon asking for him to investigate them.

McCarthy said the army was shipping the gas, but the Federal Railroad Administration, which licensed the shipments, sail they were made by the Jones Chemical Co., of Caledonia, N.Y., and the Chemical Commodities Co., Olathe, Kans.

Fourteen cars loaded with phosgene gas were shipped to the Lockport, N.Y., plant of Jones Chimical and eight carloads went to Chemical Commodities facility at Geismar, La.

Phosgene gas is used commercially in the manufacture of plastics and its shipment is allowed under certain conditions. McCarthy said the gas is not as lethal as nerve gas, but was the cause of 80 per cent of the gas fatalities in the First World War and is "a deadly weapon."

The larger shipment to Lockport was routed through Chicago and Ed Edel, a spokesman for the railroad administration, said that train had been in Des Moines at noon Thursday.

"As the train moved through Des Moines, no guards were placed at railroad crossings, even those crossings that had no warning barriers," McCarthy said.

He said the shipment of the gas exposed such cities as Des Moines and St. Joseph, Mo., to the "danger of an accident."

Edel said that federal safety regulations for such shipments did not require guards at all crossings and noted that there were 225,000 of them in the nation.

Calm Short-Lived

Gunshots Kill Four In Ulster

LONDON (Reuters) — Britain announced today it will airlift 600 troops into Northern Ireland.

One of the dead was identified as John Gallagher, 29, a father of three who had emigrated to Canada and was back home on vacation.

A brief period of calm which followed the entry of British troops into riot-torn Londonderry—flashpoint of this week's Roman Catholic-Protestant feuding—was shattered by bursts of automatic weapons fire in the capital of Belfast.

Here and in Armagh, 36 miles to the south, four persons, including a child, were killed by bullets. Twenty-nine of the 105 reported injured early today in the capital suffered bullet wounds.

● Background to Ireland's strife. Page 3

Three of the deaths occurred in Belfast.

A large area of downtown Belfast was in flames as police in armored cars fought against barrages of gasoline bombs, rocks and volleys of bullets.

Police spokesmen said the outlawed Irish Republican Army was behind most of the shooting. Spokesmen said they had information more IRA contingents were heading for the capital.

Police said the snipers were using sophisticated weapons, including modern automatics.

NOT BY POLICE

Gallagher was slain in Armagh where, police headquarters said, police were not using their guns. Another man was shot in the leg there and a third was wounded in the thigh.

The second man to die was Herbert Roy, 26, of Belfast. He was hit in the chest by a blast from a shotgun.

A fourth body was found on the roof of a block of Belfast apartments. The child was named as Patrick Rooney, 9.

Police said the fatality list could be higher.

They were the first fatalities in the riots which have sent

SEATTLE (AP) — Seattle police cleared a four-blockk area of the city's University district with tear gas Tuesday night after a crowd of about 2,000 youths gathered and were warned to disperse.

A Boy's Life Is Full of Deep Valleys, High Peaks

A boy's life is full of deep valleys and high peaks, and Pierre Rochefort, 12, took full up-and-down ride this week during Little League Canadian championships here. (See full report, Page 15.) Tuesday, with Pierre pitching, Valleyfield, Que., lost to Edmonton Hardistry, 3-2, in a tough game, and Pierre, left, was inconsolable. Thursday, Pierre was on peak with second crack at the Prairie champs, right. This time he won, 3-2, striking out side in successive innings with bases loaded, and slamming ball to force error that brought in the winning run in extra innings. But Pierre and his mates now need two successive wins over Vancouver Collingwood for title. —(Jim Ryan)

'Labor Finding New Leaders'

HALIFAX (CP) — Public service unions will dominate the labor movement in the next generation, Canadian Labor Congress President Donald MacDonald said Thursday.

Speaking to the Halifax convention of the Union of National Defence Employees, MacDonald—a native of Halifax—said "a new breed of labor leader is emerging . . . the kind of people who lead your own component, and the alliance (Public Service Alliance of Canada) as a whole."

NEW FIELDS

Along with this trend, he said, the labor movement is entering hitherto unorganized fields of the labor force, which itself is being transformed.

"The emergence of government employees as trade unionists is being accompanied by a very considerable transformation of our labor force from one which was, up to recently, largely dominated by the manual worker into one which is becoming increasingly typical of the clerical, the technical and the professional worker.

"What is perhaps even more important is the fact that there is a growing realization by these growing categories of workers of the importance of developing effective instrumentalities for their economic well-being and the futility of reliance on employer paternalism."

ACT CRITICIZED

He said two barriers to effective union bargaining in the public service were the Public Service Staff Relations Act and government guidelines on wages.

He criticized sections of the act which restrict the areas which may come under collective bargaining.

Wage guidelines set by government, said MacDonald, "inhibit and frustrate collective bargaining processes and, in effect, subject you to a previously established government position even before collective bargaining begins."

Fiery Girl MP Held from Attack

LONDONDERRY (Reuters) — Bernadette Devlin, 22-year-old Northern Ireland civil rights champion and the youngest member of the British House of Commons, was dissuaded at the last minute Thursday from leading a charge against a three-storey apartment block occupied by police in embattled Bogside.

Miss Devlin was told by other leaders of the rioting Roman Catholic population of the Bogside ghetto that there were old people in the building who refused to leave.

Catholics were hurling gasoline bombs on the roof of the building to dislodge the police who had captured the building after continuously firing tear-gas bombs at it.

Arriving at the barricades, Miss Devlin announced that tenants would be given 10 minutes and police five minutes to vacate the building.

After that, she said, two dozen men with bottles of gasoline would enter the building.

"We are going to burn these flats to the ground," the MP for Mid-Ulster announced to crowds at the barricades.

But several young men spoke up, telling her the apartments were occupied by old couples who had locked their doors and refused to budge.

Northern Ireland reeling for four days.

A total of 29 persons were reported shot, some seriously. The Belfast casualty toll for the night reached 105-89 civilians and 16 police.

HISTORY'S WORST

The worst violence in the history of Belfast broke out as special British armed forces had brought calm to the Londonderry slum area of Bogside, where 50 hours of violence had reduced the area to rubble. But the Belfast rioting seemed much more severe.

Two Belfast pubs, one in a Roman Catholic street and one in a Protestant street, were turned into bonfires in the Northern Ireland capital.

ARMORED CARS

Police with armored cars moved into the Roman Catholic Falls district. As they drove up there were four bursts of automatic fire. A senior police officer said he thought it came from a sub-machine-gun.

Eyewitnesses reported a dozen single shots that sent police scattering for cover. These were followed by a short burst, a longer one and finally two sustained bursts of fire.

SKY AGLOW

There are no British troops in the capital.

Street fighting was raging in Newry where the sky was aglow with fires.

BOGSIDE SEALED

ing that had raged out of control.

Their mission was to halt riot-trol for three days. They came at the call of the government in Belfast.

"Rocks we will take; but at the first petrol bomb, we fire," warned a sergeant, referring to the bottled gasoline bombs used by rioters.

The British forces took their posts only a few hours after 600 troops of the Republic of Ireland had moved up to the near-by border. The southern Irish, predominantly Catholic, announced their mission was to support and supply five field hospitals set up in County Donegal to treat any wounded who might flee the Northern Ireland trouble area.

SOME ARMED

Some of the Irish Republic troops carried weapons. They patrolled in Donegal, just a mile from Bogside where 4,000 Catholics made their stand in rioting which arose out their long-time complaints of discrimination in Northern Ireland.

LET IN FIRE TRUCK

Shortly after the Prince of Wales Regiment rolled up to Bogside, tempers cooled enough to let a fire truck go through the barricades to put out fires.

The British troops made no immediate effort to enter Bogside, where Catholics had held out against a Protestant-dominated Northern Irish police force since Tuesday.

COOLING AIM

A senior British officer said the aim of the troops was to lower the temperature.

About 300 British soldiers rode into Londonderry minutes after Home Affairs Minister Robert Porter told an emergency session of Parliament in Belfast that police were exhausted and could no longer control the rioting.

CROWDS CHEER

A cheer went up from the crowds in Londonderry's battered centre as the first soldiers arrived in an armored car. More followed in personnel carriers topped by steel grills to ward off rocks. Then two companies of the battalion and support troops arrived.

Their first task was to put barbed wire barricades across all roads leading into Bogside and seal off the area.

RAMPAGE

Many Catholics in the area had said they would welcome military intervention, charging that the mainly-Protestant police, once they break into the area, go on a rampage of destruction.

Even before the arrival of troops, a huge tower of black smoke welled up from William Street, where rioters had forced police back to within 100 yards of their own headquarters and set fire to a pile of tractor tires, making a smoke screen in the narrow street.

AREA LITTERED

The area was littered with the debris of two nights of fighting. To the smoke and the fumes of tear-gas grenades was added the dust of buildings that police ordered wrecked after the interiors had been burned out.

The immediate military strategy seemed to be to cordon the area and wait.

NEW FIRES

Once the smoke was dissipated, new fires started in buildings in William Street. Bogsiders marched toward the troops' barricades singing, We Shall Overcome.

Their stewards, men first appointed to control demonstrations when the Catholic civil rights campaign was confined to protest marches, shouted at younger, hotheaded elements to keep back.

NO ROCKS, BOMBS

SAFE CONDUCT

He talked with the major in charge of the troops and promised safe conduct for the fire engine in Bogside if the army would ask the police to withdraw from their positions behind the army's barriers.

The police, among them the tough all-Protestant B Specials whom the Catholics call gangsters, marched back to their barracks. The barbed wire was rolled back to let the fire truck through and McAteer and other leaders persuaded the Catholics to move out of sight of the troops.

ACROSS RIVER

The troops had been stationed for the last week at Sea Eagle, a Royal Navy base across the River Foyle from the main part of Londonderry.

Londonderry, unlike Belfast, has a Roman Catholic majority, most of whom want a united Ireland, divorced from the British crown.

PEACE-KEEPERS

The Irish Republic demanded Wednesday night that Britain ask for United Nations peace forces to intervene.

Britain's Prime Minister Wilson and Home Secretary James Callaghan broke off vacations and held an emergency meeting at an air base in southwest England. British sources in London said use of British troops was approved during the three-hour meeting.

INTERNAL AFFAIR

In London, the foreign office said there was no question of Britain asking for UN intervention. The British view was said to be that Northern Ireland is part of Britain and the rioting there an internal British affair.

A night of unremitting violence brought casualties in Londonderry close to 400, of whom 130 were policemen. Ten persons, three of them in Londonderry, had bullet or gunshot wounds.

In Londonderry, police fired a volley when a small detachment seemed in danger of being overrun by a crowd hurling gasoline bombs. Responsibility for the other shootings was not yet clear but it is known that the extremists—both Catholic and Protestants—have arms.

Throughout Thursday the Bogsiders stuck to their barricades, hurling rocks and gasoline bombs at police detachments. The police countered with their own volleys of rocks and fusillades of riot gas grenades.

FOLLOW UP

The move of Irish Republican troops toward the border was seen as a follow-up to Wednesday night's warning by Prime Minister Jack Lynch in Dublin that his government could no longer stand aside.

Lynch's government, by the constitution, claims to rule all Ireland. It does not recognize the partition effected by the 1920 treaty that left the six counties of Northern Ireland as part of Britain.

'NOT LEAVING'

Irish civil rights leader Bernadette Devlin, a 22-year-old member of the British Parliament, told the Bogsiders: "Just because the soldiers are here it does not mean we are abandoning the barricades."

Outside Londonderry, the rest of the country appeared quiet Thursday after rioting Wednesday night in Belfast, the border town of Newry, Dungiven, Dungannon, Lurgan, Iniskillen, Armagh and Coalisland.

Oak Bay Election Corner

Dr. G. Scott Wallace

Readers are taking a great interest in this daily column as shown by their response. Some personal comments would be timely. My election campaign is being financed solely by donations from friends and supporters. Such donations have been generous but it is only fair to say that advertising, even on a modest level, to a thrifty Scotsman, is costly and further donations would be welcome. Some readers have suggested that my proposals for hospitals imply criticism of the government, under whose banner I am seeking office. This is quite correct. I see no fault in criticizing a party in some particular aspect when I approve in general, of its basic policies and very considerable accomplishments. A party which cannot tolerate constructive self-criticism is incapable of progress and would not have my support. Readers should know that members of the Social Credit government, well aware of my outspoken disposition, on Oak Bay council and elsewhere, asked me to run for this office. I was raised on the motto, "Speak the truth and fear no man" and such is the policy I will follow if elected to the Legislature. One does not need to be rude however to be outspoken, and it is my pledge, both in this campaign and in the House if elected, never to resort to the name calling, rude noisy behaviour and outrageous immature antics, which, alas in the past have been exhibited equally by both sides of the House. Readers wishing to question me on these points can do so on CKDA tomorrow night at 8:00 p.m.

Sleeping Pill Use Requires Extra Caution

By G. T. THOSTESON, MD

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Please help me with insomnia. I am 47 and haven't been able to sleep well for six years. The doctor gave me some sleeping pills, but I'm afraid to take them because I heard people can get hooked on them forever. I only take them when I get very tired. — M.R.P.

There is a massive difference between gobbling pills, as some people do, seeking complete forgetfulness or taking just enough to relax you and let you sleep. Your doctor knows a lot more about proper use of such pills than the "people" who feed you scare stories.

I suggest that you use the pills. Just stay within whatever limits your doctor specified, and you won't be "hooked". Your occasional use is wise.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: My husband went to a podiatrist to have a corn removed and was told he had bad circulation in his feet. Is this serious, and can it be corrected? — Miss P.J.

Faulty circulation can be serious, or it can be a nuisance, causing burning, cramping, coldness. If there is some partial blockage of circulation in a large artery, surgery is used in suitable cases.

The podiatrist was concerned because impaired circulation can retard healing. If the circulation is seriously faulty, severe trouble can come from a small injury, would, blister, or even hot application.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: If a person, aged 20, is told he is color blind, can anything be done to correct it? — T.A.

No. It is a hereditary characteristic and does not change.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I am 76 and for a number of years have taken bone meal, iron, yeast tablets and brewer's dried yeast. When I ask my doctor about taking these, he says, "Well, if they don't help you, they won't hurt you." However, my daughter said I should stop the bone meal because one of the chemists where she works said something about calcium deposits. — Mrs. G.G.

All sorts of people take all sorts of things, and I'm not of a mind to prohibit anything unless I see some harm possible. In your case, I agree with your doctor thoroughly, and see no risk of "calcium deposits" from anything you are taking.

Cowichan Hospital

Mental Health Plan Supported

NORTH COWICHAN — Cowichan Valley regional board, in its capacity as regional hospital authority has endorsed Cowichan District Hospital board's decision to have 15 mental health beds added to the proposed extended care unit adjacent to the hospital.

Ald. John Cannon of North Cowichan this week stressed the extreme need for psychiatric facilities in the Cowichan area which had the highest suicide rate in Canada.

Director Bruce Devitt, who is also chairman of the Cowichan school board, described the lack of proper mental health facilities as being critical to the school program.

Young Salmon Launched In Experiment

COURTENAY — The Tsolum River, a tributary of the Puntledge near Courtenay, had some visitors recently — more than 100,000 chinook salmon fingerlings.

The transplant forms an experiment to find out whether self-sustaining chinook populations can be established in rivers such as the Tsolum and Capilano which do not support that species at present.

The fingerlings, three-inches long and about four months old, were reared at the fisheries department's Big Qualicum River development project. They will be carefully watched by skin divers for the next two weeks.

Each has been marked distinctly by fin clippings so that adults returning in two or three years' time can be positively identified when they are captured by sports or commercial fishermen.

Local fisheries officials say the success of the experiment will be indicated in the fall of 1970 when the first fish return from the sea.

Workers Back At Mill

NANAIMO — Pickets at Mayo lumber mill were withdrawn Thursday, without an injunction being served. (See story Page 3.)

The 10 picketers appeared at the mill 6:30 a.m. Wednesday, protesting the mill using "hot oil products." At some time during the night the picketers disappeared but 200 men lost a day's work.

Gordon McGavin, mill assistant to the president, went to Vancouver Thursday and got an injunction at about 4 p.m. By that time the mill's night shift was at work.

Nanaimo Voters Hear Three Views

Merger, More Ferries Proposed In Candidates' Second Meeting

NANAIMO—A second all-candidates' meeting in the Nanaimo campaign for the Aug. 27 provincial election was held at the Shoreline Hotel, Nanaimo, Thursday, sponsored by the Hub City Kiwanis.

NDP candidate Dave Stupich said he would strive to have Nanaimo city and the surrounding improvement district amalgamated into one large municipality.

"I think that it's been Nanaimo that has been dragging its feet," he said, referring to attempts to amalgamate which have taken place over the last three years.

★ ★ ★

He said the area needed a civic centre with a theatre where people could go to a symphony and be able to watch the conductor.

"If you're far enough back to see, then you are too far back to hear." That was the problem with the seating at Woodland junior high school auditorium, he added.

Mr. Stupich said the centre should be built with provincial help but added that the government had announced that it would only put up $2,000,000 toward Centennial celebrations, marking B.C.'s uniting with the rest of Canada.

"A million less than they offered to a company that had been bilking the people of Canada," he said.

Of educational financing formula, he said: "There is no other way of handling it than by throwing it out."

School trustees should be given similar authority to spend public money as were provincially or federally elected representatives — spend wisely or be thrown out of office at the next election, he said.

"Would you believe? This province existed before 1962," he said. He said "The Good Life" movie was excellent visually but the soundtrack should be stricken.

He objected to the film and references to good life in television and radio commercials advertising B.C. Hydro as being political advertising, paid for by B.C.'s citizens.

Mr. Plecas said many programs claimed in The Good Life theme, such as industrial growth and highways development, were begun years before the Socreds were elected.

During the question period, Mr. Plecas said Canadian workers should have Canadian unions and funds going into the U.S. should be used for the betterment of workers in Canada.

He said that Bill 33 should not be enforced by one minister but arbitration should be decided after open discussions in the legisltaure and an open vote taken.

Frank Ney, Socred candidate, said: "I have yet to see where socialism has worked successfully."

He said the NDP experiment had already proved unsuccessful in Saskatchewan and socialism was not successful in England either.

He said that the Peace River and PGE projects were originally thought poor risks when the Social Credit borrowed money for them but they later proved their worth.

Mr. Ney said it was projects like those which gave the province its highest per capita debt in Canada but only a province with the ability to pay could have borrowed the money.

A tourist development was suggested by Mr. Ney for loans to small businesses.

Gabriola ferry run and a four-lane highway throughout the constituency.

Hotels should be able to get second mortgages from it to enable them to upgrade their services, he said.

Duncan

Silver Bridge Will Stay Same Color

DUNCAN — Duncan's silver bridge is to remain silver colored.

Dr. Charles Ennals, Social Credit candidate for Cowichan-Malahat, said Thursday that the highways department was busy painting all the bridges in B.C. various colors.

★ ★ ★

When he heard that they intended to paint the silver bridge on No. 1 Highway at Duncan yellow, he appealed to the department.

"Not only is the silver bridge used as a landmark on maps, there are three business enterprises in the nearby area using the name of the silver bridge," he said.

"The issues in the overall election is whether people wish to continue to develop the province as they are used to or do they wish the experimental program that is offered by the socialists," he said.

"I think the prime issue is local representation — someone that is involved locally and prepared to make needs of this area not only apparent but inescapable from the government."

Dr. Ennals said that overall planning for the future of the area regarding economic security was important.

"We have the forest industry but nothing to backup to it," he said.

"We should make every effort to make the area most attractive to the tourists, not only for mainlanders but for the population centres such as Nanaimo and Victoria. This area is the most poorly parked and camped area on Vancouver Island."

He stressed that the government must improve Vancouver Island highways, not only as a basis of reason but of safety.

★ ★ ★

"A four-lane highway is long overdue," he said. "I have yet to hear a voice on the legislative floor calling or planning that step."

"To make the area attractive to live and to play we must foster every possible step right now to control the question of pollution," he said.

"There are two things we must do. They are strict enforcement that exist and that are quite adequate and a broad educational program to each individual stressing responsibility in the field of pollution control.

"Industrial pollution is subject to great controversy regarding the mills in the area. If we are going to control our environment regarding pollution, we must have regional planning that should encompass such things as desirability of allowing any further industrial development at Cowichan Bay."

'I Never Wrote Letter to McDiarmid'

Indian Chief Denies Letter

PORT ALBERNI — The chief of the Opitsaht Reserve, near Tofino, has condemned Social Credit candidate Dr. Howard McDiarmid for using the chief's name in his election campaign.

Chief Ernest David phoned the Alberni Valley Times from Tofino to say he had heard a letter over his name read on the radio as an endorsement of the Tofino physician in the Aug. 27 election.

"I never wrote a letter to Dr. McDiarmid and I don't remember signing one," said Chief David.

LETTER PRINTED

"I won't support him. I don't think he's done anything yet."

The letter signed with the chief's name, dated Aug. 17, 1966, was printed in the Alberni Valley Times with two others submitted by the Social Credit candidate last week.

Dr. McDiarmid told the Colonist this week that such a letter existed. He said it was one of three — one written by Chief David, one written by another chief and a third written by a priest from the district.

Dr. McDiarmid said they were written after he had helped the Indians from the reserve with a problem during 1966 to 1967. He said he had asked these concerned to give him letters of support and they had agreed to do it.

'SAME HAND'

Chief David was told that the letter submitted by Dr. McDiarmid to the Alberni Valley Times was written by ball point pen and the handwriting and signature appeared to be by the same hand.

The leeter read:

"Tofino, B.C., Aug. 17, 1966, Dr. McDiarmid. Dear sir: I would say as we have had Dr. McDiarmid in Tofino, we native people of Opitsaht reserve have been looked after very well.

We never would say we had any discrimination. I would say in the last 10 years, Dr. McDiarmid, or more than ten years, we have had very good medical care and has saved quite a few people. We would like to have him for our doctor always. (Signed) Chief Ernest David, Opitsaht Reserve."

Earlier Dr. McDiarmid said the letters served to answer charges made recently by Chief Earl Tatoosh of the Opitchesaht Band on the Somass River.

He said that several years ago the doctor had refused to treat Indians and that "He wanted money on the table before he would look at anyone."

At the time, Dr. McDiarmid said his stand was not directed at the Indian population but at the federal government which was paying too little for medical services to reserve Indians.

'LONG TIME'

Chief David said he had been asking other band counsellors but they say they know nothing about the letter.

"I don't like my name being used . . . has he the right to do that?" the chief asked.

The chief was asked whether he could have signed a letter commending the physician's abilities as a doctor and then had forgotten.

He said he was certain he had not, but he added, "three years ago is a long time ago."

Marathon Interested In Parkade Scheme

DUNCAN — Marathon Realty has shown interest in the possibility of developing a multi-storey parkade with shopping facilities, Mayor Jim Quaife said this week.

He said he, Ald. Jim Saunders and city clerk Gordon Berry recently visited D. P. Shepard, land planning supervisor in Vancouver for the CPR subsidiary.

Mayor Quaife said . "Mr. Shepard showed great interest in our proposal and assured us planners from Marathon would come to Duncan to survey the area involved."

Tentative plans call for a large multi-storey parking area between Duncan Street and Canada Avenue with approaches from Brae Road and street connections with Duncan Street and Canada Avenue.

Mayor Quaife said. "We reiterated our desire to get on with the urban renewal scheme and asked Mr. Morris to expedite our program."

The scheme would involve a total expenditure of $1,000,000 of which 50 per cent would be borne by the federal government and the rest would be shared between the city and the provincial government.

The mayor said "we were told two or three cost estimates are yet to be provided for the project. We also were advised the report would be printed as quickly as possible and then it will be up to the two senior government to implement the scheme. Now we are optimistic that the urban renewal scheme can be realized in the very near future."

Holidays for Children

Horses Provide Fun On Ranch at Duncan

Photostory
By DONNA CLEMENTS

DUNCAN — Many childrens' dream of an ideal holiday is eight weeks on the Kelvin creek ranch, seven miles out of Duncan.

The ranch is owned by Mollie and Jack Archer who run the ranch on a year-round basis and have offered summer fun for children, between eight and 14 for the past six years.

Mr. and Mrs. Archer purchased the Doering Estate — as it is still known by the oldtimers in the district 15 years previously and it still possesses the first stables and carriage-house that were built with the house approximately 100 years ago.

"We can handle 27 children at a time," said Mrs. Archer. "Some come for one week, some come for the whole eight weeks. Most of the children would like to stay the full time but it can be quite expensive. The children all get along wonderfully and they are taught the basics of horseback riding and caring for horses and are awarded achievement badges as they progress in their skill with the horses. They go on trail rides — sometimes picnicking along the way — hayrides, swimming, hiking and many other activities. We have counsellors to help supervise the children."

RANCH VISITORS

Mrs. Archer said she has children at the ranch this summer from San Francisco, Toronto, Alaska. However most are from the Island and Vancouver area.

Mr. and Mrs. Archer's son, 21-year-old Darrel, mainly handles the riding instructions with the children.

"He handles most of the horse business. He also shoes, trains and breaks the horses, said Mrs. Archer. "He does guiding during the off season."

FORMER TEACHER

Mrs. Archer resigned her position as a school teacher in the Duncan area in June because she plans to work full time in running the ranch with her husband.

"We usually hire help and I am really looking forward to working at it all of the time," she said.

"This will be the first year, after Aug. 23, that we will be offering accommodations to adults and family groups enabling them to holiday on the ranch with the horses and lessons if needed at their disposal. We will be running the ranch as this on a year-round basis."

Broader Powers Doubted

Broader powers for the police would probably quell the rising crime rate, but would also widen the confidence gap between the public and the police, according to Central Saanich Chief Fred L. Brownlee.

For instance, if wiretapping were allowed, the police would stand a better chance of winning the battle against crime. This could be done with the permission of the senior officer or even the magistrate or judge, the chief said.

"The emphasis is always on preserving personal freedom, but the trouble is that law breakers don't play according to those rules either.

The other side of the coin is that the public has little enough confidence in the police, and that's the point which keeps Chief Brownlee from really pressing for broader powers.

"There is a general impression that the police always have their way. Most people believe that we have enough powers already, and that's one reason why we will probably have to go about our job with the limited tools at our disposal," he said.

He is worried about the increase in crime; he is doubtful of the attention criminals get from social workers, probation officers and legislators; sometimes he is sick and tired of witnessing a complete disregard for the victim of crime.

★ ★ ★

"The public's sympathies seem to run more toward those on the wrong side of the law," he said.

Chief Brownlee said he failed to understand the new legislation protecting juvenile delinquents from any punishment regardless of the offence.

"Recently we had a 17-year-old boy in our office. He was arrested after stealing a car.

"He just laughed at us; he laughed at me, at his father, at everybody. He told us that we couldn't touch him."

The sad part of it was that the boy would stop laughing when he turned 18, the chief said.

Chinese Queen Takes Hawaii On World Tour

Miss Tai and her court are sponsored by the Chinese Chamber of Commerce in Hawaii and the World Wide Tour Travel Service.

Miss Tai, named Lala for the sixth note on the musical scale (she has brothers and sisters for the other six notes), says that she was not chosen merely for beauty.

THREE PHASES

"There were three phases to the contest actually. Modelling, and a talent phase, and then some questions . . . what kind of questions? Well, like 'What has been your most rewarding experience?'"

For her talent phase Miss Tai sang and played the guitar. She performed both in Chinese and American, "to show my dual heritage."

And one of the requirements for entrants in the Narcissus contest is that a girl have Chinese ancestry, as demonstrated by a Chinese last name.

POLYNESIAN DANCES

But Miss Tai said she was one of the very few who performed Polynesian arts for the talent contest. Many of the girls, (there are 52 members of the tour) have learned a lot of heritage since being chosen for the tour.

The Chamber of Commerce asked them to put on a Hawaiian show for the tour, so they all learned Polynesian dances.

"We were warned ahead of time . . . so we set up a show."

NO REGRETS

And Miss Tai, who is in the middle of writing a book on her experiences as Narcissus Queen, has no regrets about dedicating a year of her life to the contest.

"Where else can you get a free trip to the Orient . . . and all the attention . . . and people giving you things?"

'No Political Link' To Office Damage

NANAIMO — Thieves smashed windows to enter five cars near Esplanade, Nanaimo Wednesday and then waited in bushes until police finished investigating before breaking into a group of offices a few hundred feet away.

That was one theory which followed a series of incidents. Rear doors' handles were smashed, offices were damaged and petty cash stolen at Church, Pickard, Lane, and Newman, chartered accountants, Harris' barber shop, Budget Rent A Car and Dominion Life.

Among the worst hit were the accountants' offices. Dave Stupich, NDP candidate for Nanaimo, a partner in the firm had his office badly damaged.

W. R. Lane discounted any possibility of any connection between the thefts and Mr. Stupich's political work.

"The other offices were hit too," he said.

There was less than $50 taken from the office. The other businesses lost petty cash — mostly cash.

Changing Times

Many Duncan residents are donning old-time Western clothes to help the atmosphere during Bonanza Daze which is in full swing this week. Modern miniskirt worn by Mrs. Kathy Campbell shows how short raiment has become since days of old West, as typified by garb worn by Mayor Jim Quaife and Mrs. Arnie Porter. — (Klaus Muenter)

Referendum Due On Transit Buy

NANAIMO — Nanaimo regional board decided this week to set a date, probably some time in September, for a referendum on the puchase of the Nanaimo bus system.

The board also decided to set Oct. 18 as the date for a referendum on a one-mill levy for recreational needs.

The board agreed the system had to be purchased so that the Greater Nanaimo area's transit needs would be speeded up and the routes changed to give faster, more frequent service.

A spokesman for the board said Wednesday that under the present system the buses were more of a sightseeing tour than transportation.

The purchase price was not set but would be presented to the public well ahead of the referendum, the spokesman said.

The service changes would follow an earlier report on a thorough study of the system. There would be changes to ensure service to Malaspina College in the city centre; routes would be changed to bring people into city centre quicker and prime areas outside the city which were not being served would be brought into the system.

A main consideration in deciding the transit system should be purchased was that the Nanaimo area was growing so quickly an improved transit system was the best answer to mounting traffic problems.

On recreational needs ratepayers will be asked if they would support a one-mill levy to provide funds for starting a recreational program, organizing throughout the area and to provide small amounts of money to member recreation commissions on a per capita basis.

Farmer Dies

Born at Lancashire, England, Mr. Crosland came to Duncan at the turn of the century. With his brother, Sam, who died in 1945, he established a seed farm which became known as Crosland Bros. Seed Farm, north of Duncan.

He was noted for his production of sweet pea seed. He was also a keen cricketer. In his youth he played cricket for Yorkshire and he was one of the first members of Cowichan Cricket Club.

Funeral services will be held at Hirst Funeral Chapel, Duncan, 11 a.m. today, followed by burial at St. Mary's Anglican Church cemetery.

'Dummy' President for Quebec?

By DAVE BAZAY

QUEBEC (CP) — An outspoken civil servant proposed Thursday that Quebec province keep its British parliamentary system but decorate it with a "dummy" president, "a wooden idol."

★ ★ ★

Jean-Charles Bonenfant, witty librarian of the national assembly, said a United States-style presidential system would paralyse Quebec if it were applied here.

Bonenfant, 57, trampled over several pet political ideas of the politicians in his appearance as an expert at a hearing of the assembly's constitutional committee.

At one point he read this opinion of a Japanese jurist to Rene Levesque, the leader of the separatist Party Quebecois which wants to boot out the British system:

★ ★ ★

"We should not abandon too quickly what the English have built during three centuries of difficult but primordial work."

At another point he said a referendum, a proposal backed by Premier Jean-Jacques Bertrand, would lead to "frightful disorder" in the absence of permanent electoral lists.

★ ★ ★

Bonenfant, a teacher of constitutional law and political science at Laval University, was invited by Bertrand, the committee chairman, to outline what is involved in the presidential system of government, a system favored by the premier.

The librarian-university professor, also a newspaper and television commentator, said outright that he is opposed to a presidential system of government.

He said the great disadvantage of the American presidential system is that the executive branch of government is often powerless before the legislative branch.

The expert warned against the French presidential system by saying its weakness arises from the duality of powers of the president and the premier.

★ ★ ★

He said the presidency of Gen. Charles de Gaulle and Georges Pompidou both illustrate that the French premier can be reduced to "a puppet" at critical times.

Bonenfant's views on the role of a president in a political system were expressed as follows:

★ ★ ★

"I think that perhaps later we will have a more functional view of the state, but for the moment people need to have a symbolic chief of state who has practically no powers, who opens exhibitions and gives advice to the scouts and holidays to the colleges and they also need a real chief, who is the prime minister."

Calm Short-Lived

BULLETS KILL FOUR

LONDON (Reuters) — Britain announced today it will airlift 600 troops into Northern Ireland.

One of the dead was identified as John Gallagher, 29, a father of three who had emigrated to Canada and was back home on vacation.

A brief period of calm which followed the entry of British troops into riot-torn Londonderry—flashpoint of this week's Roman Catholic-Protestant feuding—was shattered by bursts of automatic weapons fire in the capital of Belfast.

Here and in Armagh, 36 miles to the south, four persons, including a child, were killed by bullets. Twenty-nine of the 105 reported injured early today in the capital suffered bullet wounds.

● Background to Ireland's strife. Page 3

Three of the deaths occurred in Belfast.

A large area of downtown Belfast was in flames as police in armored cars fought against barrages of gasoline bombs, rocks and volleys of bullets.

Police spokesmen said the outlawed Irish Republican Army was behind most of the shooting. Spokesmen said they had information more IRA contingents were heading for the capital.

Police said the snipers were using sophisticated weapons, including modern automatics.

NOT BY POLICE

Gallagher was slain in Armagh where, police headquarters said, police were not using their guns. Another man was shot in the leg there and a third was wounded in the thigh.

The second man to die was Herbert Roy, 26, of Belfast. He was hit in the chest by a blast from a shotgun.

A fourth body was found on the roof of a block of Belfast apartments. The child was named as Patrick Rooney, 9.

Police said the fatality list could be higher.

They were the first fatalities in the riots which have sent

SEATTLE (AP) — Seattle police cleared a four-block area of the city's University district with tear gas Tuesday night after a crowd of about 2,000 youths gathered and were warned to disperse.

Pros Bomb Uplands With Birdies

By GORDE HUNTER

Uplands golf course stacked its 6,215 yards against the cream of the Canadian pro golf crop Thursday and came away with a severe case of shell shock.

It wasn't really the serious shooting — that begins today — it was merely the warm-up, the pro-am. But the pros were serious enough about it as no less than 18 of them smashed par and two of them, Moe Norman from Gilford, Ont., and Toronto Mississagua assistant pro Brian Bond, went on birdie destruction the likes of which this layout had never experienced before. Their cards added up to 63 — seven full shots under par, to shave four from the previous competitive record for the present layout, held by Laurie Kerr.

OLD RECORD

The late Chuck Congdon of Tacoma and Fred Wood of Vancouver both carded 65s in the final round of the 1946 B.C. Open to share the old Uplands' layout record.

The pro-am competition became secondary as first one and then another pro reported in with sparkling under-par performances. The pro-am plum was picked off by the team headed by Vancouver pro Wayne Vollmer who had a 69. His amateur partners Ches Hays of Uplands and Ed Manning of Seattle, aided and abetted the par smashing by totalling 16 under par 54. And that was good only for a one-stroke margin over the team

Bus Crash Kills 16 In England

STANHOPE, England (UPI) — Police reported 16 persons killed and 27 injured Thursday when a bus with 43 aboard plunged over an embankment near this village in Northwest England.

The coach ran off the road, overturned and was wrecked against the side of a house, a police spokesman said. The side of the bus was ripped off and passengers were scattered on the ground.

"I was in the bar when I saw the coach go past. I heard a bang but I didn't dare go out. I was frightened of what I would see," said Mrs. Mary Blenkinsop, proprietor of the Campbell Arms Pub.

Rolling trainload of death

Lethal Gas Crosses U.S.

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Shipment of 22 railroad cars of lethal war gas to two separate locations within the United States from the Rocky Mountain Arsenal at Denver was disclosed Thursday. It touched off a new round of congressional criticism.

Rep. Richard McCarthy, D-N.Y., first disclosed the shipments and wrote a letter to President Nixon asking for him to investigate them.

McCarthy said the army was shipping the gas, but the Federal Railroad Administration, which licensed the shipments, said they were made by the Jones Chemical Co., of Caledonia, N.Y., and the Chemical Commodities Co., Olathe, Kans.

Fourteen cars loaded with phosgene gas were shipped to the Lockport, N.Y., plant of Jones Chemical and eight carloads went to Chemical Commodities facility at Geismar, La.

Phosgene gas is used commercially in the manufacture of plastics and its shipment is allowed under certain conditions. McCarthy said the gas is not as lethal as nerve gas, but was the cause of 80 per cent of the gas fatalities in the First World War and is "a deadly weapon."

The larger shipment to Lockport was routed through Chicago and Ed Edel, a spokesman for the railroad administration, said that train had been in Des Moines at noon Thursday.

"As the train moved through Des Moines, no guards were placed at railroad crossings, even those crossings that had no warning barriers," McCarthy said.

He said the shipment of the gas exposed such cities as Des Moines and St. Joseph, Mo., to the "danger of an accident."

Edel said that federal safety regulations for such shipments did not require guards at all crossings and noted that there were 225,000 of them in the nation.

A Boy's Life Is Full of Deep Valleys, High Peaks

A boy's life is full of deep valleys and high peaks, and Pierre Rochefort, 12, took full up-and-down ride this week during Little League Canadian championships here. (See full report, Page 15.) Tuesday, with Pierre pitching, Valleyfield, Que., lost to Edmonton Hardistry, 3-2, in a tough game, and Pierre, left, was inconsolable. Thursday, Pierre was on peak with second crack at the Prairie champs, right. This time he won, 3-2, striking out side in successive innings with bases loaded, and slamming ball to force error that brought in the winning run in extra innings. But Pierre and his mates now need two successive wins over Vancouver Collingwood for title. —(Jim Ryan)

'Labor Finding New Leaders'

HALIFAX (CP) — Public service unions will dominate the labor movement in the next generation, Canadian Labor Congress President Donald MacDonald said Thursday.

Speaking to the Halifax convention of the Union of National Defence Employees, MacDonald—a native of Halifax—said "a new breed of labor leader is emerging . . . the kind of people who lead your own component, and the alliance (Public Service Alliance of Canada) as a whole."

NEW FIELDS

Along with this trend, he said, the labor movement is entering hitherto unorganized fields of the labor force, which itself is being transformed.

"The emergence of government employees as trade unionists is being accompanied by a very considerable transformation of our labor force from one which was, up to recently, largely dominated by the manual worker into one which is becoming increasingly typical of the clerical, the technical and the professional worker.

"What is perhaps even more important is the fact that there is a growing realization by these growing categories of workers of the importance of developing effective instrumentalities for their economic well-being and the futility of reliance on employer paternalism."

ACT CRITICIZED

He said two barriers to effective union bargaining in the public service were the Public Service Staff Relations Act and government guidelines on wages.

He criticized sections of the act which restrict the areas which may come under collective bargaining.

Wage guidelines set by government, said MacDonald, "inhibit and frustrate collective bargaining processes and, in effect, subject you to a previously established government position even before collective bargaining begins."

Rockland Debate Emotional

Home for Elderly Bid Delayed by Tie Vote

By DON COLLINS

An attempt to establish a home for the aged and disabled in the exclusive Rockland Avenue area produced an emotional battle at Thursday's meeting of Victoria city council.

And the usually quiet Ald. Lily Wilson, shaken by council's refusal to sanction the operation of such a home without further study, said:

ARBITRATION BOARD

"If this is not passed today it will go to arbitration. I have made inquiries and am confident it would be approved by the arbitration board."

She said she didn't think city council should put itself in a position where its land use would have to be governed by another body.

Said Mayor Stephen: "I don't think any council is going to be governed by duress of this kind."

COMMITTEE DISAGREES

The home in question is at 914 St. Charles. The Victoria Advisory Planning Commission recommended earlier that council reject its use as a home for the aged. A council committee disagreed last week.

The area concerned is zoned in such a way that a community care facility can only be established with the approval of council.

Aldermen Percy Frampton and Ian Stewart said they were sympathetic to Ald. Wilson's description of the urgent need, but said the entire Rockland situation should be studied first.

REVIEW PASSED

The move to establish the home was defeated because of a tie vote. Passed right afterward was a motion that an immediate review be made of all the regulations applying to Rockland building and land use.

It carried the stipulation that the study be completed as soon as possible.

Ald. Wilson had sought to have a time limit put on such a study and was upset.

"For the last four years I have been trying to get something like this through council," she said. "I'm tired of waiting. I don't think I can wait any longer."

Earlier, she told the meeting there was an urgent need for such a home in the area.

She described it as a beautiful old home with special gardens, a pool, teahouse and other features which wouldn't be changed. It is tended by a gardener.

APPROVAL GIVEN

About 60 per cent of the people in the immediate neighborhood had already voiced approval of such a change and 55 people wanted their names on a waiting list.

Rest homes have been unable to meet 20 to 30 requests per day for boarding accommodation, she said.

According to the alderman, some persons had already been knocking on the door of the would-be home for the aged to make inquiries.

OTHER HOMES

She pointed out also that zoning had permitted conversion of other homes in the area for apartment use. Despite the exclusive appearance of the neighborhood concerned, only 21 of the 63 homes hadn't been altered by apartments.

Gerald Dewhurst, who wants to operate the home, was at the council meeting but wasn't able to make his views known.

After the meeting he explained the block concerned already contained three rest homes.

Council approved Ald. Ian Stewart's motion that a committee be struck to study community care needs throughout the city.

Telegraph Cut Protest Urged by City

Victoria city council made it clear Thursday it isn't satisfied the city is getting the telegraph service it merits.

Noni

Mayor Hugh Stephen won agreement to his suggestion that a protest be voiced at September's conference of the Union of British Columbia Municipalities. The complaint would come from the Vancouver Island municipalities as a group, and not just Victoria.

The city complained earlier about reduction in the hours of operation at the Victoria office of Canadian Pacific-Canadian National Telecommunications.

* * *

Company and government officials gave assurance service would remain as good as usual through use of direct telephone to the Vancouver office.

"But there was one point overlooked by all concerned," city manager Dennis Young told council. "In not all instances is the telegraph service open to all recipients—not all of them possess phones."

* * *

He added: "A telegram of some urgency sent from Winnipeg on a Friday night would not reach these people until Monday morning.

Ald. Robert Baird felt Victoria had been slighted.

"Vancouver receives direct service, whereas we in Victoria have to be satisfied with second rate service," he said.

Personality Slips By

Amidst a flurry of promises from candidates that they will not attack personalities, but wage a clean election campaign, strictly on the issues, there is at least one ardent recalcitrant.

Lighthouse philosopher Bill Scott made it a "personal issue" Thursday that cabinet minister Waldo Skillings is a "Social Credit fraud — one of the worst." His running mate William Chant, however, is a "genuine disciple and student" of Socred economic theory, said Mr. Scott, himself a former Social Crediter.

Teamster Move Ignored

Teamsters Union officials are seeking a shutdown of all industrial operations in the province, which would give Premier Bennett the election issue he is seeking, according to B.C. Federation of Labor officials.

In a statement from Vancouver late Thursday, Ray Haynes, secretary-treasurer of the B.C. Federation of Labor said officers have decided not to attend a meeting with officials of the Teamsters Joint Council to discuss the 13-week-old oil workers strike.

The meeting is scheduled to start at 10:30 a.m. today.

GENERAL STRIKE

"The Federation is persuaded that the Teamsters leadership, under the guise of assisting the oil workers and their flying squad of pickets, are preparing to bring about a situation which would gradually shut down industrial operations in the province and create a condition similar in effect to a general strike," said Mr. Haynes.

"Such a move is obviously to give Mr. Bennett an excuse to use the compulsory section of Bill 33 and gain for himself the election issue he has been so desperately seeking.

"The B.C. Federation of Labor has already requested the appointment of a mediation officer to help resolve the dispute, but the federation request has been refused by Labor Minister Peterson," he said.

MEDIATOR

"Officers have now urged the oil workers union to request the government to appoint a mediator to bring about a settlement of the 13-week dispute.

"We would be hopeful that in the interests of the workers, the premier and the labor minister would be more sympathetic to this request coming from the oil workers union," concluded Mr. Haynes.

Only One China—Consul — Formosa Still Friendly

By BILL STAVDAL

China said in Victoria Thurs- will continue to support Chiang Kai-shek's government in Formosa even if the Canadian government recognizes Red China, a senior official of Nationalist

Most Chinese-Canadians day.

* * *

Speaking through interpreter Yi-Fei Wang, Chinese consul in Vancouver, Mr. Kao also said that Formosa would not move first to break relations with Canada if Canada recognized Red China.

He spoke in an interview at the Chinese Consolidated Benevolent Association hall on Fisgard Street.

Approximately 4,000 Chinese-Canadians live in Victoria, out of B.C.'s 20,000. Altogether in Canada there are about 70,000 Canadians of Chinese descent, said the consul.

* * *

The question of diplomatic recognition among the three governments of Canada, mainland China and Formosa (Taiwan) arose this year when negotiations began between Canada and the Communist Chinese.

Mr. Kao maintained Thursday that Chiang Kai-shek's government remains the legitimate one and that "a rebellious group" is in control of the mainland for the time being.

* * *

"Sooner or later the government of the Republic of China under Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek will go back to the mainland," said Mr. Kao through his interpreter.

The Communist government "could collapse at any time," he asserted. "It's so unstable and the people are very unhappy."

Mr. Kao said that Chinese in Britain, Holland and France retained personal loyalty to the Formosa government after their countries recognized Red China. So would Chinese-Canadians, he forecast.

Victoria's Chinese community is generally anti-Communist.

* * *

Mr. Kao said:

Asked if this represented an alteration of the Nationalist Chinese position that there is only one Chinese government — as opposed to the "two Chinas" concept — Mr. Kao amended:

* * *

External Affairs Minister Sharp announced last January that Canada would approach Communist China on the question of establishing diplomatic relations.

In an interview he conceded that such a move could mean a break with Nationalist China "because the government of Formosa today pretends to be the government of mainland China . . ."

On Jan. 24, Prime Minister Trudeau told the House of Commons:

"There is no question of sacrificing the people of Formosa. The position of the government is that the fate of the people of Formosa should be determined by those people themselves."

'Province Should Get Bridge Complaints'

Because Phil Gaglardi is no longer highways minister, new petitions should be sent in to the provincial government if his promises are to be fulfilled, Social Credit MLA Herbert Bruch told about 70 people Tuesday at an all-candidates election meeting in Port Renfrew.

He was answering complaints that the Harris Cove bridge which spans the San Juan River at Port Renfrew has not been replaced despite Mr. Gaglardi's promises, made in Mr. Bruch's presence.

The bridge, which has long been a bone of contention between Port Renfrew residents and the provincial government, is a 1,200-foot one-lane wooden structure.

It is crossed twice daily by children in the school bus, as well as by men on their way to work.

In the rainy weather the school bus stops at the bridge and lets the children walk across the structure. It then follows slowly and picks them up on the other side.

There have been various complaints and petitions, particularly from mothers who have said they feared for their children's safety on the bridge.

The bridge, built in 1930 at a cost of $25,000, has cost more than $3,000 in repairs since that time.

Esquimalt NDP candidate Jim Gorst, attending the meeting on his birthday, spent the day in Port Renfrew and inspected the bridge. He said it should be condemned.

Mr. Gorst said that with a few notable exceptions, Esquimalt riding has been ignored in the provincial highway building program.

He cited the lack of good bridges on the Sooke Road, and the state of the gravel road from Jordan River to Port Renfrew as examples of neglect.

Liberal candidate Fred Phillips was unable to attend the meeting.

Band at PNE

The Naden Band of CFB Esquimalt will lead the PNE parade Saturday in Vancouver and then will play for the exhibition opening ceremonies. The band is directed by Capt. Leonard Camplin.
